MEANS DELAY IN MONTREAL SERVICE

C. N. R.'s Transcontinental Train Will Not Run Into City Till Spring.

UNCERTAINTY OF GRANT

Toronto - Ottawa Passenger Line to Be Inaugurated June Twenty-Ninth

The delay in settling the Canadian Northern Railway question at Ottawa, means that transcontinental trains of the Canadian Northern will not run the Canadian Northern will not run into Montreal until next spring, according to the statement made to The World yesterday by D. B. Hanna, third vice-president of the C. N. R. This change, however, will not interfere with the plans formulated for a thru east and west service.

It is the intention of the C. N. R. next month to commence to run immigrant trains from Quebec City via Toronto and thru to Western Canada. This is to be followed by a freight service to the west, and next fall is to see 3 regular passenger service running between Quebec and Toronto and Western Canada.

Owing to the uncertainty which existed regarding government aid the Ottawa-Capreol cut-off will not now see completion until next spring. This together with the fact that the worl has not as yet been commenced on the elaborate terminals at Montreal which the C. N. R. are to erect there, maker a thru service between Montreal and he west impossible until the spring A consequence of this is that the Canadian Northern wheat route this winter will be via Toronto and thru to Quebec, where connection will be made with St. John and Halifax over the Intercolonial Railway.

It is now officially announced that the Toronto-Ottawa passenger service is to be inaugurated on June 29. A nine-hour day service is to be estab-lished between the two cities. East-bound from Toronto a train will leave here at 9 a.m. and arrive at Ottawa at 6 p.m. Westbound a train will leave Ottawa at noon and arrive here at ? p.m. The placing of a night service between the two cities this fall is being contemplated.

Stations on New Line. The stations on the new Toronto Ottawa line of the C. N. R. are as fol lows: Toronto Union Station, East Queen street, Rosedale, East Don, Mal-Cherrywood, Greenburn, Brook Oshawa, Solina, Bowmanville
