Peculiar Accident. Recently a seven-year-old daughter of Simon Corkum, of Mount Pleasant, while attending school, accidently fell with more than half a slate pencil in ber hand. When she arose only a small portion of the pencil was seen, and much the larger part had dia-appeared. It was observed that she had a slight out on her right cheek below the eye, the ball of which was somewhat misplaced or forced upwards. Dr. F. S. Measenger was summoned, and on examination, placed the child under the influence of ether, made an incision below the eye, and with much difficulty extracted the missing piece of pen-cil 2½ inches long, which in the child's fall had struck her cheek, glanced upwards, en-tered the socket below the eye, penetrating its entire length. The eye is nearly well, and no injurious resulthas followed.—Bridge-water Enterprise. FRUIT & PRODUCE MARKET P. M.
