THE IPISH LAND LEAGUE.

Rep's of the Agitators to the Government.

NOT AFRAID OF THE MARINES.

ME FINGS IN THE COUNTRY.

(From the Dublin Freeman.)

A casual, Land meetings were held on Sommy, at which some of the speakers reterred to the action of the Government, in s ding troops to the West to intimidate the prople, in spirited and defiant terms. The following are the reports:-

BALLINTUBBER.

Oh Sunday a very largely attended meeting was held at Ballintubber, a village about four miles from Castleria. Contingents arrived in military order from Castlerea, Ballymo, Ballinakill, Williamstown, Glenamaddy, &c. The Ballyhaunis and Kilcavan bands were present. Government reporters noted the proceedings. A large body of constabulary, under the command of Mr. Newell, S.I., and Captain Wynne, R.M., attended, carrying their rifies. Banners bearing the followin mottoes were borne in the different precessions—
"The Land for the People," "God Save Ireland," "Behold the Dawn of Freedom," "Remember '98," &c. Opposite the graveyard was a banner bearing the motto, "Let Tyrants Remember the Grave.

Mr. M. O'Connor, tenant-farmer, was moved to the chair. Mr. James Vough proposed the following resolution-"That we hereby record our unalterable determination to carry on the land movement with increased vigour until our object of making the tiller of the soil the owner thereof shall be accomplished, and with a view to that much-desired result we hereby pledge ourselves to support the branch of the Irish National Land League that has been here

Mr. B. Kennedy seconded the resolution. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, in an able speech, proposed the next resolution-

"Resolved-That we hereby condemn the action of the English House of Lords with regard to the Compensation for Disturbance Bill, as being diametrically opposed to the real spirit of the British Constitution, and we that effects institution.'

Mr.J. P. Finigan (Williamstown) seconded the resolution.

Mr. M. M. O'Sullivan, who was enthusiastiment (cheers), and also to pledge anew their determination never to take a farm from which another had been evicted, or which had been surrendered from any cause whatever (cheers)--A Voice—Spread the light.

Mr. O'Sullivan-To pledge themselves never to work upon these farms, or to buy cattle or any other produce which might be and organising until they had all the workwould, without doubt, be able to drive the idlers from the land (cheers).

A Voice—To h——— with them.

The speaker, in referring to the recent action of the House of Lords, said he never had much dependence on Parliament to settle the lrish land grievance—he depended only on the people themselves to do their own work (cheers). The resolution spoke of abolishing that institution, but it was only by practical work in the country that it could be done (cheers). The House of Lords was composed principally of men whose only qualification was that they were landlords (hear, hear). They meant to abolish landlordism as an Irish institution and they called upon the democracy of England to assert their manliness on this occasion and sweep away for ever the necessity of an English hereditary chamber (loud cheers).

A Voice-Away with them. Mr. O'Sullivan-They in Ireland could do away with landlordism in another way. They could refuse to pay rent pending a final settlement of the land question (loud cheers, and cries of "We won't"). In conclusion, he advised them to band together to refuse to pay rent, and if any man was evicted to call upon all the tenants to abstain from paying rent until he was reinstated (loud

The resolution was carried.

Mr. O'Connor proposed—
"Resolved -That we shall regard any man who will prop up the crumbling edifice of landlordism by taking land which has been rendered accursed by being the scene of an eviction as a social outcast, to be shunned by all, and viewed with feelings of abhor-

Mr. J. W. Walsh, in seconding the resolution, said the time had arrived when the people of Ireland should assume the attitude of men, not slaves (cheers). They had come there that day to demand a final settlement of the land question. The only solution of the land question was that which would make the cultivator of the soil the owner (cheers). They thought up to the present they had had too much big words and too little work (cheers). The settlement of the land question rested with the people themselves (cheers). Notwithstanding the threats of the British Government they were determined to have their rights. They (the Government) had tried to intimidate them by sending marines to the west of Ireland to shoot down the people, but come what would, follow what might, the platforms during the last eighteen months not reinstated.

A Voice-That's plain talk (cheers). Mr. J. M. Nally then addressed the meeting, denouncing those who had countenanced and supported informers.

The resolution was adopted thanks was passed to the Chairman, after which the meeting separated. KEADUE.

On Sunday a meeting was held in Keadue, which is about nine miles from Boyle, County Roscommon, with a view to denouncing the system of jobbing in meadows and grass lands. About four or five thousand persons assembled around the platform, and the Boyle, Carrick-on-Shannon, and Ballyrush bands were present. The chair was occupied by Mr. James Cull, President of the Keadue Land League.

Mr. Thomas Moran, Ballyfarnon, proposed the first resolution-

"Resolved-That no settlement of the land question will ever be accepted as final or satisfactory by the Irish people save one that will secure to the people the ownership of the land the cultivate."

Mr. Mark Healy seconded the resolution. Mr. Thomas Brennan, Secretary of the Irish National Land League, who came forward amid applause, supported the resolution. He said: In coming here to-day and travelling through the county of Leitrim, I was think-ing that the last time I had the honor of addressing the men of that county; it was when the Government of England brought me to Carrich-on-Shannon to answer to the charge of having used "wicked, seditious, and ma-licious language." Yes; we did use seditious language (cheers) against the power of land-lordism, which had so long crushed the people, and we will continue to use seditious ianguage and to be guilty of seditious acts against the system that degrades labor and ennobles idleness, until that sedition shall ripen into revolution against landlordism, and the whole infernal system go down before the might of Ireland's awakened manhood (cheers). We want to create a social revolution in Íreland-I do not mean a bloody revolution-blood enough has been shed already, the blood of a couple of millions of our people, by Irish landlordism. But we want an uprising of all that is just, manly, and patriotic in the country against the system that has been robbing and plundering you. Irish landlords have been robbing and plundering you from your cradles. They have been robbing you of your birthright, your native land, and they have been robbing you of that independence which should raise men above the dumb-driven cattle that the American poet asks us not to be (cheers). From the time that you have been able to handle a spade you have been working for the benefit of the landlords-you have been working when you should have been cultivating your minds and preparing to take a creditable part in life's battle—you have been working in order to supply your-selves with the mere necessaries of life, and to supply the idlers with all its luxuries. Worse than all, you were taught that it was your duty to do this-that God created you merely to work and starve, and be the slaves generally of men who are your inferiors in everything but what the world calls birth (cheers). You were taught that it was a sin will willingly clasp hands with the English | to murmur against your poverty, or to strike democracy in agitating for the abolition of at the cause of it. We want you not to crouch down to your landlord, or to any other man in the community (never, never). This land that you tread on is yours. You have as much right to the land as you have to the free air. eally received, said they had assembled for of heaven, and any man who comes forward the purpose of furthering the land move- to take from you the fruits that you have raised from that land, you ought to treat him as a robber and a plunderer (cheers). The work of education must go on in Ireland until the humblest peasant—1 don't like that word, "peasant"-until the humblest labourer in the country shall recognize that he was born with the same rights as the peer (cheers), and that it is an insult to the God who made him, and that it is sedition against the law of your rights you must act in an independent manner—there must be no begging for rights -you must act with a manliness that will strike terror into the hearts of the enemies of the people. We have evidence offered by every country in the world of what a determined democracy can do. Now, we want that determined democracy in Ireland. By the democracy of a country I mean every man who works, who lives on his own earnings, and not on the earnings of others, and I say it is his duty as well as his interest to combine against the class that is taking the nation's good away—that is, taking its wealth away—and giving nothing in return (cheers). I am not going to tell you that this can be easily accomplished. This revolution cannot be worked in a day, but it will take time > from the power of Irish landlordism. A Voice—Shoot them.

> Mr. Brennan—You must strike at the system everywhere it raises its unhely head. The landlords are entering into a conspiracy against your rights, and you must enter into a conspiracy against their power (cheers.) But you must have organization-the men of every parish must be thoroughly organized, and ready to act as one man, and then let the word go forward of a general strike against rents, good, bad, and indifferent, until that question is settled (cheers. We have up to this advised you not to pay an exorbitant rent-we may soon ask you not to pay rent at all (cheers) until you bring the landlords to their knees, and then you will soon settle the question. You are not bound by any moral law to pay what your farms have not this year produced. The battle ground of this social movement is, I helieve, not in the English House of Commons, but on the Irish hills and on Irish fields, in Irish cabins and in Irish workshops (cheers). And I believe your represantatives would much mora serve the cause of the people by coming down amongst their constituencies to teach them what are their rights, and organizing them for the purpose of asserting these rights, than in is the report of the Government Analyist on walking around the streets of London or even writing essays on the land question for

We ought to be very much from the hungry wolves and greedy cormor-obliged to these worthy citizens for their ants called landlords, and keep a firm grip on action, and I don't know whether we ought their homesteads. As one who had pretty not to pass a resolution of thanks to them good experience of the progress of the move-ment since its initiation, he knew the bene-fits to be derived from an organized people imagine that their lordships would play so (cheers). He had asked them from many directly into our hands, for every action of this kind but rouses the people, and I have to pay an exorbitant rent. He now asked little doubt but that these gentlemen_I will them, in case a tenant had been evicted in so call them—will find that they have erested their neighborhood, not to pay the evicting a flame for the destruction of their political landlord any rent until such tenant had been and social power (cheers). This is a movement of the people for the people's benefit, and you should not be waiting for what are called "leaders" to do your own work. It a burglar goes to rob you, you don't wait for a member of Parliament to come and kick him out (laughter and applause). Mr. Brennan read the advertisement of "Horz for the lists from Ottawa to the Field Battery pic-

In conclusion, he expressed a hope that no robber would be allowed to steal the fruits which their labors had produced from the soil (cheers).

The resolution was carried.

Mr. T. M'Loughlin, Crossna, proposed—
"That we, the people of Roscommon, Sligo, and Leitrim are convinced that the system of jobbing on grass lands and meadows is a great obstruction to the settlement of the land question, and that the methods adopted for sale by tonder and auction stimulates competition for land which is an encouragement to eviction, and we condemn this system as being most injurious to the interests of the tenant-farmers."

Mr. F. Beirne, Carrick-on-Shannon, seconded the resolution, which was supported by Mr. Jasper Tully, and adopted.

Mr. O. Judge proposed the last resolution—

" That owing to the all but total loss of the potato crop we pledge ourselves not to surrender our harvests to the landlords, and thereby save ourselves from the effects of another famine."

Mr. Meehan seconded the resolution. Mr. P. J. Sheridan, Tubbercurry, supported the resolution in an eloquent speech.

The motion was passed. A vote of thanks was tendered to the chairman, and The proceedings terminated.

LISGOOLD.

On Sunday a well-attended land meeting was held at Lisgoold, near Midleton, to protect against eviction.
The Rev. Mr. MAHONY, C.C., presided.

A deputation from the Cork branch of the Land League attended, and the members addressed the meeting.

Resolutions were adopted condemning the action of landlords who dealt harshly with their tenants, calling for an improvement in the present system of land tenure in Ireland, and also pledging every farmer in the dis-trict not to take possession of land from which his neighbors had been unjustly evicted.

Some of the speakers, referring to therejection of the Compensation Bill by the his barn. House of Lords, expressed their hope that that institution would soon be abolished, and urged on the people the necessity, as they alleged, for agitation with the Radical population of England for its abolition.

This is the first meeting held in the county at which neither policemen nor Government short-hand writers attended.

Dr. Leeming in the Maritime Provinces.

OPINIONS OF THE PEOPLE.

Accorning to announcement, Dr. Leeming ectured in the Market Hall last night on Daniel O'Connell, under the auspices of the Benevolent Irish Society. The hall was crowded, and we think we express the sentiments of every one present when we say that finer intellectual treat we never listened to. The learned lecturer held the audience spell-bound for over two hours, and at different stages of the lecture he was rapturously applauded. He related the early history of Daniel O'Connell; referred to the disadvantages under which, as a Roman Catholic, he labored, in consequence of the penal code; gave reminiscences, which delighted the audience, of his career at the Bar-particularly of his powers of cross-examination; entered into a minute analysis of his extraordinary solve that they would never cease agitating and organising until they had all the workthe history of the agitation for Catholic emancipation, and in language which no pen could portray, and which sent a thrill through the audience, described how he compelled the English Government, led at the time by Peel and Wellington, to sanction that crowning act of his political life. He next referred to O'Connell's agitation for repeal, to his arrest and imprisonment, and to the Irish famine, which broke down O'Connell's energies and frustrated all his plans. We believe that there is not an orator on this side of the Atlantic that could throw the same power and pathos into a speech wich the rev. lecturer did into his beautiful peroration, when describing the close of the great liberator's career, and the melancholy circumstances attending his death at Genoa. We have great pleasure in bearing testimony to the fact that Dr. Leeming fully sustains the great reputation that preceded him here. He is a splendid platform speaker, and appears to have all the qualities necessary for a great orator. He ad'nt turned the second sentence before we felt we were in the presence of a man of genius. It made one think of the great orators of a bye-gone age to listen to him. We may say, in conclusion, that the lecture was extempore, the learned lectured never having referred to a note except while reading O'Connell's address to the electors of Clare. The thanks of the community are due to the Irish Society for having, even for one night, secured the services of so brilliant and powerful a speaker. A grander tribute, we believe, was never paid to the genius and patriotism of the great liberator of Ireland, and the friend of oppressed humanity in all quarters of the globe. W. C. DesBrisay, Esq., Vice-President of the Irish Society, occupied the chair. Several clergymen were present, among whom we noticed Rev. P. Doyle, Rev. James MrDonald, and Rev. Charles McDonald, of Georgetown. - Halifax Chronicle.

A modern Jack Sheppard was captured late on Saturday night 22nd inst., at Montreal, by Detective Richie, of the Montreal police. His name is Maxime Chaput, a French-Canadian, eighteen years old, powerful, short, thick-set, and clever. He has served several terms in gaol, and his last exploit was the robbery of eight or ten houses during at many days of this month. Among the places he burglarized were those of Messrs. Nuttal, 152 St. George-street; Henry Holland, Sherbrookestreet; Mr. Campbell's, Palace-street. The most villainous of all his acts was that committed on Friday night last at the residence of Mr. Cadieux, Dorchester-street, where he stole some $500. worth of jewellery and then set fire to the place. Mr. Cadieux was asleep at the time with his wife and three children, who narrowly escaped being burnt to death, as the adjoining room to their bedroom was very badly charred before the family were awakened. The detective force has been watching Chaput several days, but he has eluded them by lying in hiding in the Mountain Park during the day, and spending the nights in burglarizing. He was captured in the Cafe St. Marie, and had a cordon of police not surrounded the building he would have escaped. When confronted by the detective he jumped from the window and came down from gallery to gallery like a cat.

The Halifax correspondent of the Globe of the 25th says:—It is rumored to-day that an arrangement which I reported to the Globe some time age, to provide for the retirement of the Minister of Justice from the Dominion Government, has now been consummated. Lieutenant-Governor Archibald is to have a place of some kind in connection with the Pacific Railway business, Sir Wm. Young is to be Lieutenant-Governor, and Mr. Mc-Donald is to become Chief Justice of Nova Scotia. Mr. O'Connor will retire to a Manitoba judgeship about the same time. Dalton McCarthy or some other Ontario member will become Minister of Justice, and Mr. Daly, of Halifax, will enter the Cabinet, succeeding Mr. McDonald as a Nova Scotia representative and Mr. O'Connor as an Irish Catholic representative. It is believed that it was with a view to these changes that Mr. Daly assisted by Mr. McDonald, made a movement in Halifax lately. That move, however, was only successful in showing the weakness of Mr. Daly's position, and the part of the programme which assigns him a place in the Cabinet will not be carried out without grave consideration, if at all. It has long been the desire of the Government parly to get Sir. Wm. Young out of the way, to make way for Mr. McDonald as Chief Justice, but Sir William has been very determined hitherto in holding on to the office. If his consent to a resignation has been obtained, as now rumored, and provision can be made for Governor Archibald elsewhere, Mr. McDonald's re-may be looked for. . On Monday evening, while the excursion-

tirement from the Ministry at an early day on board the steamer to return home, a shooting affray took place, which came near resulting seriously. It appears that sometime in the afternoon while the pic-nic was in progress, some of the excursionists visited the residence of a Mr. Fitzgerald, a wealthy farmer in that locality, and created a disturb-ance. There was no further notice taken of the matter until the picnickers were on their way from the grounds to the boat, which led them past the residence of Fitzgerald. Edward O'Brien, who was in company with two ladies and a gentleman, was passing in front of Fitzgerald, and the latter deliberately walked forward and fired a revolver at O'Brien, the ball entering his left arm near the elbow, and passing out struck him on the left side, inflicting a flesh wound. After firing the revolver Fitzgerald did not make any attempt to escape, but stood prepared to fire again in the event of any one offering to lav hands upon him. O'Brien, who was so suddenly taken unawares, after recovering his presence of mind, wanted to return, but his friends prevailed upon him to quietly go on board, and leave the matter in the hands of the authori-ties, which he did. O'Brien can give no reason for the dastardly attempt on his life. As far as his assailant is concerned he does not know him at all, and says that he had no-thing whatever to do with the row at his house. It is expected that the Buckingham authorities will take action in the matter.
