SUMMERS WON AT HOME

English Boxer Has Science and Good

London Sporting Life: Although it was extremely unfortunate that the American, Rouse O'Brien, was unable to meet Johnny Summers on Monday evening, the entertainment presented at headquarters lost nothing in the way of interest. were 201, 279, 215, 241, 209, 229,

Franz is bowling champion of Cleveland, and it is a peculiar fact that since he recently wrested that honor from its former holder, his stunts with the pins have far exceeded all his former performances, though he always was a crack bowler. Franz had a previous mark of 213 as a seven-game average, and that was acknowledged as the high mark. It was never beaten. Now he has boosted it so high that there seems little likelihood of its being outdone. In his second game, in which he rolled 279, one lone pin left standing in the first shot of the fourth frame was all that stood between Franz and a perfect 300 score.

At the Ohio tourney at Canton several years ago he rolled 738 in three games, an average Franz is a natural bowler. He
