YOUTHFUL BURGLAR ACKNOWLEDGES GUILT

Harold C. McKellar Stole From East Zorra Farmer—Caught at Ingersoll.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Woodstock, March 11.—Harold C. Mc-Kellar, aged 18 years, believed to come of a good Toronto family, this morning pleaded guilty, before Magistrate Ball, to having broken into the residence of John Walker, 10th line, East Zorra, and stolen several pieces of jewelry.

The burglary was committed on Tuesday, and in the evening High County Constable Hobson was notified. He asked the police of surrounding town forces to be on the look out, with the result that the wanted man was arrested in Inger-

McKellar was remanded for a few days, in order that his record, if any, may be investigated. When arrested, he had in his possession two gold watches, three razors, a gold ring, $1.60 in silver and other articles, all belonging to Mr. Walker, to whom they have been return-

A UNIQUE SERVICE

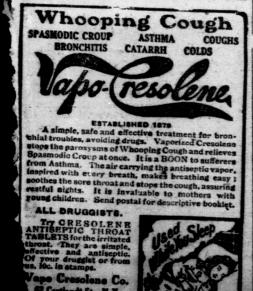

Eastern Orthodox and Anglican Churches To Join.

[Canadian Press.]

Bridgeport, Conn., March 11.-A religious service, unique in its character, will be celebrated in St. John's Episopal Church here tomorrow night, when Eastern Orthodox churches will join with the Anglican. No such service has been held in this country. It is thought here that not since A. D. 900, the year of "the great schism," have these churches joined in a similar service. Portions of the service will be in Russian, Greek and English.

ESTIMATES NEXT WEEK

Controllers Have Big Task Ahead of Them-$132,000 Asked by Engineer.

Next week members of the board of control will don their breastplates, shoulder their spears and gird up their loins or the annual attack on the estimates. The different departments have nearly completed the work of estimating the year's expenditures, and the lists will show increases in practically all lines of civic spending. The city engineer's department will ask for $132,916, an increase of $22,174 over last year. The operation of the department in 1913 showed a deficit of $4,610, as a result of unforeseen extras in the way of street oiling, street cleaning and other small works. The extra amount asked for this year is to take care of even greater extensions of the street cleaning and oiling, and includes $9,134 for the puroose of putting city bridges in good shape.

Argument was concluded.

On December 6 Chief Justice Meredith gave judgment against the county for $1,000 in an action brought by George Weston, of Nissouri Township, for damages for injuries received by the upsetting of his sleigh on a county road the previous February. He claimed that the accident was due to the negligence of the county in not having the road in a proper state of repair. The county set up the contention that the road had been repaired in accordance with the pro-vision of the Ontario highways act, and when judgment was given in favor of the plaintiff the county council decided to enter an appeal, and also sent a deputation to the Ontario Legislature, asking for a change in the law, so that when a road was repaired in accordance with the highway regulations the county should not be liable for damages. WALSH EXPOUNDS

NO PROGRESS IN WORLD

So-Called Modern Inventions Not New, He Says-Hobble Skirts in Vogue Long Ago.

"There is no progress in the world there never was progress and there never will be," said Prof. James J. Walsh M.D., Ph. D., of Fordham University, in one of the most interesting and brilliant addresses ever delivered before the London Canadian Club, at luncheon in the Tecumseh House today, on the subject of "Education; How Old the New?" Dr. Walsh in beginning his address, observed how opposed to the popular idea that the world is progressing, his subject was. But where was there progress? he asked. In what did the moderns excel the ancients?

In literature, the modern world had no writers to rank with the world's three greatest writers of all time. Homer, Dante and Shakespeare, or even with the world's second five, Aeschylus, Sophocies, Virgil, Milton and Goethe. The mystery of suffering, the mystery of the inadequacy of life, where were there writers who had dealt with it as did Job. Aeschylus in his "Prometheus," Shakespeare "Hamlet," or Goethe in "Faust."

Turning to architecture, the modern world had evolved nothing new in 400 years. The latest was the architecture tion, does not indicate that the proposal of the Spanish-American priests on the Pacific coast, and even this was an adapation of something older Times' building was an imitation of Giotti's tower. Where were there modern buildings to compare with the Temple of Karnach, the Mosque of Omar, now the Cathedral of Santa Sophia. or Michael Angelo's dome and temple

What had science accomplished that was really new? Anaesthetics and anti-septics had been discovered five or six undred years ago, and been forgotten. What was new in philosophy? vas there thinking so wonderful as that of the Greeks? James Huneker the other day had called Bergson "the plowboy of modern philosophy, and styled Pragmatism a philosophy for the Philistines. Old-New Inventions.

"I am a modified evolutionist," who desired to vote should be given Dr. Walsh. "There is not a single bit lution. We have only the feeling that it must be true.'

Dr. Walsh closed by interpreting the legend of Paris, who gave the golden apple of Discord to Venus, the goddess of Love, because she promised him the

CURIOSITY REVEALS

It was almost by accident that the discovery of the body was made. Peter Grace, 268 Thames street, the man who made the gruesome find, was walking over the York street bridge when his attention was attracted by a couple of men who were looking over the railing into the water "My, but that stone looks like the body of a dead child," remarked one of the men to Grace. Fell Into River.

"I'm going to see just what it is," was Grace's reply, and he proceeded down the bank to the river. Grace attempted to hit what he thought was the stone and in doing so fell into the river. The young man then waded out into about four feet of water, and in touching the object found that it was the body of a child. He brought the body ashore and Police Officers Harpur and Singleton with the motor ambulance were summoned. The body was later removed to Griffith & Wilsie's undertaking parlors. Coroner Ferguson was summoned and after viewing the body ordered that a post mortem be held at noon today. Coroner Ferguson stated that the body had been so mutilated before it had been placed in the water that it was impossible to distinguish the sex. The body was also covered with some kind of tar substance. No clothing was on the child.

Seen For Weeks Past. The Advertiser learned last night that citizens having occasion to cross the York street bridge had noticed the object in the river for the past week or so and more than one person was heard to remark that the supposed stone closely resembled the naked body of a baby. When Grace found the child it was lying face downward in the water.
