Lord Rosebery's
Warning.

The Earl of Rosebery took the chair at a lecture on Belgium given in the Parish church of Temple, a village near Edinburgh, and close to the Rosebery estate. Proposing a vote of thanks to the lecturer, he said in those days it did not do to reckon whether news is good or bad. One had to set one's teeth and go through the day's work, whatever news the morning might bring. That was the spirit we had to face. Never in the whole history of the world was there a more disastrous or infamous action than that of Prussia in regard to Belgium. There was something else that we might learn from this chapter of history besides the fact that it was our duty to take up arms to vindicate our honor and our signature to the treaty which Prussia had torn up. "If the Prussians were ever to land on these shores—I draw a distinction between Prussia and Germany—the scenes which have been enacted there would also take place here. I will go further. They would be a hundred times worse, for although the Prussians had no such grudge against Belgium when they devastated that country, they are devoured by a furious and insensate hatred of this country. Let us take this to our hearts, and souls, and consciences. It would involve the destruction of our empire and of all we hold dear at home. They have drunk to the day of our humiliation for years past, and now that we have acted as the obstruction of their plan of getting to Paris, ravaging France, and then having time to destroy Russia, their hatred to us is one hundred fold what it was. They no longer carry on war as they did in 1870 against France; they have gone down in the name of the culture they pretend to extol. In 1870 I remember well, they made civilized war; now they make bestial and barbarous war. Well, if that be the character of the war, you must remember that it might come here. There might be a raid (I do not think there could be much more). If there was a raid it would be accompanied by all the savagery and all the barbarism that the Prussians have displayed in Belgium. The responsibility lies on all of us to prevent that. We cannot all be heroes, like the King of the Belgians, but we can, at any rate, do our duty to avert from this country the horrors that have taken place in his kingdom. There is not an able-bodied man in this country who would not go to his grave with shame if he had not lifted a hand to prevent such a thing!"

Several of the applicants who had enlisted during last week underwent the necessary medical examination and a large percentage of passes was secured. Drills were conducted at the Armouries and the progress made by the recruits is quite satisfactory.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—Nov 17, 11

Who Killed Olga Carew

To-day the Crescent Picture Palace has an all feature picture programme, the headliner "Who Killed Olga Carew?" is a baffling mystery drama in two reels, written and produced by Walter MacNamara and made by the L.M.P. Photo Play Co., who are famous for the excellence of all their pictures. "The Trail of the Silver Fox" is an Eclair drama enacted in the wilds of Western Canada; the photograph of this feature like all Eclair work is perfect. "Mike and Jake Among the Cannibals" is a lively joker comedy. Mike and Jake are cast ashore on an island and are captured by the Cannibals. How they manage to escape is shown in this very funny reel. Max Asher and Harry McKay feature in this comical picture. Mr. J. O'Neill, Parrell, the popular baritone, made a big hit in his introduction of Cabaret Picture Singing. Mr. Parrell sings the same song to-night. Go to the Crescent and hear him.

Cream of Tartar

Many people use cream of tartar for quick baking. They value its superior qualities and will not knowingly accept substitutes made of alum or lime phosphates, such as are sometimes offered.

But even the most careful cannot always know. The high price of cream of tartar has led to efforts to substitute alum and phosphate of lime compounds which are vastly inferior and not as healthful to use.

The easiest way in which the housekeeper can be sure of quality and economy is by using Royal Baking Powder, which is made from pure cream of tartar.

Royal Baking Powder gives perfect results, is less trouble to use, and has not been advanced in price.

Anyone who has once become accustomed to using Royal Baking Powder never reverts to home-made mixtures or any other product for raising biscuit, griddle-cakes, doughnuts, or cake.

Grand Entertainment
at Petty Harbor.

Under the auspices of Rev. J. and Mrs. Hewitt a concert in aid of the Patriotic Fund was held in the Parish Hall, at Petty Harbor, on November 25th, which, to voice the public opinion, was the most successful ever held here.

The performance opened with a Patriotic Address by Mr. Henry Bishop who expounded very forcibly the duties incumbent upon and the righteousness of our Motherland in entering this war, and those present were given a synopsis of the progress and an assurance of the ultimate success that must eventually attend the wagers of such a just cause.

The opening chorus: "Red, White and Blue" was magnificently rendered and brought forth a burst of merited applause. Next was a solo entitled: "Dear Homeland," by Miss E. Legge whose vocal ability was the subject of many flattering comments. The following recitation: "A Soldier's Grave" was rendered, with much feeling, by Miss A. Payne as to bring a glistering tear into the eyes of many—tears of pride for those noble heroes who are maintaining the cause of Righteousness in the present campaign. Mr. Bishop now sang, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" and the fact of its being used as a National march song by our Allied armies, is evidence enough of its popularity; full justice was done by Mr. Bishop and he was encored amidst thunderous applause. Following this was a Dialogue in which the Misses May, Dorothy and Alice Bishop acquitted themselves very creditably, and all were eloquent in their praise of the abilities of "the sisters."

This was followed by the chorus: "Newfoundland" by the troupe, after which Mr. Herbert Westcott, our local comedian gained much applause by his splendid rendition of "Fou the Noo." The next was a solo: "The Soldiers of the King" by Mr. W. A. French, our talented and energetic teacher of the R.C. School, who, by the way, has only been a short time amongst us, and who we all feel assured will always fill a foremost place at all subsequent concerts here, and will always be the right man in the right place. After which Miss D. Bishop, whose capabilities as an elocutionist are well known, recited the pathetic lines of "Somebody's Darling." Next was the French National Anthem, as a chorus, and was rendered in good style. During the interval which followed, candies were disposed of which considerably augmented the proceeds.

After the interval the Misses Stack and Legge and Messrs French and Westcott were seen in a comic sketch entitled: "The Masterpiece," and Miss Legge's personation of the "Negress" was all that could be desired. Miss Lucy Chafe now admirably displayed her vocal ability in the rendition of "Sing Again That Sweet Refrain," followed by another of our local talent, Miss H. Stack who rendered the solo: "The Songs My Mother Used to Sing" very creditably. Mr. Westcott again treated the audience with another comic selection entitled: "The Wedding of Sandy MacNab" which to put it figuratively brought down the house. The next item, and one that reflected great credit on the performers was a solo: "In the Harbor of Home Sweet Home" by Miss C. Ewing, a lady from the city, who so kindly rendered her valuable assistance. The following recitation: "The Cry of the Belgian Children," by Miss Legge, was very impressive and graphically described the desecration of the Belgian innocents by the perpetrators of Prussian Militarism. The next was a solo entitled: "Where Are the Boys of the Old Brigade," at which Mr. Bishop scored again and added fresh laurels to his many vocalistic successes, and many were the eulogies accorded him upon whose shoulders devolved the material success of the entertainment. Following this was a dialogue entitled: "Bosting Cure," in which Miss Payne and Messrs. Hughie, Chafe and Westcott played their parts admirably and loud and long was the applause accorded them. "Killarney" was now sung by Miss Stack, the success of which could be judged by the practical demonstration that followed. After which Mr. French gave us a comic song entitled: "His Day's Work Was Done," the rendition of which in his happy and perfect style so charmed the audience that he had to appear again and again. Then followed as a chorus: "Tenting To-night," succeeded by "God Save The King" which was rendered with much patriotic feeling by "tout ensemble."

The programme was repeated the following night and again the spacious hall was crowded to overflowing. The music furnished by Miss Hewitt was of an unusually high standard and reflected great credit on our skilful pianist. Many thanks are also due to Mrs. and Mr. Pynn who so generously placed the use of their piano at the disposal of the performers, and also
