

A PARTIAL LIST OF EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD VALUES OFFERED FOR QUICK SELLING.

Embroidered Lawn Bed Spreads
Single and double bed sizes, in hand-embroidered lawn. Bedspreads in variety of handsome designs. Some are slightly counter-soiled; others are undisturbed. Regular values up to $12.50. Clearance sale price, $7.50 each.

Hamstitched Cotton Sheets
Extra fine linen finish Cotton Sheets. These are from a well-known Irish manufacturer and are exceptional values at prices offered. Come in three sizes: 72 x 100, $4.00; 80 x 100, $4.50; 90 x 100, $5.00 per pair. Don't miss seeing these, as we have a limited quantity only.

Hamstitched Cotton Pillow Cases
24 x 36 inch Fine Cotton, linen finish. Will give excellent wear. These are extra good values at our special price, $1.00 per pair.

Huckaback Towels
39 x 23 x 40 inch Fine Irish Linen Huck and Damask pattern Bedroom Towels, in good assortment of patterns. Some with fringed for initial purposes. These towels are worth much more today than our special price. As these goods are still advancing in price, we would advise securing a supply at this special price, $2.00 per dozen.

Ladies' Linen Handkerchiefs
Ladies' Sheer Linen Hamstitched Handkerchiefs of fine quality. Our sale price does not nearly represent their regular value. Sale price, $1.25 per dozen.

Bargains in Fancy Linen Pieces
A clean-up sale of oddments in variety of fancy Linen pieces, including embroidered and damask, Bedspreads, Bureau Covers, Lunch Cloths, etc. etc. Selling at half today's value.

MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED

JOHN CATTO & SON

55 TO 61 KING STREET EAST, TORONTO

ILLUMINATED RUNWAY IS FEATURE OF STAR SHOW

Proves Effective in Chorus Ensembles—Plenty of Life in "Hello Paris."

There is lots of life in "Hello, Paris," the musical burlesque presented by the R. and H. Opera Company, at the Star Theatre this week. Both farces were written and produced by the company's versatile comedian, George A. Clark, who, by the way, also acted the show. In the initial half Clark is seen as a tramp musician. Assisted by Charles Fagan and George Douglas and a violin, he is successful in putting over a laughable ten minutes of comedy. His impersonation of a Scotchman singing a popular Highland song, was well worthy of special comment.

The singing and dancing side of the show is well looked after by Beatrice Darling and Eleanor Wilson. Dainty Miss Darling was the winner of a popularity contest in the States. Eleanor Wilson, billed as the prima donna, possesses a powerful voice and is well received in all of her songs, which range from operatic airs to "raggy" selections.

A large illuminated runway has been erected from the stage to the rear of the chorus ensembles the girls glide up and down the runway, and dance with a light and sing and dance with a light.

THRILLING WAR DRAMA IS A FEATURE PICTURE

Frank Keenan Excels in "The Coward" at the Hippo-drome This Week.

The latest Triangle release, "The Coward," featuring Frank Keenan, is shown at the Hippodrome this week. This thrilling story, dramatised from the Civil War of 1861, tells of a true staunch southern family, whose head, Col. Winslow, forces his only son to enlist. The son then feigns desertion, and the proud old colonel, to retrieve the good name of the family, takes his son's place in the ranks. The lad, finally overcome by the shadowy hand of his father, who have fought before him, loses all fear, and when he overhears some plans that would benefit the army he deserted, he holds up the entire staff of the northern army and makes a getaway. His father, who is on duty, unknowingly shoots the fugitive as he over-runs the fortifications, and the boy succeeds in reaching headquarters, where a thrilling climax follows. It is without a doubt one of the best war dramas ever picture-ized, and Frank Keenan, as Col. Winslow, excels himself.

There is plenty of comedy in the five good acts that are on the program. Hyman, Adler & Co. produce a light sketch entitled "Solomon's Bargain." Mr. Adler, the popular character actor, taking his part in splendid advantage. Lockhart Bros. are good acrobats, and Dorothy Mather is a pretty comedienne. Hunter's Statue Dogs, in a posing novelty act, complete a well-rounded bill.

DUSTIN FARNUM IN "PARSON OF PANIMENT"

Big Bill at the Regent Headed by Popular Movie Hero.

Dustin Farnum, always a favorite with regular film fans, is in his best in "The Parson of Paniment," which is the headline feature of the Regent program showing yesterday and today.

This story, by Peter B. Kyne, provides Farnum with a role unusually suited to the talents and ability of this popular stage and screen star, and the theme, too, holds interest from first finish.

"Mutt and Jeff in the Mess Kitchen" by Bud Fisher, is a truly humorous episode in the animated cartoon series, and is a long laugh from start to finish. The Regent Graphic had its usual quota of excellent current topics, several good comedies are shown, and the music is up to the superior standard set by the new Regent Theatre.

THE WEATHER

OBSERVATORY, Toronto, Sept. 25. (P.M.)—A moderate depression is centred tonight in Manitoba, while pressure is highest over the north Pacific states. Showers have been almost general today in the western provinces. Clearing in Canada the weather has been fine.

Minimum and maximum temperatures: Dawson, 25-41; Prince Rupert, 41-56; Victoria, 50-65; Vancouver, 50-56; Kamloops, 42-53; Edmonton, 44-54; Battleford, 40-54; Prince Albert, 44-50; Calgary, 45-54; Medicine Hat, 41-52; Saskatoon, 45-58; Moose Jaw, 47-53; Winnipeg, 44-53; Fort Arthur, 38-53; Parry Sound, 45-50; London, 40-53; Toronto, 44-57; Ottawa, 43-58; Montreal, 44-56; Quebec, 44-52; St. John, 40-52; Halifax, 46-55.

Probabilities—Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay—Fresh southerly winds; fair today, with higher temperatures; some local showers late tonight and on Wednesday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Fine with moderate temperatures. Lower St. Lawrence—Moderate to fresh westerly to southwesterly winds; fine; higher temperatures.

Gulf and North Shore—Westerly winds; fresh to strong at first; fair and cool. Maritime—Fresh northwest and west winds; fair and cool.

Superior—Fresh strong southerly, shifting to westerly winds; partly fair and cool.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan—Some scattered showers, but mostly fair and cool.

Alberta—Generally fair and cool.

STEAMER ARRIVALS.

Sept. 25. At

Rochambeau...New York...Bordeaux

Saxonia...New York...Liverpool

St. Louis...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

St. Mary...New York...New York

St. Peter...New York...New York

St. Paul...New York...New York

St. James...New York...New York

St. John...New York...New York

SIR HAMAR AND LADY GREENWOOD

British House of Commons, accompanied by Lady Greenwood, is on his way to Toronto on an extended trip thru Canada to Vancouver before returning to England in late October.

Sir Hamar is sometimes called the "Canadian in the English Parliament" because of his vigorous advocacy of the colonial interests of Canada in the House of Commons, and this is his first visit to Canada since he was created a baronet, January 1, 1915, in recognition of his services in command of the Welsh division of the British Expeditionary Force.

He was born at Whitby, Ontario, in 1870 and graduated at Toronto University in 1895. In that year also he went to England after having served in the Canadian militia as a lieutenant in the South Ontario battalion since 1896. On reaching England Sir Hamar went on to the Canadian reserve, and became one of the founders of and first officers in the King's Colonials, now King Edward's Horse. He commanded a squadron in that regiment. In 1912 he retired, and as a lieutenant in the regular reserve of cavalry, and as such was mobilized on the outbreak of war in August, 1914. Lord Kitchener selected him and several other soldier M.P.'s to carry the campaign for recruits through different parts of the realm, and he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into the war office. Lord Kitchener offered him a staff appointment at the war office with the rank of major, but when Mr. Lloyd George started the Welsh division, he was sent to Northumberland and Durham. He was commander of the work by Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, then director of recruiting, now in command of the Somme offensive, and by that officer brought into