Empire a people who desire to remain. The Government would probably cling to office even if its Heligoland scheme were defeated, but this is merely because it is so maimed, battered and generally wrecked that it would be sheer suicide for it to attempt to fight a general election. No such battered and derelict hulk has been seen in the breakers of British politics for many years. In truth, the Tory-Unionist hybrid Ministry has received its death-blow, and this is so clear that the question exactly how long it will continue to cumber the earth has become one of secondary importance. The present plan is to abandou as much contentious matter as possible, and try to finish the session up by the middle of August if they can bear the strain.

Travels of a Piece of Glass.

About eleven years ago a young daughter of Mr. Robert Wilson, Eden Mills, ran a piece of glass into her heel. The child grew up, and at times her foot pained her but nothing serious transpired. Five years ago, as the child had become a woman, she was married to James Boles. About a month age the piece of glass caused her pain, and after poultieing the spot at the ankle, where the trouble appeared to center, the piece of glass showed itself and was taken out, and no bad effects have resulted therefrom. Toronto Carnival Inaugurated-Twelve Bands Do Simultaneous Tooting.

TORONTO, June 30.—The carnival festivities opened successfully this evening with a great promenade concert on Jarvis street. The street between Queen and Bloor streets, a distance of a mile and a quarter, was crowded with people from 7 o'clock till 11 o'clock, promenading up and down on the sidewalks or on the asphalt roadway (all vehicular traffic on the street having been suspended for the evening) listening to the music of the bands. The houses and grounds on both sides in almost every case were festooned, Chinese lanterns giving a decidedly attractive appearance to the street. The whole effect was enhanced by the electric lights. The city bands playing were twelve in number. Very many visitors from the country around are in town, and the streets are gaily decorated and crowded with people.

Christine Nilssen Has Become a Reck loss Gambler.

Minneapolis, June 30.—A letter from Stockholm, Sweden, says Christine Nilsson has been stopping in Nice for some time and her presence has been one of the attractions of the place. No end of gossip and surprise has been occasioned, hower, by the fact that Nilsson is a helpless worshiper at the gambling shrine. She has become fascinated with play and the most of her time is spent in Monte Carlo. She plays feverishly and loses at times large sums. Utterly indifferent to her losses she watches the glittering coin upon the tables, buoyed up with the hope of winning fabulous sums. Nilsson has undergom remarkable change. She is showing age and begins to look emaciated. A grayish pallor now overspreads her once heautiful face. She is also silicted with deafness. As a songstress she will never appear in public again.

One of the most pleasant features of the evening was the presentation to Mrs. Langford of an address and purse containing $40, which was presented by Mrs. Childs, Mrs. Gordon Wright reading the address. It expressed the regret which the departure of Mrs. Langford would cause the congregation. In every department of church work her removal would be seriously felt, and the Ladies' Aid and Woman's Missionary Society would feel her absence keenly. In the Sunday school Mrs. Langford's efforts had been untiring, and her diligence would be missed, while in the church class her place could hardly be supplied. Her own rich spiritual experience was a living witness of how bright and joyous were the lives of those who lived continually under the sunshine of God's smile. The address concluded as follows:

Dragged to Death.

A sad accident has occurred in Westminster township which resulted fatally, and which from its attendant circumstances stamps it as a peculiarly sad one. A young man named Charles Hartfield, residing with Mr. Wm. Routledge, about a mile this side of Lambeth, went out the other day with the hired man, seated on a wagon loaded with telegraph poles. The horses took fright and ran away, and Hartfield became in some manner entangled in a chain. He was dragged on the ground for over a third of a mile, receiving terrible injuries resulting in lockjaw, from the effects of which he died yesterday. Additional sadness is lent to the fatality owing to the fact that his parents and sisters left last fall for San Diego, Cal., for the benefit of their health, learing Charles with Mr. Routledge. They formerly resided in South London, where they are well known. Charles was a promising boy aged 16. The shock to his relatives when his death is announced may well be inagined. His funeral takes place on Wednesday.
