Decision.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Robert Garrabrants, a 16-year-old boy, who lives with his mother and sister, was held in $1,500 bail in West Side Court for examination charged with theft of radio apparatus from the Ansonia Music Ship in Broadway.

The boy's arrest was caused by his mother, who appeared in court. She told the magistrate that when her son refused to explain how he came to have so many radio parts more than she knew he could obtain legally, she debated inwardly for hours, then asked the police to arrest him as a burglar. He is her only son.

She said in a low voice that she had tried hard to make him a good boy. She believed, she said, it would be better for him to be punished mildly now than grow into a criminal.
