

have discovered a huge deposit of valuable raw material in the Nenets tundra, hundreds of kilometers from Nar'yan-Mar.

The honor of the discovery belongs not only to the geologists, but also to the work team headed by Mikhail Gavrilovich Rud'ko, a master specialist in drilling from the Khoreiver Petroleum and Gas Prospecting Expedition.

He has been working in the Arctic for more than twelve years and he has completely mastered his profession. We found Ruk'ko and his comrades in high spirits. They had just completed their annual work plan two months ahead of schedule and had already begun drilling the next well. And these drillers are clearly convinced that the deposit that they found in the spring will not be the last one that fate has in store for them.

Pravda

2 January 1988

Page 2 (full text)

Having familiarized herself with the results of the survey, the chairman of the local chapter of NVSFS at the steamship line, Ms. Galina V.