A THIN EXCUSE!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There are some people who seem to place their hopes of Heaven in other people's failure to keep true to ideals. A queer deposit, isn't it? And to my mind about as safe as a cardboard box would be for a safety vault. Perhaps you don't at once recognize the type I mean.

I mean the sort of person who explains his failure to become a Christian by pointing to some of the people who profess to be Christians and don't do the same any honor.

"What do I want to belong to the Church for?" he will say. "Look at Mr. M. Did you ever see a meaner skinflint? And he's a deacon. No thank you. I've no use for such hypocrisy."

Or a woman will say, "When I hear some of those Ladies Aid women gossiping I'm glad I don't belong to any Church."

As if that were anything to boast about. She might well be glad if she didn't gossip, but she probably does. Only she feels she has a license to do so because she has never been willing to place the restraint of a public pledge to higher ideals upon herself.

Not to fall below ideals because you haven't any is no particular credit.

That's No Reason You Shouldn't Try. Because people who profess to be Christians aren't all they should be, doesn't justify you one bit for being afraid to even try. And it is furthermore greatly to your discredit to persistently judge any movement by those who disgrace it instead of those who honor it.

In my morning paper the other day I noticed that the Executive Committee of the Russian revolution posted a proclamation condemning acts of violence supposed to be committed by revolutionists. "Only madmen or enemies of national liberty are capable of such revolting acts which might compromise the Russian revolution," said the placard, and went on to appeal to the people to prevent a repetition of such acts, remembering that the high ideals for which they stand might be judged by them.

Why Not Judge The Cause By Those Who Honor It.

Every cause from Christianity down has within its ranks those who disgrace it in one way or another.

To judge the cause by these few is like judging a beautiful garden by a few weeds.

And to think that you are excused from pledging yourself to the ideals for which any great movement stands, because some who have pledged themselves fail, is the pettiest and most childish form of self blind-folding.

At the Yarmouth Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp, held at Tuskett Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, an immediate relief for colic and toothache.

SAKES.

The snake is a successful form of sudden death which descended from the Garden of Eden after causing a family row which has never been improved upon to any extent since. There are 12,715 different varieties of snakes, most of which leave a very distinct footprint upon the human anatomy when investigated at close range.

The most deadly snake known to the medical profession is the cobra. Nobody knows who first discovered the cobra, as he did not live long enough to write it up. The cobra is a small, agile reptile which grows in the jungles of India and attacks man or beast in a noiseless and efficient manner. The elephant hunter who has been bitten by a middle-aged cobra which is in a despondent frame of mind, will not have to worry about the next stop for dinner unless he is protected by six-ply leather leggings and a copious supply of hard liquor.

The garter snake is always popping out of a rose bush.

The boa constrictor is a well-developed snake with the chest expansion of a champion swimmer taking an examination for life insurance. This reptile is not equipped with a stinger, but prefers to wrap itself around its victim and interrupt his breathing for a day or two. The boa constrictor is a dainty eater, seldom swallowing anything smaller than a milk cow, after which it curls up and sleeps until the following spring. When in this state it can be attacked with impunity with a repeating rifle at a distance of 2,000 yards.

The most venomous American snake is the rattlesnake, which is the only musical member of the family. Before landing on the biceps of a visiting guest this snake shakes its rattle in a shrill, menacing tone and then advances with rapid footsteps on its tail. When the rattlesnake gets a firm hold on somebody who is not armored from the hips down, he will know that something unexpected has happened without waiting for the evening edition.

The garter snake is perhaps the most unpopular of our domestic animals, as he usually makes his home in the flower garden and is always popping out of a rose bush with his glittering red tongue working on all four cylinders. The garter snake cannot bite and destroys many injurious insects, but he is hunted down with great industry and a hoe, while the poodle dog, which destroys nothing but enamel, is treated with the utmost respect. This teaches us that life is full of injustice.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Please tell me what I should do with my wraps when entering a restaurant. I have just moved to the city and this experience is new to me," inquired Thelma.

"A woman may leave her wrap in the cloak room, or if it is a very small one, she may prefer to keep it around her shoulders while at the table. She does not remove her hat. At the table she unties her veil, if she wears one, or merely pushes it off her face and readjusts it at the conclusion of the meal. Her gloves she takes off directly after she has seated herself and replaces them before rising from the table," were detailed directions given her by her sophisticated cousin.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. May 23, 17

RESPONSIBILITY.

WALT MASON

Oh, Kaiser Bill, with hands so red, you cannot shift your load of blame; you were not driven, forced or led—you broke your way into the game. There would have been no war, Red Bill, no other monarch sought a fray, but you were hot with lust to kill, and drank a flagon to "The Day." Had you but said, "Let war talk cease," no legions would have marched to die, and we would see the dove of peace, where now the battle pennons fly. But you for carnage were athirst, and "War Lord" dreams disturbed your sleep, and now your butcher's name is cursed of wherever soldiers' widows weep. As horror mounts on horror's head, and famine makes your people thin, you wish your hands were not so red, and while that your's is not the sin. But all the weary world is bored when you endeavour to explain that you were loath to take the sword, and strove for peace, and strove in vain. Your built your war machine to kill, Your built your war machine to kill, wrecked; admit the truth, oh, Bloody Bill, and gain some fragments of respect.

Your Boys and Girls.

If the little one will not eat her porridge, do not force her to consume it against her will. Very likely the resentment in such a case would cause a dangerous state of indigestion and to the child harm. This is an opportunity to use diplomacy. Get the porridge bowl that has upon the inside some pretty or quaint little figures that will be covered with the porridge when the bowl is filled. Name the figures so that when the little one decides that she does not wish to finish her porridge she can be induced to do so because little Billy and Susie, Tower or Naira (according to what the figures may be) may be able to get a clear space enough to look at their small-mistress.

Another device when a child does not wish to drink the milk that is necessary for its health's sake is to play "soda fountain." This is done by allowing the child to drink the milk through a straw. Not only will it be fun to drink the milk but the milk will be taken in such small quantities that there will be no danger of indigestion.

Why Do You

put pictures you value away unframed in some cupboard or press where you never see them from one month to another?
