

BY NAMING THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICE For the New, 11th edition, of the Encyclopaedia Britannica

The Cambridge University Press places the work within the reach of the greatest number of readers.

THE CHEAPNESS OF THE NEW EDITION AT THE PRESENT RATE.

In assuming control of the Encyclopaedia Britannica the Syndics of the Cambridge University Press regarded its sale at a low price an inherent characteristic of the undertaking. To place the work within the reach of the greatest number of readers, by naming the lowest price, was, in their estimation, to be accounted an essential element of their trust. They believe that in respect of cheapness no publication can be compared with the 11th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica at the present price.

No Comparison with other Books.

A single volume of the new (11th) Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica contains some 1,000 pages, and over one million words, and is sold at $4.00 a volume in the cheapest form on thick paper. For the India paper impression only 25 cents more per volume is charged.

An ordinary book of travel, or of memories, a biography, historical or literary, a scientific manual or text book, containing from 100,000 to 200,000 words, usually costs about $5.00.

A purchaser, therefore, obtains in a single volume of the new Encyclopaedia about eight times as much matter at a less cost than if he were buying ordinary books.

To obtain an equal quantity of reading matter as is contained in the Encyclopaedia Britannica, an expenditure would be incurred upon ordinary books of over $1,000 (one thousand dollars), nearly ten times the cost.

The relative cost appears even smaller if an attempt be made to construct a list of other books that could be regarded as at all equivalent to the new Encyclopaedia Britannica. The reader would have to expend several thousand dollars and display the greatest care and knowledge before he could collect a library of books dealing with biography, geography, history, religion, law, medicine, mathematics and physics, engineering, industry, chemistry, zoology, botany, geology and the arts, comparable with the authoritative articles upon those subjects included in the new Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The accepted scale of book prices is, in fact, too different to afford a satisfactory comparison, and the only true criterion in the matter is the price of the 9th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. This was originally sold at 30s. ($7.50) a volume, although each volume contained 100 pages less than do those of the new edition, which may now be purchased (in the same style) at little more than half that price.

To the former figure, however, of 30s. ($7.50) (which may be regarded as the normal, the standard, charge) the price of the new edition will eventually be raised.

The first step towards this higher price has already been taken in Great Britain, Canada, and the United States. The original low price is, however, still available in Newfoundland but for a short period only.

Easy Payment by Small Instalments.

The expense of producing extensive publications has hitherto been minimized by the expedient of issuing them volume by volume. The sale of the earlier volumes thus provides funds for the production and printing of those that are to follow. The new Encyclopaedia Britannica has been more favoured in this particular. For the first time, the editorial labours of producing and perfecting a great work of reference were practically completed before a single volume was printed for sale. The point finds mention here only because it bears upon the fact that in the present case the reader is offered, not a portion of the work, but the whole of it, for which the applicant, though he receives the whole of his purchase at once, can pay in small sums suited to his convenience.

An immediate payment of only $5.00. The book is now at its cheapest, and the present low price may be more easily afforded owing to the institution of serial payments. $5.00 is all the immediate outlay that is required to obtain delivery of the 29 volumes, and, after they have been received, purchase may be completed in monthly payments of the same small amount. The work is, therefore, placed within the reach of all.

Should the subscriber, however, find that it better suits his convenience to complete purchase in a shorter time, he may do so by making 4, 8, or 12 monthly payments, at practically the cash price.

The 11th Edition A REVOLUTION IN BOOK PRODUCTION—THE INDIA PAPER IN SPECIAL BOOK STAND.

of the Encyclopaedia Britannica consists of 28 volumes (960—1,000 pages each) of text and an index (vol. 29) of 500,000 references, classified table of contents and lists of contributors and titles of their articles.

There are 7,000 illustrations in the text, 417 maps and plans, 40,000 articles, ranging from a few lines to 100 pages (150,000 words) or more and treating of every subject of human knowledge and interest. Its articles are the work of 1500 contributors, including leading authorities in all parts of the world and in every branch of learning.

It is a new work and not a mere revision of former Editions. It has been planned and produced as a complete whole and not volume by volume as in the past.

Full terms of the prices at which the Encyclopaedia Britannica can now be purchased in Newfoundland, can be obtained by tearing off this coupon and posting to the Cambridge University Press, Box 990, St. John's, N. F.

Address E. T. 7

Although it contains nearly 1,000 pages, a volume of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, printed upon India paper, is only 1 inch in thickness, and is light enough to hold easily in one hand. Its convenience in this respect is much enhanced by the flexible leather back, which permits the reader to double a volume back, cover to cover, as is shown in this tracing from an actual photograph.

Province of Hua Nan, Nov. 9. A state bordering on anarchy exists here owing to the desperate rivalry of the leaders who took possession of the city a few days ago. The two most prominent Republican chiefs, General Chiao and T'ing, were both murdered by soldiers to-day. They had been jealous of each other's position, and their quarrel had been taken up strenuously by their followers.

AMOI, Nov. 9. The city of Pu Chow, capital of this province, is in the hands of the revolutionists. After taking it they wiped out the entire Manchus district. Foreign settlements are not disturbed but fires have broken out in several sections of the native city, threatening its destruction. Pu Chow is one of the most important cities in the south. The situation in Amoy is quite to-day, but a serious state of affairs is threatened owing to the search for revolutionists. Most of the city's supply is gone. A revolt of troops in the vicinity of Hai, fifty miles north of this city, is causing trouble. The search for revolutionists has been hampered by the Custom House.

LONDON, Nov. 9. The Unionist members have already arranged a party meeting for Monday, and are talking about the unusual passage of a resolution in the House of Commons to take a long holiday, an unpledged unbroken support next session. This course is recommended by the Unionist members. The King ought not to go to India with the succession to opposition undecided. Not even the extremists, who have been proclaiming that Balfour must go, are pleased for the crisis has come prematurely. An alternative suggested that Balfour go to the Lords. Balfour, however, has been spoken of as a leader in the Commons.

Zam-Buk Cured His Sores

Cures Also Chapped Hands and Chills.

Mr. Chas. Hardy, of 558 Hom Street, Winnipeg, says: "My elder son has proved the value of Zam-Buk and we would not be without a supply in the house. He had both ears so badly frozen that we became alarmed for fear they should have to be amputated. His ears were swollen to several times their usual size, and were very much discolored. Large blisters formed and then these burst and painful sores on both ears resulted. The sores mattered, scale formed and the boy suffered terribly. The preparations which we first used were found next to useless. In fact the wounds grew steadily worse, so we then tried Zam-Buk and found a great improvement in one or two applications. We continued with this herbal balm until the scales and foul matter were cleared away thoroughly, and healing began. In a week from first using this excellent balm the lad's ears were almost well again. In three weeks you would never have known his ears had been frozen, so well has Zam-Buk brought about healing. Here is but one illustration of scores how superior Zam-Buk is to other salves. It also cures chapped hands, chilblains, piles, inflamed sores, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin injuries and diseases. On account of its purity and its herbal composition it is the ideal balm for babies and young children. All druggists and stores at 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., upon receipt of price. Try also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. per tablet."

Had Enjoyable Outing. The College Company of the Church Ladies Brigade enjoyed their annual outing at Donovan's yesterday afternoon. The outing which is each year given the boys by the Rev. Edgar Bowring proved to be particularly enjoyable this year. The company left the city at 2:30 p.m. in uniform and made a quick tramp of it to the hotel. A sham battle took place shortly after arrival in which half of the company were the attackers, while the rest defended the "position." Other sports were indulged in after which a sumptuous dinner was served, full justice being done to it. The ladies returned to the city at 8:30 and all were very thankful to Mr. Bowring for affording them such an enjoyable time.

Shannahan Tucker and The Cute Man at The Theatre.

Tucker, the Cute Man and myself went to the play last night. We had a tough job to get the Cute Man to pass Jack Rossley's, as he put up a rather strong argument, and said, "Now, if we go to the play 'twill cost us 60c., and if we go to Rossley's we'll save 30c. of that, and be just as well off when 'tis all over."

But Tucker treated his argument with contempt, dragged his pipe a little harder, and kept on.

We arrived at the box to buy our tickets, the Cute Man hung on till he saw there was no chance of roasting one of us, and then he parted with his shilling as if it were his only daughter going to Nova Scotia. We secured seats well in the front, and gazed on the reserved seat people as they sat in and we were much amused. There's more to be seen at a play than the actors on the stage; there are many side-shows to afford you interest and amusement if you are gifted with ordinary perception. People going in on the reserved seats walk differently from those of us who stroll in in the pit. The very fact of your knowing that you are going in on the reserved puts a feeling of reserve all over you, 'till you're likely to trip in a match. People that were there once or twice have told me that you mustn't laugh too loud, or clap a man when he deserves it, they leave that to the 'pit' crowd, and though they enjoy the performers when they come forward the second time, still they'd never be called out if 'twas left to them to do it.

Tucker looked around the pit and said to me, "Why, there's scarcely a face here I know, what a change from old time."

I didn't want to be bothered talking to him so I failed to answer him. The Cute Man was procuring a chew of the weed from a fellow next him, when he was informed by the genial doorkeeper that producing tobacco juice was strictly prohibited.

"Not much like old times," says the Cute Man, "why I was in the 'Old Hall' when you could float a twenty ton schooner after the first act. Times are changing," said he, "and we'll soon be told 'tis unhealthy to breathe more than thirteen times a minute. What do they manufacture the stuff for?" says he, "why the same crowd of gentry who are growling about spitting, and holding meetings chewing the rag about it, are the same people who are drawing large dividends from the factory." "Inconsistency," says the Cute Man, "thou art a jewel where dollars and cents are concerned."

The play went along nice and smooth, and the lover, after being in a lot of 'hot water,' came out on top in the end, and all were happy. What a change 'twould be if we could see a play where the villain won at the finish. They often win in real life, and why they don't get an odd chance in the drama puzzles Tucker a bit.

The Fat Man at the Bells is a "howler" in every sense of the word, and an entertainer that pleases, but his "Then, then, then let her go" is getting a bit stale. "Would be refreshing to hear him say 'Now, now, now, let her go,' next week. The dancer will cause you to smile, whether you like it or not, except you remember what you owe, and you should always forget that when you go to a place of amusement, it doesn't do a bit of good and only makes those around you unhappy. He is a dancer without a doubt, and his comical expression helps to increase his popularity; he's not too funny, either, and we are glad of that, for the 'too funny' man has a short life in this community.

"Most people," said the Cute Man, "when they come around here to play think we're a kind of green and are out to get scared and laugh at anything. These people pay for their experience, for they generally leave by express a little earlier than they had arranged, and take second class tickets, too."

The acrobat is a wonder, "down on the dead level he's a howler," says a young fellow with a butt of a cigarette hanging out of a scalliony tooth. No one should miss the chance to see this act. Tucker says he'd make his fortune as a politician, if he hung on here, for 'tis the slightest thing on his knuckle to twist himself inside out.

The fellow who comes out to thank you for taking your money can talk like a "Phil Markey," but, thank goodness, he knows when to quit, and doesn't jaded you till your jaws go asunder yawning.

We will not further delay your Excellency.

We sincerely wish Your Excellency a safe trip, and we hope you and your suite will have an enjoyable run over the first line to Bonavista.

On behalf of the inhabitants of English Harbour, we are, Your Excellency's humble and obedient servants.

Henry Geo. Batson, Martin Bugden, Gilbert Bugden.

The run from Port Rexton to Catalina is about 18 miles. The country for the most part level and the running is easy. The train stopped at the station when the latter town was reached. His Excellency was invited to the Parish Hall where Mr. Fred Somerton, J. P., read an address from the people. The hall was crowded, and when Edmund J. Ryan, J. P., of Trinity, called for cheers they were given with enthusiasm. Catalina looked at its best and suggested its old time prosperity in its houses and shipping which were decorated with flags all over the harbor.

A run of a little over ten miles after the proceedings at Catalina were over completed the journey to Bonavista where the train arrived at 4:30. The shipping, public buildings and residences were bedecked with flags. The Governor was escorted to the Fishermen's Hall by a delegation of the people where the following address was read by Magistrate John Roper. His Excellency replied at considerable length and expressed the pleasure that it afforded him to take part in the function. Sir Edward Morris spoke briefly at the close of His Excellency's speech.

Following is the address read by Mr. Roper:—

BONAVISTA.
Address of Welcome to His Excellency Sir Ralph C. Williams, K.C.M.G., Governor, Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its dependencies, on the occasion of his opening the Bonavista Branch Railway.

May it Please Your Excellency.—A quarter of a century ago a protest was sent from this town against the proposal of the Government of the day to build a Branch Railway to the town of Placentia, prior to the extension of the Railway system to Bonavista.

The protest was disallowed. The branch to Placentia was built, and for twenty-five years we have not been able to participate in the general progress of the Colony.

This day unfolds a new epoch in the history of the development of the resources of our town and peninsula. We can no longer lament our isolation in winter, nor the consequent detriment to labour and capital.

Our business men are, from this date, in a position to give the advantage which immediate purchase makes possible to the public.

Our workmen are now able to go and return without the ill-chances and hardship incidental to a seventy mile walk to the Trunk Line.

Our home industries and farm products will profit by the stimulus that a ready market affords. All accessories are brought within reach, and the tremendous gain of a ready outlet for all our fishery products is realized, and we hope that this improvement in travelling facilities will be appreciated and utilized not only by the people of this town, but also by all who may wish to visit that part of the seaboard, which first gladdened the eyes of Cabot, four hundred years ago, and gave to this place the name of "Bona Vista."

We take once more this opportunity of voicing our abiding Loyalty to the (See 7th page.)

The Kidneys Wear Out

But in advanced years you can keep these organs healthy by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

As old age comes on most people suffer more or less from derangements of the kidneys. With some there are years of pains and aches, with others Bright's disease sets in and the end comes quickly. Fortunately many have learned about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and are enabled by their use to keep the kidneys healthy and active.

Mr. Richard Preston, Osborne, Lambton County, Ont., says: "I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills when my back was so bad that to stoop or rise was torture to me. The pills were in bad condition, but these pills entirely freed me of back pains. I have used them ever since, whenever the kidneys would get out of order, and now, at eighty years of age, well and hearty, thanks to this grand medicine."
