LONDON, March 27.
The calling of a second cabinet meeting to-day added to the uncertainty over the ministerial and army situation. Field Marshal French and General Ewart were again summoned to the Premier's house, where Mr. Asquith and his colleagues conferred with them. Both officers were calm as they left Downing Street. The Cabinet broke up shortly afterwards Mr. Asquith leaving accompanied by his daughter. When he reached the House of Commons he received a tremendous ovation as he rose at five o'clock to make his statement.

The resignations of French and Ewart have not yet been withdrawn and the Premier, after deferring his statement twice, was able to announce to the House only that the Government were still awaiting the views of the Army officers to the Cabinet's request that they remain at their posts. The Premier said that matters in question were involved in great complexity and difficulty, and turned to the Government to require full consideration. A partial or provisional statement would be unsatisfactory. Sir John French and Lieut. General Ewart, Adjutant General of the forces, had intimated their wish to be relieved of their offices. Mr. Asquith said, because of a difference between their views and those of the Government as to the conditions under which an army should serve, it should be employed to aid the civil powers, but having issued a memorandum to Brigadier General Gough they thought this course insistent upon them. The Premier then added that the Government has conveyed its wish to them that as there is no difference of opinion as to any ground policy, they should not persist in a request, the carrying out of which the government would consider as a serious misfortune both to the Army and State. We are still awaiting their final reply.

Those two gallant officers, continued the Premier, believed that in the circumstances they were justified in believing that their action was in accordance with the instructions of the Cabinet, and that they were transmitting those directions to the officers concerned. It is clear to us and them, that there has been a misconception as to the intention and purport of the proceedings in Ireland, out of which these difficulties have arisen. In view of those misconceptions, and to obviate the possibility of their recurrence in future, the Army Council has to-day, Field Marshal Sir John French and Lieut. General Sir John Buller, and the General Staff, determined to issue a General Order which is headed "Discipline," and has three articles, as follows:—

- (1) No officer or soldier shall, in future, be questioned by his superior officers as to what attitude he will adopt, or as to his action in event of his being required to obey orders dependent upon future hypothetical contingencies.
- (2) An officer or soldier is forbidden in future to ask for assurances as to orders which he may be required to fulfil.
- (3) It is the duty of every officer and soldier to obey the law.
