The Editor's Sentiments.

Local Contributors Please Note.
A weary Australian editor once wrote the following for the benefit of his "Constant Readers":—
In the Molten Hotel, in the Sulphuric Glade,
Where the temperature's nine-ninety-eight in the shade,
There's a thrice-heated chamber, dug out with a scraper,
For the fellow who writes on both sides of the paper.

Where the billows of brimstone delightfully roar,
And the geyser's flaming red cataracts pour,
There's a blistering bath, in a cauldron of flame,
For the chump who neglected to sign any name.

In Saltpetre Avenue, close to the Pit,
Where the vitriol reservoirs splutter and spit,
There's a bed on the griddle that never gets damp,
Prepared for the chap who encloses no stamp.

—John O'London's Weekly.

Press Briefs.

Would Be Too Bad.—It is to be hoped that President Wilson is not seasick and unable to enjoy the freedom of the seas.—Quebec Telegraph.

A Woman's Art.—Attracting attention and then appearing to be unconscious of the fact is an art with some women.—Indianapolis News.

A Desirable Union for Some.—After all, the union which most of the domestic helpers would prefer is matrimonial union. Eh, what?—Hamilton Herald.

And They Did Sign.—We'll never sign. Maybe we'll sign. We'll sign with reservations. We'll sign. The Germans always did have a habit of using a lot of unnecessary words.—Buffalo Express.

A Big Factor.—Heine declares that he made peace because of the fourteen points. A few million bayonet points had something to do with it, also.—Greenville Piedmont.

Otherwise a Success.—All that Bolshevism in Russia lacks of being a success is something for the people to eat, something to wear, and something to do.—Arkansas Gazette.

What's That?

Proletariat.—In a modern sense the class of wage-earners. The proletariat was formerly considered to be the lowest class of the community, the people with no stable means of life or certainty of income; practically the "submerged tenth." The word has its origin in proletariat—the Roman designation for the very lowest division of the population, deemed to be only useful to the nation as the parents of children.

Scylla and Charybdis.—Two sea-monsters who, according to Homeric legend, dwelt on opposite sides of a narrow sea-strait. Ulysses passed between them, and Scylla snatched six seamen from his ship. The names have been applied to a couple of rapids in the Strait of Messina. Thus the proverb: "To shun Charybdis and fall into Scylla."

Autonomy.—Self-government. The word, too, is often used to designate the characteristic of the political condition of ancient Greece, where every city or town community claimed the right of independent sovereign action. The British Dominions enjoy a self-government which may be described as a modified form of autonomy.

Volplane.—The action by which an aeroplane glides or coasts without making use of its power.

Yaboo.—A savage being; the term is culled from the race of brute creatures in Swift's "Gulliver's Travels."

Stabat Mater.—A hymn on the Crucifixion in Latin, opening with the words "Stabat Mater," significant of the grief of the Virgin Mary.

Plenipotentiaries.—Delegates or representatives having full powers for carrying out negotiations, signing treaties, or making peace or war. The powers to hold by plenipotentiaries are called Plenary Powers.

Preference (Imperial).—A system of tariffs on imports, whereby goods from the British Colonies or Dominions will be given advantageous terms over those from foreign nations.

ROUGHING IT IN A "CARLINGTON."

Roughing it, where the roughing it is roughest—tracking round the lakes—up the mountains—on a long hike—anywhere you go, the CARLINGTON will prove a goodfellow pal worth taking along—an un-wettable barrier between you and the weather.

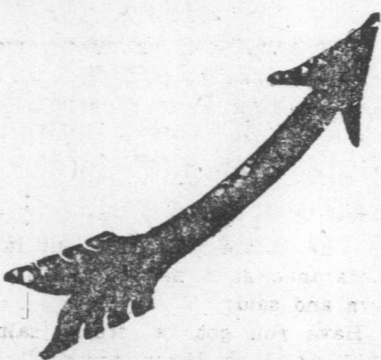

When you tighten the belt around your CARLINGTON before you get after your dinner—hunting it—fishing it, you just don't care what kind of weather comes, because you know the CARLINGTON will never back down from your Guarantee. The oiled silk lining in this Master Trench Coat just keeps the rain sliding off the duck's back—and that's where you fool the rain. And the thickness of the wool cloth that goes into every CARLINGTON, and the fine lining close to your backbone, gives you the nice, warm feeling that you get inside your winter coat—and thought you couldn't get inside of anything else.

It feels so good to be inside this Prince of Rain Repellers while the weather man is working overtime outside—and you with your belt tight and your big reefer collar tickling your ears, you act like a kid with a new toy.

Guess you won't worry much about roughing it on vacation once you hitch up with a CARLINGTON.

For any old job—motoring, camping, hunting, fishing; for any old weather, rain, hail, snow—the CARLINGTON will so fit into your scheme of things that you'll find it as handy as a medicine chest—and you'll bring it around with you wherever you go, just because you feel safe having it with you—a pal you can depend on when the whole blamed world seems to go crooked on your week-end!

We'll have a private showing of the CARLINGTON for you—BUT, DO IT NOW!

Keep Your Powder Dry.

(From the New York Herald.)
Premier Clemenceau revealed the heart of the whole peace situation in Europe when he laconically said to the Council of Three, as Germany's comment to sign was announced:—"Be careful! Keep your powder dry!" There is a world of wisdom in the remark of the wise Frenchman. He knows the "Reiter's dogma" and it makes no difference to him whether the man's name is Bismarck or William II, it is still the same Reiter of the Middle Ages surrounded by soldiers and drunk with pride. No wonder Clemenceau united with his joy and satisfaction over "Der Tag" the solemn warning:—"Be careful! Keep your powder dry!" Supporters of the covenant may be naive Clemenceau for his evident lack of faith in the proposed League of Nations. Their criticism, however, need not worry him. He knows that even in the new era of universal brotherhood peace with Germany must be an armed peace. And by his insistence upon what may be termed a League with the League—a defensive alliance between France and Great Britain and the United States—he had previously made clear what he thought of the efficacy of the League.

two she could distinguish all the colors of the spectrum. One month later she was discovered in the act of humming Schubert's "Serenade," and at three and one-half years she could recognize 100 popular airs. Three months later Edith's favorite composers were Tschalkowsky, Wagner, Leoncavallo, Handel, Rubinstein, Liszt, Sullivan, Puccini and Beethoven. Edith could pronounce all these names without stop.

Clouds.

"The height maintained by clouds is very variable and is generally less than you might suppose," writes Jean Henri Fabry. "There are clouds that lazily trail along the ground; they are the fogs. There are others that cling to the sides of moderately high mountains, and still others that crown the summits. The region where they are commonly found is at a height varying from 500 to 1,500 metres. In some rather rare instances they rise to nearly four leagues. Beyond that eternal serenity reigns."

Latest Infant Prodigy.

The latest "infant phenomenon" came from Philadelphia. Her name is Edith Gruenberg. At the age of eight months Edith, from the confines of her cot, mimicked the call of the quail with such conviction that the bird answered back. At the age of
