

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:
THOUGHTS ON THE POETRY AND LITERATURE OF THE BIBLE.

T. MCCANNAN, St. John's, N. F.

"These lectures are highly honourable to their author. Full of literary enthusiasm, they exhibit a happy appreciation of the chief characteristics of sacred poetry; and in the glow of sympathetic eloquence the lectures have themselves become poetical. They are calculated to send the reader to some portions of scripture with fresh eyes, because with new expectations."—English Presbyterian Messenger.

"A very superior production. The writer is thoroughly in love with his subject; his style finely harmonizes with it; and over the whole discussion he throws a rich glow of religious fervour, which is very refreshing and instructive. One naturally is led to put this little treatise alongside of a similar thing which lately came from the pen of Dr. Hamilton of London; and it is saying a good deal of Mr. Harvey's tract when we give it as our opinion that it can stand such a comparison. As regards mere style we greatly prefer it. We commend this little treatise most heartily, hoping that it is only the first-fruits of much that is yet to come to us from the colonies."—Scottish Guardian.

"He must, indeed, be possessed of little emotion who can rise from the perusal of the pamphlet before us without a deeper reverence for the Bible, and a longing desire to become more conversant than ever with the precious truths it unfolds to our view."—Halifax Witness.

"Tho

"These they exhibit the glow are calculated with new

"A very style finely religious in this little milton of our opinion fer it. We fruits of m

"Ho mu pamphlet k come more fax Witness

"The Co the literary tions are no the General

"To treat Harvey has critio and a duced this necessary as of the Bible and beauty Irish Presby

"Testin

"An excel well put in f &c., of the A Scripture."

"In perfec so fascinating three volume on revelation and embellish style. We h stantial accou it would prov small compas volume, or to omplished b tainments."

"The subje generality of attractive form great talents commend our

"In arrang Mr. Harvey e imagination, s brought to beo Presbyterian.