

189. Participation in a trade fair is an exhausting challenge to perseverance and ingenuity. Although solo fairs require the utmost in canny management, all exhibits impose a strain on available resources. They are a lot of work, but the results in the majority of cases testify to the worth of this type of trade promotion.

***

Original 8 March 61