But partly for that very reason, and on general principles because it is "government work," workmen are often lax in collecting their wages when they become due. It has been discovered that it is not beyond the fower of an unscrupulous or insolvent contractor under the present system, to escape the payment of wages and leave his workmen without the redress they would have in ordinary cases. A bill has been introduced by the Attorney-General to remedy this abuse, which is certainly not general, but of which isolated instances have occurred. The protection of the company with the interpretation of a smelter of 1,000 tons capacity at any time in the immediate future. The government knows this. The properties of the company are not mines at all; they are prospects some good, and some bad. Therefore, the statements made in the advertisements of the company may be set down at once as monstrous under the present system, to escape the payment of wages and leave his workmen without the redress they would have in ordinary cases. A bill has been introduced by the Attorney-General to remedy this abuse, which is certainly not general, but of which isolated instances have occurred. The protection stances have occurred. The protection stances have occurred. The protection necessary is given first by enabling the government to pay claims for labor out of moneys or securities belonging to the contractor, and he'd by the government; and second, by compelling the contractors to file with the government before the 15th of every mouth a statement under oath showing the condition of their payroll to the end of the previous month.

Stracting five dollar instalments from small investors; and whose assets, so far as immediate profit earning capacity goes, might as well be non-existent. Mr. Oliver is unable to see the object of the company unless it is able to do so. We can see the object of the company very clearly. It could immediately use its correspondence with the government as advertising material. That correspondence could be utilized to give the advertisements of the company si each, including insertion in the Daily government to pay claims for labor out of money or sequificable roll to the end of the previous month.

A very excellent feature of the bill is the fact that the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may retain out of subsidies.

That correspondence come me unized to give the advertisements of the company an air of verisimilitude, which it must be confessed they lack at present. Mr. Oliver read a great many letters and tolerons in connection with this company in the connection of the previous month.

For him there are none of the excuses which might lead us to understand the possible befooling of some farmer in New York State. He lives in a mining cointry. He knows, or he ought to know that the thing is inherently absurd, to say nothing more. We should like to know what the Leader of the Opposition thinks of his new recruit, and whether he is going to adopt the cause of that new recruit. The connection of Mr. John Oliver with the Olalla Copper Mining & Smelting company might be treated jocularly, but it is no laughing matter that men elected as representatives in this country are capable of being led away from considerations of business common sense in such an extraordinary fashion; while if a political party, even such an aggregation as the present opposition, gives countenance to such "gold briek" schemes tion as the present opposition, gives countenance to such "gold brick" schemes. now on earth are we to maintain any security at home or reputation abroad?
