THE LONDON POLICE

Are Praised For the Arrests They Do Not Make.

Wonderful Results Are Obtained by the English System.

The policy of the Police Department of London is unique and differs from that of other cities in one very important particular. A patrolman, or a stable," as they officially call the mem-particular. A patrolman, or a "constable," as they officially call the members of the rank and file, are commended for the arrests they do not make. The constable who brings in the smallest number of prisoners, who appears most infrequently as a prosecuting witness in a police court, receives the highest credit. The officer who can settle difficulties on his beat outside the station, and does not trouble the police judges is considered the most capable and efficient in the performance of his duty.

This, of course, does not refer to penal offences, to burglary, lareeny, murder or similar crimes, but to petty offences, such as assaults and disorderly conduct which make up the greater part of the business of the police courts of our cities. When the London policeman finds two men quarrelling he endeavors to reconcile them. When he finds a drunken man he takes him home; when he catches a boy pilfering he talks to him kindly and cantions him not to do it again; after the second offence he takes him to one of the many private institutions for the reformation of the young, and thus protects the urchin from the stigma that a police court always leaves.

THE FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE.

THE FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE. THE FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE.

Thus the policeman is the friend rather than the foe of the people on his beat, and they know that he is trying to help them up rather than keep them down. That accounts, in a great degree, for the respect that is shown the constables in London, and for the influence they exert. Nowhere else in the world is police authority obeyed so promptly and perfectly as in London, and the criminal statistics very seldom show any cases of "resisting an officer." which is so frequent an offence in this country. Nor do you often hear of a London policeman being killed or incountry. Nor do you often hear of a London policeman being killed or in-jured in the performance of his duty. The policeman is strictly enjoined by the regulations to remember at all times that he has no personal interest to serve in making an arrest or securing a conviction of the offender. He is rea conviction of the offender. He is required to practise a self-control which would not be expected of any other occupation. He knows that he will be praised if he can settle a case out of court, and if it should ever appear that he has improperly attempted to influence the judgment of a magistrate against the prisoner he knows that he will be severely dealt with.

KINDNESS VERSUS FORCE.

The same consideration is enjoined

The same consideration is enjoined upon officers in charge of ploice sta-tions. No prisoner is treated as guilty; they act on the theory that sympathy and kindness will cure crime quicker than severity.

and kindness will cure crime quicker than severity.

When a drunken man, particularly if he has the appearance of a gentleman, is brought in by 4 constable who can not find out where he lives, he is invariably turned over to the station physician, and no charge is preferred against him until he has slept off the effects of the alcohol. Then, if he makes a reasonable explanation, he is permitted to depart in peace without suffering the disgrace of having his name written upon the book. The London authorities explain that this policy is more effective than any form of punishment. If a young man is hauled up in a police court, or if he even gets his name upon the police register, it ardens his heart, he loses his selfhardens his heart, he loses his self-respect, it makes him reckless and in-different to shame. Whereas, if he is allowed to sober up, and is released without publicity, he congratulates him-self upon "a jolly narrow squeak," and promises himself that he will never get into such a scrape again. The entire police policy is based upon the effec-tiveness of "the friendly hand."

HOW ORGANIZED. The metrapolitan police district of London extends over a 15-mile radius from Charing Cross and includes an area of 639.42 square miles, which is aid out like a gigantic chess board in to 64 grand divisions and 8,000 subdivisions. The organization is so per fect that the Commissioner of Police feet that the Commissioner of Police at Scotland Yard may know at any moment the exact place where any patrolman could be found, and a sergeant or an inspector or a fellow patrolman knows where to look for him when help, advice or instruction is needed.

There are 30 superintendents, 569 inspectors, 2,480 sergeants and 16,240 constables, making a total of nearly 20,000 men, so thoroughly organized that they are an almost perfect human mechanism, the greatest of its kind that was ever known, and their personal association with the 7,000,000 people they are employed to serve is far more intimate than that of any other police force in the world.

HOW APPOINTED.

London policemen are appointed by competition. Any young man between 21 and 27 years of age, who brings certificates of "sober habits," "honest character," "good temper" and "fewertable connections and associates." out shoes or stockings," must be "free from bodily complaint, of strong contirom bodily complaint, of strong constitution, good muscular development and careful as to personal cleanliness."
He must also be "generally intelligent, read well, write legibly and have a fair education."

their hair powdered. This "unheard of forth protests from paper saying that ored dress coats read well, write legibly and have a fair education."

Having complied with these conditions the applicant is sent to a school of instruction. There he settles down for a course of training in a barracks where he receives his board and lodging free of cost, but no compensation. His life there is similar to that of a recruit in the army. He spends three or four hours a day in military drill to smarten up his appearance, to make him stand erect, to develop his muscles, to teach him discipline and how to work with others, when help is necessary. Three or four hours a day are spent in the study of simple scientific principles to develop his mind and judgment, and give him the mental as well as the muscular training necessary to qualify him for duty. Each succeeding week the course of instruction is advanced, and the candidate finally ceeding week the course of instruction is advanced, and the candidate finally learns something of law and the penalties for its violation. After a while he is assigned only at a police station or a police court where he comes in contact with the public and the criminal classes and learns from the evidence submitted to the Magistrate how a competent constable conducts himself.

REQUIREMENTS AND PAY.

REQUIREMENTS AND PAY.

During the three to six months which a candidate spends in the police school of instruction many and perhaps most fine competitors are dropped by the way for lack of mental capacity or lack of mental capacity or lack of mental capacity or lack of pidgment or for other reasons. is entitled "Duty Hints for Constables and Section Sergeants." It is a com-pact little pocket volume of 50 pages containing a comprehensive epitome of information upon everything that policeman ought to know. The b policeman ought to know. The book contains the location of every fire sta-tion, hospital, shelter for homeless, every coroner, physician, ambulance station, infirmary, etc., and the last three pages are filled with "hints" to an officer on duty. He is admonished never to lose his temper, to answer every question civilly, never to argue with any person, never to express an opinion unless he is asked, to state all facts in favor of as well as against an offender.

In this way are the policemen of Lon-don educated, and when they join the force they expect to stay with it for life. The pay is absurdly small, begin-ning at $7.50 a week, with an increase ning at $1.50 it week, with an increase every six months until a total of $12.50 a week is reached. But a member of the service may be retired on two-thirds pay for disability or for age when he passes 62, and if he is killed or dies from the effects of injuries reon duty his widow and min .-W. E. GYPSY TOLD HIS FORTUNE

Murdered Merchant Feared That He Never Would Live to be 37.

Dead Man Was Newly Insured For $29,000 For His Wife's Benefit.

Didn't Commit Suicide-His Own Revolver Found Loaded.

Buffalo, March 11 .- Ever since the killing of John Tomalo, the wealthy West Seneca merchant, two weeks ago, rumors have been rife as to the purpose of the murder—revenge or robbery.

The inquest was held yesterday afternoon, and the verdict of Justice Bernard J. McAleese was that the man had come to his death on the morning of February 27th, "in some manner unknown to the court."

No arrests have been made; no one had even been detained as a witness.
J. C. Roberts, an assistant District Attorney, was at the inquest, and the testimony was taken to be transcribed for District Attorney Dudley.

One thing was proved, and that was that Tomalo did not fire the fatal shot himself. The wound which caused his death was fired so close that his clothing was burned. But the revolver found near the body, with every chamber loaded, was identified as Tomalo's own.

Several witnesses testified Tomalo said a "nigger" killed him. According to Joe Jaworek, the first man on the scene after the shooting, the dying man gasped: "Nigger want the money from me and he shot me."

Mrs. Tomalo testified that her husband had taken out $29,000 life insurance two months before his death, for her benefit, Tomalo had told two insurance-men that he was taking out this life insurance, because, years ago, at his home in Poland, a gypsy fortune-teller prophesied that when he reached the age of 37 years he would have great trouble and probably would die. Had he lived four months he would have been 37 years

The bartender said he was all broken up over the tragedy, and could not sleep nights, thinking of the dead man. He wears a gold watch which he says Tomalo gave him last Christmas. He admitted it had been bought for Tomalo's father, but said the old man did not want it, so it was given to him.

THE 7TH SQUABBLE.

London Much Worked Up Over Campbell's Case.

(Special Despatch to the Times.) London, Ont., March 11.—Major Beatie will be asked by the 7th Regiment officers to take up the Cotton-Campbell matter in the House at Ottawa, and also with the military authorities there, and demand an explanation of Gen. Cot-ton's conduct in holding up Major Camp-bell's promotion to be commander of the bell's promotion to be commander of the regiment. The citizens and soldiers are greatly stirred up, and the citizens may send a petition also to Ottawa, as they claim Gen. Cotton is in a position to speak, and should be made to give a valid reason for denying the right of promotion to an officer who has not only always proven canable, but is acromotion to an officer who has not ally always proven capable, but is ac-ptable to them and to his regiment.

GIRLS JUMPED.

Fire in a New York Factory Frighttened 100 Girls. New York, March 10 .- A fire which broke out late this afternoon on the fourth floor of a manufacturing building on lower Broadway, caused a panic among 100 or more girls employed there, Smoke filled the halls and cut off the escape of several, who climbed out on the narrow window ledges overlooking Broadway. Most of these were rescued by the firemen, who ran up scaling lad

Two young women jumped before the firemer could reach them. One was firemer could reach them. One was caught in a fire net and escaped with a fractured leg. The other fell into an awning, which held for a moment, and then gave way, dropping her into the arms of a policeman who was standing on the sidewalk. She suffered severe internal injuries.

The only others hurt were two young women who were burned about the head and shoulders.

Bank's Night Force.

"Yonder goes the night force to work over at the bank," remarked a man waiting for the owl car after midnight. "Night force! You're crazy!" came back the man with him. "Who ever heard of a night force in a bank?"

It was the night force and they were going to work at the bank. They start in every night at 12.30 and work on till morning. Their job is to open up all the big volume of mail that comes to a big bank and have it all distributed to the
