Oats also were scarce, and brought a $5 30, the general run of prices for medvery good price. The price for old oats was $1 61 to $1 63, and for new $1.45 to $1 50, and the majority were sold at the $150, and the majority were sold at the higher prices. A couple of loads of straw were offered and sold for $6 50 to $7.

Dairy produce was also staple. Eggs sold at 20c to 20½c by the crate, and 21c to 22c by the dozen There was practically no change in vegetable prices, and the supply was not large. The tomato supply was unusually small for this time of year, and as a result the prices remained strong.
