A STRAIGHT CASE OF MURDER

Finds the Coroner's Jury on the Death of Mrs. Taggart.

"We find that at the Toronto General Hospital on Nov. 26, from injuries wilaforethought, indicted with a hammer by her husband, Frederick Taggart, the ceased, Rebecca Taggart, came to her

Mrs. Rose Singer, a second-hand dealer, and York-street, identified the prisoner as a man who had come into her shop on Thanksgiving Day night to buy a hammer. Witness sold him a new one, like the one produced, for 50 cents. The prisoner was sober and collected in his manner.

Mrs. Fannie Woods, a neighbor of the former witness, was in Mrs. Singer's home when the sale was made. She testified that Mrs. Singer told her afterwards about the sale of the hammer.

Husband Had Been Drinking.

Husband Had Been Drinking. William John Davies, manager of the Victor lodging house, deposed that the pricer visited the home on the holiday light. There was every evidence that laggart had been drinking. He was put to bed and got up about 5 o'clock the following morning and left.

Alfred Powell of Norway had a narrow escape from death yesterday morning while at work upon John Kay & Son's new building on King-street west. He was on a holst at the time and accidentally missed his footing and fell to the ground, a distance of 18 feet. He alighted, on his head and, besides receiving numerous cuts, had his thigh injured. The wounded man was taken to the Emergency Hospital and removed in the ambulance a few hours afterwards to the General Hospital, where he was resting easily at an early hour this morning. The doctors say he will pull through all right.

Lew Dockstader's Story.

Lew Dockstader of Primrose & Dockstader's Minstrels, who come to the Grand Opera House to-morrow night, tells a good story of the celebration of the passage of the fifteenth amendment by the darkles in Washington some years ago. It seems the parade was passing down Pennsylvania avenue, when an old darky in the procession grabbed a colored man, who was standing on the street curb, and told him he ought to join in the celebration, as it was in honor of the "Fifteenth Commandment by Mars Abe Lincoin," and, as he neared a statue of the great emancipator, he commanded young Sambo to yell as lood as he could.

"Why should Jou yell and holler," demanded the man.
