

van and the Bishop of Nova Scotia respectively. After the Nicene Creed, the hymn "Christ is gone up" was sung, and then followed an appropriate and powerful sermon by Bishop Sullivan.

His Lordship took as his subject the teaching of the day, and referred at length to the progress and success of the missions of the church, both foreign and domestic. He urged that they be supported together, as they reflected upon and helped each other. The church had been called upon, he said, to select a head for the Diocese of Algoma. "Give him your prayers. He will need them all sorely. You are sending one of your own brethren to take care of the flock. Do not forsake him. He will need your assistance." Addressing the bishop-elect, he said, "You are undertaking a difficult task in taking charge of the Diocese of Algoma. You will see doors open and be unable to enter, and harvests whitening without means to reap them. I don't speak to dishearten you, my brother. You did not seek the appointment, but after careful consideration, decided to accept the office as a call from God. Trials will come upon you, but you must be strong. At times your friends and the church may seem cold and disposed to turn against you, but keep up courage, and wait upon the Lord at all times, especially in your days of trouble. Continue your work with a stout heart to the advancement of the church."

At the close of the sermon, the Bishop of Montreal, acting as Metropolitan, under a commission from the Archbishop of Ontario, took his seat in front of the altar, and facing the congregation. The Bishop-elect was presented by the Bishops of Fredericton and Ottawa, and the record of his election at the recent session of the provincial synod was read by the Dean of Montreal, Prolocutor of the Lower House. The Litany, with special suffrages, was then sung by Rev. E. A. Dunn, chaplain to the Bishop of Quebec, after which the acting Metropolitan, the other Bishops standing round him, and the people likewise standing, put the customary questions, which were duly answered by the bishop-elect, and offered the special prayer that he might have strength and power to perform all his sacred promises. The Bishop-elect then retired to put on the rest of the episcopal habit, and, on his return to the sanctuary, he knelt before the consecrator, while the "Veni Creator Spiritus" was sung. Thereafter followed the most solemn and impressive part of the whole, when the acting Metropolitan and the other Bishops laid apostolic hands upon the head of their new brother, and in the name of God set him apart for the work and office of a bishop in the church of God. The Bishop of Montreal then delivered the Bible into the hands of the newly-consecrated Bishop, and addressed him, still kneeling, in the words prescribed in the ordinal.

The bishops now returned to their former places, and the offertory began, during which was sung the hymn, "As with gladness men of old." This was followed by the usual order for the Holy Communion, with only this deviation, that just before the benediction another special prayer was offered for the new Bishop. The procession retired to the vestry singing the hymn, "To the name of our salvation."

At the close of the service Bishop Thorneloe was presented with a handsome pectoral cross, and an address, beautifully illuminated. The address was read by the Ven. Archdeacon Roe, D.D.; and the cross was hung on the breast of the new bishop by the Bishop of Quebec, with the words, "In hoc signo vinces."

In the evening there was a largely attended service in the cathedral, at which Bishop Thorneloe preached an eloquent sermon, appealing for aid for his new diocese, and referring with feeling to his new duties and responsibilities.

Residence—Quebec.

Miss Mabel May Rolt White, eldest daughter of Lieut.-Col. G. R. White, and Major George West Jones, of Caverhill Hall, St John, N.B., were married in St. Matthew's church on January 6th. The event had been the leading topic of conversation in society circles for some time past, and consequently every available space in the church was occupied long before the hour fixed for the ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and a detachment of 50 men from the 8th Royal Rifles, in command of Capt. H. Lamb, lined the aisle through which the wedding party marched. The wedding was a military one, the groom and all the officers attending the wedding appearing in the full dress uniform of their respective corps. The bride entered the church leaning on her father's arm and accompanied by the following ladies, who acted as bridesmaids: Misses Beatrice White, Caverhill-Jones, Edith White and Eileen White. The groom attired in the full dress uniform of the 3rd regiment of the Canadian Artillery, had arrived a short time before, and was attended by the following groomsmen: Mr. Fred. Caverhill-Jones, Capt. Macdonell, Major R. G. Leckie and Mr. G. S. Troop. The ushers were Mr. W. G. Scott, Capt. Wood, Mr. Reg. Patton, Mr. Simeon Jones and Mr. J. J. Sharples. The Lord Bishop of Ottawa officiated, assisted by the Lord Bishop of Quebec, Rev. W. L. Williams and Rev. G. Scott. Among the guests were Hon. Mr. and Madame Laurier.
