

gery by the destruction of infecting germs on instruments, dressings, the hands of the operator, and the skin of the patient, and the rooting out of the causes, not effects, of yellow fever, ague, beri-beri, cholera, the plague, the sleeping disease, bilharziasis, etc., etc., and then recall the blatant language of B. J. Palmer.

But there is something even better than the quotation just cited. Here it is, from page 5: "Here we possess to-day, you and I, common, ordinary people, the dust of the road mixed into mud, and made into man—minus all this hard-earned education, minus the European post-graduate courses, minus the years and years of study, and the thousands of dollars spent on them, and minus the concensus of opinions and ideas of century upon centuries—we chiropractors with chiropractic possess the knowledge of all diseases. We possess the key that opens the bars to the insane brain—and what a multitude of conditions insanity comprises. We possess the knowledge of the cause of cancer—the thing that many others are spending millions for; we possess the knowledge of the cause of tuberculosis; we possess the knowledge of the cause of Bright's disease, of diabetes, of rheumatism, and what not. Clear through the entire category of possibilities of names. Just think, here you are, in the little time of twelve months, at an expenditure of $250, getting the thing that thousands are spending thousands and millions of dollars vainly trying to get, and you are getting it in a nutshell, in little time, with little effort, at little cost, with little labor here, and here, right at this time and now, you and I. Think of it."

Yes, think of it, all ye men of science! For $250 in money and twelve months of time you can learn about diseases "clear through the entire category of possibilities of names." You poor benighted men of science that work for years in the laboratories, or walk the wards of hospitals year after year, are wasting your time and your money. Make a visit to Davenport, come under the teaching of B. J. Palmer and his associates, and, of course, pay over $250, just to bind the bargain, and forthwith you will be shown the true road to the discovery of all the causes of diseases. Sell your microscopes and culture ovens as scrap to the junk dealer, dispose of the horses used to produce serum to the nearest carting company; and turn the key in the door of the kennel where the dogs are kept for the treatment of rabies, first turning on carbon monoxide gas. In lieu of this sort of research, learn how to twist the spinal column, and find out how to do the toggle trick, and toggle the recoil. B. J. Palmer will tell you all this for $250, as per his pamphlet of 1915.

But it is best to let B. J. Palmer state the case. On page 5 we read: "If a man could demonstrate beyond any question of a doubt that he had
