A Timely Suggestion.

DEAR EDITOR,—I see by looking over the minutes of the municipal council of last week a resolution was moved that a portion of our public land in Kentville, on which the court house stands, be advertised for sale; also a petition from the town of Kentville asking for a grant of a portion of said public land for street purposes. The above matter was deferred to April term. Now, sir, it strikes me that it would be doing wrong to sell any part of this land at present for two reasons. First, land in Kentville is rising in value every year and will continue to do so; second, you are aware, sir, that in the near future we will be forced to build a new court house; and when that time comes, as come it will, and that very soon, then would it not be better to sell all our public land in Kentville with the buildings thereon, for which a large sum could be realized, which would, if properly handled, go a long way in erecting such buildings as we would require for a court house and jail on our exhibition grounds on the site of the old Kentville proper place for them. And by so doing we will be saving a heavy tax on the county which is already overburdened with the same. Hoping, Mr Editor, you will give your opinion on this matter, and thanking you for space, I am yours very respectfully,

Minard's Liniment for Sale everywhere!

To Bridge the Annapolis River.

It is proposed to place a first class steel truss span and draw bridge over the Annapolis river at Granville ferry. This bridge will be about 1,300 feet from shore to shore at high water. The main channel of the river is 45 feet deep at low water. This will be spanned by a steel truss of 400 feet resting on stone piers built in 25 feet of water at lowest tides. The draw will be the largest and most complete of any in America, having two openings each 80 feet wide, with 22 feet water at low tide, and an extensive mooring pier. This draw will be nearly in the middle of the river, but where there is only 2 knots current at half tide with a counter current on the inshore side, and will admit of ocean steamers of over 1,000 tons passing up the river into French Bay—even at low water. As the Annapolis river above the town of Annapolis is not navigable about four months of the year the draw will not be required to open during that time, and only for the upriver traffic by sail or steam (which is very limited) during the navigable season.
