TRIUMPH.

S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald. At last my hopes were realized, My doubts had set me free; hat which I o'er all else had prized The fates had given me.

The love of all mankind I'd won, Likewise unstinted praise
Was given all that I had done
In fair or trying days.

And then I rubbed my eyes and sat With feelings sadly stirred; It was my funeral sermon that I dreamed that I had heard.

CITY WOODYARD OUT OF BUSINESS.

Has Fulfilled Its Mission for the Winter.

IT IS NO LONGER NEEDED.

Wood and Coal Dealers Will Retail Fuel at Reasonable Rates - The Approach of Warm Weather Means That Little More Will Be Required - Municipal Yard Has Been a Blessing to the City Poor.

With the close of the month the municipal wood and coal yard will come to an end for the winter as far as the public are concerned. Mayor Beck decided on Friday to close the yeard after a consultation with Relief Officer McCallum. Nearly all the wood that has been purchased under contract has this now been delivered, and, in fact, there are only about forty more cords come in. This will all be required in the relief department, which will, of course, be kept in operation until the indigent no longer need any fuel to keep out the winter cold

The authorities feel that the stress of the situation is now over, the backin addition, the ordinary wood mer- purchase or not. chants announce that they can now sell wood at reasonable rates. The mission of the municipal yard is there fore at an end, and with the approach of the warm weather there was no longer any need for carrying it on. The wood yard has been in operation since October 24 of last year, and has been a great blessing to those who were unable to pay the high prices for coal that were demanded by local dealers during the winter months. It has caused a great deal of extra work for the officers of the relief department but they have carried it out with the greatest cheerfulness, and have given the public splendid service during the months that the yard has been in operation.

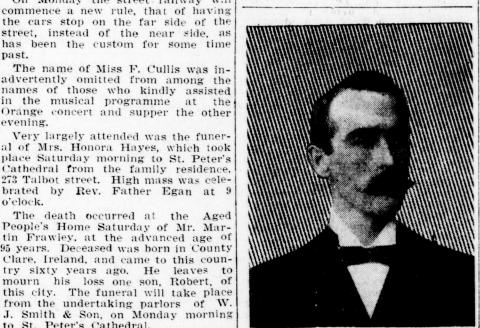

The yard has been a valuable experience for those having the work in charge, and if the necessity arises next winter for once more opening it, they will be able to operate it with even greater efficiency and satisfaction to all concerned. The yard has been a blessing to the poor of the city, and its success is one of the many things to which Mayor Beck, who has been particularly interested in its progress, can point with pride.

This was most interesting, since it showed the cause to be one of marked progress from the first to its present efficient and aggressive stage. During the evening Mrs. Brown, soloist of the Talbot Street Baptist Church, sang a number of solos, and delighted the audience. Mrs. Case, Miss Richmond and Miss Cook furnished readings and recitations, which were very highly appreciated. The choir of the Mr. C. J. At the conclusion of the programme the collection plates were passed, and the people placed upon them the handsome sum of nearly $240. Fifty dollars of this amount was given by the Ladies' Aid of the church.
