

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1910

7

IMPRESSIVE SCENE AS BODY
OF LEOPOLD WAS BORNE TO GRAVEFUNDAL PROCESSION PASSING THROUGH RUE ROYAL.LITTLE ONES OUT WINDOWS OF BURNING SCHOOL

Tory War In Ottawa Over the Nomination—Leodeur's Illness Likely to Delay Navy
Bill

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—Two hundred little girls in a state of wild panic, with flames blocking the single exit from their school, jumped from the second and third story windows of the St. John Baptiste school in Hull today. The result is that one is not expected to live, eight are badly hurt and fifty or more are suffering physical distress.

The worst injuries were sustained by a number of little girls who jumped from a high window into an alley where the snow had been trampled hard. Three little Marie Noel was terribly hurt. She jumped to the porch and fell from there to the icy pavement, where her back was dislocated and her arm broken.

The firemen, who had arrived within three minutes of the alarm, being unable to stop the rush until they could get their ladders up, aided neighboring houses for blankets and mattresses and holding them for the little ones to jump into. Many of the children were caught in the arms of firemen and spectators.

However, they came far too fast to be handled and at one time there were fifteen little ones stretched out unconscious from the result of the fall.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—The Conservatives to night, in convention, nominated Dr. J. L. Chabot to contest the vacancy in Ottawa occasioned by the resignation of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. No other name was before the convention and, though the choice was unanimous, there is a prospect for trouble in the Conservative camp.

Ex-Mayor Ellis, who was not at the convention, announced himself some weeks ago as the Conservative candidate, and he has been running his campaign in the press for a month. The Conservatives will make an effort to get him to withdraw, but they are not at all sure of success.

The writs will be issued this week, and the election brought on immediately. There was a four-hour conference between Mr. Ellis and the Conservative managers after the convention. Persuasion and pressure was brought to bear on him without result. He declared he owed allegiance to no party and would stay in the field.

The result will be a three-cornered fight with two Conservatives and one Liberal, which should assure the success of the government candidate.

It is possible Dr. Chabot may retire, in which case the French vote will all go to the Liberal and assure his success.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—There is likely to be some delay in bringing down the naval bill which was expected this week immediately at the conclusion of the debate on the address.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, whose office has been in a building down, is seriously ill with intestinal trouble and is not likely to be able to take part in the proceedings of the house for some little time.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—(Special.)—The board of trade today elected W. J. Gage president and Robert S. Goulet, first vice-president, by acclamation.

Toronto, Jan. 10.—The use of telephones for despatching trains between Toronto and North Bay has been decided on by the Grand Trunk Railway, and telephone wires will be strung along the route at present carrying telegraph wires. The line from Allandale to Hamilton will also be operated by telephone.

A NOVEL DEBUTANTE BALL

There was decided poverty at a debutante ball given recently by Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison Fraser of Philadelphia in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford in that city in honor of their daughter, Miss Ellen Fraser. Large balls of roses were suspended from the ceiling, and at midnight the balls were pulled upon, letting a perfect shower of confetti fall upon the dancers, while from an immense hall in the centre several hundred live canary birds were released, to fly about the ball room. The dancers caught as many birds as possible and placed them in cages all covered with ribbon, provided for that purpose. A dinner preceded the dance.

There is a remedy for everything except some of the remedies.

A PILL THAT IS WORTH
TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS A BOX

Not often do we hear of pills being worth so much money, but although they are worth that much they are sold at 25 cents a box. FIG PILLS are worth that much to anyone who suffers with indigestion, sour stomach, kidney or liver trouble. They remove all the poisons from the system. Men and women are made a fool that life is worth living. On sale at all leading drug stores.

JEWELS OF SULTAN
REDEEMED

Three Hundred Thousand Dollar
Collection Released
From Pawn in Paris

RICH BEAUTIES

Necklaces, Diadems, Tiaras, Earrings, Bracelets, Watches and Other Costly Articles—Receipts Found and Money and Interest Are Paid

Paris, Jan. 11.—The jewels which Abd-el-Aziz, the former sultan of Morocco, pawned here for $300,000 have been released by the Moroccan government. In December 1907, Abd-el-Aziz, then sultan of Morocco, through his doctor, Aven Tazi, pawned a large number of jewels belonging to the state in order to raise funds for attending his throne against Mulai Muid, the present incumbent. The sultan obtained $300,000 from the Monte de Piete, the pawnshop of the French government, but soon afterwards was forced to flee from Morocco. Since that time Abd-el-Aziz has not only failed to redeem the jewels, but also to pay the interest, with the result that last November the gems were advertised for sale by auction, and on December 6, the date named, a great number of jewelers from all points in Europe came to Paris for the purpose of bidding.

The jewels consisted of fifteen necklaces of diamonds and rubies, four brooches, more than 150 unmounted diamonds, all cut, a splendid diamond and pearl diadem, two diamond and pearl tiaras, a necklace of thirty diamonds, a fine necklace of four rows of pearls, forty-five large emeralds, some of them set in rings, four pairs of diamond and pearl earrings, bracelets, diamond and emerald pendants, gold boxes, watches, chains, opera glasses, gold purses, and eight daggers with ivory handles and gold sheaths set with precious stones.

To the disappointment and discomfiture of a great number of foreign jewelers and collectors who had come to Paris to take part in this sale, El Mokri, chief of a special Moroccan mission to Paris for the purpose, was able to obtain an order from the president of the Paris Civil Tribunal postponing the sale for one month. He produced a cheque for $300,000 on the Credit Foncier Algerien, and explaining that the receipt for the pawned jewels had been mislaid, he declared that he would pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

The manager of the Monte de Piete, in spite of the injunction placed on the sale, insisted that the sale should take place on the ground that the regulations of that institution forbade the restoration of pawned objects to anyone save the lawful possessor of the receipt. He likewise pointed out that the pawnshop was a public body and could not be forced to postpone the sale of the jewels, who had come to Paris in order to take part in it, but to pay the amount lent by the Monte de Piete, as well as the interest on the loan.

WHERE FINKELSTEIN DIED IN
BURROWING TOWARDS RICHESSEARCHING FOR ISAAC FINKELSTEIN IN FRONT OF NUMBER FIFTY-FIVE LUDLOW
STREET

New York, Jan. 11.—Evidence of what the police believe to be a plot to loot a bank and jewelry store by means of an underground passage was discovered in a peculiar manner while laborers from the building department were digging in the basement of the tenement at No. 55 Ludlow street for the body of a man supposed to have been buried in a cave-in of earth.

Under a deposit of trash, orange boxes and wooden crates was found an aperture in the wall of the basement. Closer examination revealed a carefully constructed tunnel leading under the street in the direction of the jewelry store conducted by S. Zivinski on the opposite side. An arm of the tunnel leading toward the east side branch of the Fourteenth Street Bank, two doors away from the jewelry store, was later revealed.

The strange discovery was made as the result of a call sent to the building department for a crew of laborers. Detectives of the Allan street branch of the central office, told Inspector Reville, in charge of the men, when they arrived, that it was believed Isaac Finkelstein, forty-two years old, of No. 83 Ludlow street, had been buried in a cave-in of earth in the basement of the newly erected tenement adjoining his home.

Detectives had been investigating the disappearance of the man and had gotten from his wife the clue that he might have been caught in a cave-in. The woman told them that her husband and Isidor Garbus, his brother-in-law, went into the jewelry store, which occurred last October. He knew only in a hazy sort of way that his uncle had amassed a great fortune.

Banker Kennedy left his wife and some relatives about $25,000,000, and generously remembered his servants and employees. In his will he wrote:

"For special reasons, I make no bequest to my nephews."

He cut off the sons of his brother, Walter Stewart Kennedy, without a dollar, while giving millions with lavish hand to the Presbyterian church, to colleges and to hospitals.

The Pittsburgh carpenter says he can establish his relationship so that there could not be a doubt as to his claim to be a nephew of the millionaire philanthropist.

His lawyers have assured him that he will get his full and just share of the $90,000,000. He says he is certain to receive at least $1,000,000. He adds that his father and Stewart-John Kennedy separated upon reaching America. James D. Kennedy, the claimant, came to Pittsburgh thirty-five years ago.

The known nephews cut off by the banker in his will were Walter Stewart Kennedy, son of the testator's deceased brother, Walter Stewart Kennedy, and Andrew G. Tod, son of the testator's sister, Mary K. Tod. No mention was made of other nephews.

A Simple Treatment that Will Make It Truly Fascinating, Chas. K. Wasson Guarantees It

Nowadays every up-to-date woman has a mustache.

Want a credit course a woman would be at the opportunity to add to her attractions.

Yet in Canada today there are hundreds of thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not make any attempt to improve it.

In Paris most women have beautiful hair, and in Canada all women who use Parisian Sage have lustrous and luxuriant hair.

And any woman reader of the St. John Evening Times can have attractive and charming hair in a few days' time by using this great hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage.

Chas. K. Wasson sells a large bottle for 50 cents and he guarantees it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is an ideal hair tonic, not sticky or greasy.

AIRSHIP TIPS.

When the world is going wrong, An' you've lost your thread of song, When the fates have been unkind, Worried body, soul an' mind, When you're downcast, let your eye Turn its focus to the sky; Maybe you will catch a sight Of an airship in its flight.

When you cannot fall asleep, Troubles wrack you dark and deep, When you roll from side to side With your eyelids opened wide Do not be all night an' woe, Walk into the open air; Look above, perhaps you'll sight Airships sailing through the night.

When you want to happen be You must look up, you see, Look above the common things, Which the daily routine brings, Tip your chin an' let your eye Sweep the thickly peopled sky; There you'll see, unless you're blind, Airships sailing in your mind.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhoxone. But beware of the substitutes and for imitators. Look for CATARRHOZONE only, 50c and $1. at all dealers.

Just Breathe It

CATARRHOZONE

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

SEARCHING FOR ISAAC FINKELSTEIN IN FRONT OF NUMBER FIFTY-FIVE LUDLOW
STREET

New York, Jan. 11.—Evidence of what the police believe to be a plot to loot a bank and jewelry store by means of an underground passage was discovered in a peculiar manner while laborers from the building department were digging in the basement of the tenement at No. 55 Ludlow street for the body of a man supposed to have been buried in a cave-in of earth.

Under a deposit of trash, orange boxes and wooden crates was found an aperture in the wall of the basement. Closer examination revealed a carefully constructed tunnel leading under the street in the direction of the jewelry store conducted by S. Zivinski on the opposite side. An arm of the tunnel leading toward the east side branch of the Fourteenth Street Bank, two doors away from the jewelry store, was later revealed.

The strange discovery was made as the result of a call sent to the building department for a crew of laborers. Detectives of the Allan street branch of the central office, told Inspector Reville, in charge of the men, when they arrived, that it was believed Isaac Finkelstein, forty-two years old, of No. 83 Ludlow street, had been buried in a cave-in of earth in the basement of the newly erected tenement adjoining his home.

Detectives had been investigating the disappearance of the man and had gotten from his wife the clue that he might have been caught in a cave-in. The woman told them that her husband and Isidor Garbus, his brother-in-law, went into the jewelry store, which occurred last October. He knew only in a hazy sort of way that his uncle had amassed a great fortune.

Banker Kennedy left his wife and some relatives about $25,000,000, and generously remembered his servants and employees. In his will he wrote:

"For special reasons, I make no bequest to my nephews."

He cut off the sons of his brother, Walter Stewart Kennedy, without a dollar, while giving millions with lavish hand to the Presbyterian church, to colleges and to hospitals.

The Pittsburgh carpenter says he can establish his relationship so that there could not be a doubt as to his claim to be a nephew of the millionaire philanthropist.

His lawyers have assured him that he will get his full and just share of the $90,000,000. He says he is certain to receive at least $1,000,000. He adds that his father and Stewart-John Kennedy separated upon reaching America. James D. Kennedy, the claimant, came to Pittsburgh thirty-five years ago.

The known nephews cut off by the banker in his will were Walter Stewart Kennedy, son of the testator's deceased brother, Walter Stewart Kennedy, and Andrew G. Tod, son of the testator's sister, Mary K. Tod. No mention was made of other nephews.

A Simple Treatment that Will Make It Truly Fascinating, Chas. K. Wasson Guarantees It

Nowadays every up-to-date woman has a mustache.

Want a credit course a woman would be at the opportunity to add to her attractions.

Yet in Canada today there are hundreds of thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not make any attempt to improve it.

In Paris most women have beautiful hair, and in Canada all women who use Parisian Sage have lustrous and luxuriant hair.

And any woman reader of the St. John Evening Times can have attractive and charming hair in a few days' time by using this great hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage.

Chas. K. Wasson sells a large bottle for 50 cents and he guarantees it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is an ideal hair tonic, not sticky or greasy.

AIRSHIP TIPS.

When the world is going wrong, An' you've lost your thread of song, When the fates have been unkind, Worried body, soul an' mind, When you're downcast, let your eye Turn its focus to the sky; Maybe you will catch a sight Of an airship in its flight.

When you cannot fall asleep, Troubles wrack you dark and deep, When you roll from side to side With your eyelids opened wide Do not be all night an' woe, Walk into the open air; Look above, perhaps you'll sight Airships sailing through the night.

When you want to happen be You must look up, you see, Look above the common things, Which the daily routine brings, Tip your chin an' let your eye Sweep the thickly peopled sky; There you'll see, unless you're blind, Airships sailing in your mind.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhoxone. But beware of the substitutes and for imitators. Look for CATARRHOZONE only, 50c and $1. at all dealers.

Just Breathe It

CATARRHOZONE

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It

Just Breathe It