

The Governor General

governor general upon his arrival in the morning. However, there will be seats reserved in the senate for all hon. members, and if the house meets at 11.45 a.m., the formal notification will be made, and hon. members may then proceed to the senate, and will find their seats there and have the same seats for the purposes of the assent to the bill. I move:

That when the house adjourns, it stand adjourned until 11.45 a.m. to-morrow.

Mr. STIRLING: May I ask whether this arrangement is contingent on the bill passing in another place?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Yes, the assent is, of course. On the other hand I believe it would suit the convenience of hon. members to meet here in any event at 11.45 a.m. and proceed to the senate, where seats will be provided.

Mr. HARRIS (Danforth): Seats will be provided, but not at the bar of the senate?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Well, the bar of the senate is being visibly moved a little further forward so as still to preserve the arrangement with respect to the bar of the senate. There will be a bar, all right.

Motion agreed to.

At eleven o'clock the house adjourned, without question put, pursuant to standing order.
