

Carriage-Place, pass from thence to Prospect Harbour near la Heve, on the South Coast: By the same Conveyance they have also a Passage from another Branch of this Bay to Cape St. Marie, on the same Coast, not far from Canjo: I have before taken Notice of the Road from Cobegnuit, at the Bottom of the Bay, to Tetamagouche, on the East Coast: And there is a ready Way by Water cross the Bay of Fundi to St. John's River, and to the Coast of the Western Division. Thus a Communication is opened from this Place to all the three Coasts of the Province. But after all, these Settlements among the Marshes are very much subject to Fogs, and not so healthy as other Parts of the Country.

The Bay of Minas is about 16 Leagues long, and in the Middle, near which the Town stands, it is four Leagues in Width; but being in the Form of a narrow Oval, its Entrance, at Cape Minas, is not above a League a-cross. Some Mines are said formerly to have been discover'd hereabouts, which gave Occasion to the Name.

About 70 Miles S. W. from Minas stands Anapolis Royal, the Metropolis of the Province. It consists only of a Fortress, defended by three Companies of English, and some Auxiliaries from New England. It is situated about five Miles from the Mouth of the
