REV. DR. MACRAE HITS FROM THE SHOULDER

Preaching in St. Stephen's Church He Contrasts the Attitude of the Present Day Churches With That of Christ While on Earth.

Rev. Dr. Macrae, who has just celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a clergyman of the Presbyterian church, created a profound impression by his sermon preached in St. Stephen's church on Sunday morning last. His theme was remembrance of God, and in the course of his remarks he dwelt strongly with the duty of the Christian church in this regard.

Rev. Dr. Macrae took for his text Deuteronomy VI, 12: "Beware lest thou forget Jehovah."

He first referred to the exploitation of what might be called "special privileges" on such an occasion as this—the proud reference to the resources of the country the reference to its great institutions, its rapid progress and the predictions of wonderful things for the future. This same spirit pervaded all nations, and the same thing had been done on similar occasions at all times.

At such a time there was a tendency to forget that all the country's resources and all its greatness were due to God.

He approved of the spirit of patriotism and national pride. Canadians could truthfully say with St. Paul who referred to a people as "citizens of no mean city." No right thinking man should speak slightly of the land of his birth.

After referring to the many reasons for gratitude on the part of Canadians that they lived in such a country, the reverend gentleman dwelt at the close, which, 40 years ago, were held by the opponents of confederation and which had now passed away; but it was well to remember that the existence of a nation depends upon the will of God.

It was well that the resources of the country should be increased, and its institutions strengthened and improved; but it was also well to remember that the true strength of a country depended not upon its material resources or upon its importance but upon its relation to God. There had been vast empires in bygone days, but they had vanished.

Paving on to legislation of this kind in teaching the nation to remember God and the way in which that duty was fulfilled Rev. Dr. Macrae said:

"Is sufficient evidence that Christ's works are being done and His spirit is being manifested if we point to the splendid buildings which are devoted to the purposes of worship; if we point to the character of our service, to the well-doing and the wealth in our power, to our liberality on behalf of missions and philanthropic purposes, while there are outcasts in the midst of any given community to whom no guiding hand has been extended by the worshippers, and who, did they seek a seat in one of these splendid buildings would certainly be refused or cast out?"

"Is it not an ominous sign of the times that in lands where the separation between class and class is more marked than in Canada the working classes as a body have deserted the church, for instance in Scotland, and are there not indications pointing in that direction even in Canada?"

"Is not the number of non-church-going on the increase, and are there not social movements of the age that foster this tendency?"

"Why is this if not in part that the worldliness of spirit is widespread; if not

Demonstration in Corseting
COMMENCED TODAY, AGAIN TOMORROW

COMMENCING TODAY ladies of St. John and vicinity are being treated to a series of commonsense talks—little lectures, they may be called—on corsets, and the proper wearing of them.

Miss Castle, of New York, a lady whose experience in this work in metropolitan cities has made her a very intelligent demonstrator, now in the city, is pleased to meet our friends and patrons. A special apartment has been set aside for this purpose.

Though corsets in general is the theme of the demonstrator, she is particularly exemplifying the pre-eminent qualities of the famous "F. P." brand, which includes the "Armorside," "Elonga Hip," "Military Form," "Sultana," etc., goods which won the highest gold awards at St. Louis.

We trust the ladies of the city will avail themselves of this opportunity to learn some new phases of corset-making and corset-wearing, for Miss Castle comes highly recommended by eminent houses in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston.
