ANGLO-AMERICAN

Significant Report of the Philadelphia Union League on Anglo-American Good Feeling.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.-The Philadelphia Union League, the most prominent Republican organization in Pennsylvania, refers in its annual report to an Anglo-American alliance. Speaking of the restoration of peace, the report says: "We have deepened the respect of the old world for our power and our institutions. Europe, astonished at the rapidity of our movements and our conclusive onslaughts, listens in respectful silence to our demands and our definitions of the rights of Spain. We have drifted into an unexpressed but tacit alliance with the British Isles against foreign aggression. The heart of Old England, the great mother of modern states, whose sturdy language and lofty ideas of liberty have penetrated lands in every zone and conti-nent, has thrilled towards her noblest offspring. We have responded generously to this awakening. It is well that it should be so. We possess the same ancestry, literature and aspirations. We have the same right to partake in the glory of her past as she has to claim relation to our own brilliant achievements."
