

CONTENTS.

ix

CHAPTER XII.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION EMANATES FROM THE PEOPLE.

May-July 1775.

	PAGE
How the news was received in London	185
The words of John Wesley	187
Address of the city of London to the king. Meeting of the cabinet	188
The king relies on his allies, the Six Nations	188
The king's brother and La Fayette at Metz	189
The opinion of Paris. Of Vergennes	189
Meeting of the second continental congress	190
Difficulty of getting the support of an uninformed nation	191
First deputy from Georgia. Congress instructs New York	192
Jay proposes a second petition to the king	192
The affair on Grape Island and the skirmish near East Boston	193
Ticonderoga and Crown Point garrisoned. Kentucky settled	194
Career of Daniel Boone	195
Spirit of the county of Mecklenburg	196
They declare independence and establish a government	197
They publish their resolves. Confidence of Governor Martin	198

CHAPTER XIII.

MASSACHUSETTS ASKS FOR GEORGE WASHINGTON AS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

May-June 17, 1775.

Opinions of Washington and Franklin	199
Dickinson advocates a second petition to the king	199
Hancock chosen president of congress	200
Duane's proposal for a negotiation between Great Britain and the colonies	200
Second address to the Canadians. Lord North's offer	200
Dunmore convenes the Virginia legislature. Jefferson's opinion	201
Last use of the king's veto power. Flight of the governor	202
Answer of the burgesses to Lord North's proposition	202
The answer approved by Shelburne and Vergennes	203
The American continental army	204
Washington chosen general. His character	205
Knowing the difficulties before him, he accepts	211
The pledges of congress. Effect of his appointment	212

CHAPTER XIV.

BUNKER HILL.

June 16-17, 1775.

The American army round Boston	213
Gage designs to occupy Charlestown	214
Prescott fortifies Breed's Hill	215