The Six Months' Hoist.

A. B. C., a Rosedale correspondent asks:
When a bill gets the six months' hoist, can it according to Parliamentary rules be reconsidered before the six months expire? [The six months' hoist postpones the consideration of the bill six months from the time the motion is made,
and is intended to carry the consideration beyond the end of the session. It can't be reconsidered till the time expires. When it does expire it is again upon the order the time the session should last that long.— fair show.

We do not think the Western Fair people are at all neglecting the work of making known and booming our great exhibition. They will no doubt do their level best, and they should be aided by the citizens, every one of whom ought to be a volunteer advertising agent of the Western Fair. The Toronto and Detroit fairs are advertising extensively in the London papers, making a specialty of the splendid weekly circulation of the ADVERTISER. They know buttered toast when they see it. If outsiders, whether cities or private firms, are allowed to run away with the plum of advertising advantages open to all, they are not to be blamed for their enterprise, but rather commended.

London District Methodists.

The financial meeting of London District of the Methodist Church was held yesterday at the village of Lambeth, Rev. W. McDonagh, as chairman, and Rev. G. W. Henderson, secretary. Sixteen ministers and thirteen lay members answered the roll call. The meeting commenced at 10 a.m., and during the morning session had under consideration the contingent fund appropriation, which was apportioned to King Street and Queen's Park churches. The one domestic mission (Hamilton road) of the district occupied a considerable portion of the same sitting. After enjoying the hospitality of the friends on the Lambeth The ministers of the Sabbath schools and two representatives from each school as delegates to be billeted. A committee was appointed to make all the necessary arrangements. After a very hearty vote of thanks to the Lambeth friends the meeting adjourned, a number staying over until the evening, when by request the Rev. George Boyd, of Queen's Avenue Church, preached and conducted an evangelistic service in the village.
