OLD ORKNEY.

Most everybody knows the type of Whisky that OLD ORKNEY is. Perhaps its strongest feature is its lute purity and wholesomeness. OLD ORKNEY takes its name from the Orkney felands, to the North of Sootland, where this Whisky is distilled—the farthest north of any distillery. OLD ORKNEY is in popular den the critical users in Nova Scotia.

During the Summer months many people do not eat nearly as much meat as during the cooler and colder months. We are now entering upon that time of the year when good, clean, healthy meat is absolutely necessary if one wishes to be healthy and strong and able to bear the rigors of the severe climate conditions that will prevail.

When you want just what you want when you want it in the meats, the best way to get it is to

How You Can Make Your Exhibition Trip Cost You Nothing

In other words, it's a case of combining business with pleasure—making the business end pay for the pleasure.

You'll be needing a lot of things for use during the Fall—why not make out your list, but in a little larger quantities than you usually do—that is, in dozen lots or by the box or barrel—and when you are in the city drop in and see us, personally selecting what you want. You will then certainly save the amount of the outlay in connection with your trip. Try it.

In no medicines compounded for organic disorders, are there the same stimulating influences and tonic virtues as are to be found in Wolfe's Schnapps, a distilled spirit which possesses natural ethers of supreme worth where the organs of the body demand a tonic corrective. It clears and cleanes the liver and kidneys of all impurities, promotes healthy and vigorous action and provides nature with a reserve of vitality. And all this in the form of a refreshing and pleasing drink. Good for both sexes at all times and in all climes.

Already this summer 3,500 domestics have been introduced to Provincial households through the medium of the department and Superintendent H. A. MacDonnell is preparing for some large contingents yet to come. The forty who arrived the other day came via s.s. Letitia and the G.T.E. The majority of them bore character testimonials and all are successfully passed medical examination.

Many Brave Deeds.

Many Brave Deeds.

Of women's brave feats of endurance in the Western farming country there are numerous instances. One of the first settlers in the bush country of Western Alberts fell sick with pneumonia. His wife took care of him all through a long winter, not another soul within reach, and meanwhile kept the larder supp led with game she shot with her own rife. One night a yax came to the little clearing in thich their shack stood, and the same unwring rifle brought him down.

A settler in the northern part of the same province went in the first week of March to Edmonton, to get a new supply of provisions leaving his wife alone with four children. He was delayed, and for over a month the lone woman held to her post, with the little stock of provisions growing daily less, until she and her children were on the verge of starvation. Two timber inspectors at length found them, reduced to very near the last extremity, and through their efforts they were taken care of, barely in time.

Open Northern Rivers.

Certain rivers in northern Ontario have become clogged up with driftwood during their long histories of unusefulness and the Ontario Department of Colonization Boads has a proposition under consideration for opening them. Mr. G. W. Bennett, Superintundent of that department, leaves to morrow to investigate the possibilities of navigation through the Driftwood and Mount Joy Rivers, connecting Lake Abittibl with other waterways running south through the settled districts around Porcupine and Cochrane with the purpose of opening a new line of navigation for the pulp wood in the Abittibl district to the new pulp mills under construction at Iroquois Falls, near Porcupia.

The Ontario Government is assisting materially in the solution of the servant girl problem in the Province. A boat load of Highland lassies with fresh glowing countenances and wearing sprigs of heather in their buttonholes reached Toronto recently on a direct route from the Old-Land. Before the day was done each had found a place, and many who had sought their services were left-disappointed. As it was, some of the newcomers go to all the quarters of Ontario. Some answered the call in places as far west as Sarnia, and others accepted positions which had been waiting in rotation for weeks past. The colonization department of the Government claim that it is impossible to satisfy the demand for persons of the capable and healthy type which are being periodically brought out.

A BOY'S PROMISE. The school was out, and down the street Among them strode a little lad, Who listened to another, And mildly said, half grave, half sad: "I can't—I promised mother." shout went up, a ringing shout, But not one moment left in doubt That manly, brave decision

'Go where you please, do what you will,'
He calmly told the other;

Evidently Alluna read some hidden meaning back of these words, for she spoke quickly, but in her own tongue now, as she was accustomed to do when excited or alarmed.

"Then this thing must cease at once."

waited for him until the late sun dipped down below the distant mountains for the midnight hour, then rolled sianting out again a few points farther north, to begin its long journey anew, but he did not return. At last she crept stiffly indoors, the look of fright staring in her eyes. About 9 o'clock the next morning a faint and long drawn cry came from the farthest limits of the little camp. An instant later it was echoed closer, and then a dog began to howl. Before its voice had died away another took it up sadly, and within three breaths from up and down the half, mile of seasily water front came the cry of "Steam-bo-e-t" Cabin doors opened and men came out, glanced up the stream and echoed the call, while from sleepy nooks and sun warmed roofs wolf dogs arose, yawaing and stretch-

They all gased si-lently at the hundred men of Flam-bean, who stared back at them till the gangplank was placed, when they came ashore to stretch their legs. One of them, however, made sufficient noise to make up for the stlence of the oth-ers. Before the steamer had gnounded be appeared among the Siwash deck hands, his head and shoulders tower-ing above them, his writte teeth gleam-ing from a face as dark as theirs, shout-ing to his friends ashore and pantodelicious flattery and dug their tiny moccasined toes into the sand. Lieutenant Burrell had come with the others, for the arrival of a steamboat called for the presence of every soul in camp, and, spying Necia in the outskirts of the crowd, he took his place beside her. He had lain awake for hours thinking of her and had fallen asleep with her still in his mind, for the revelation of her blood had come as a shock to him. He had sprung from a race of slaveholders, from a land where birth and breed are more than any other thing, where a drop of impure blood effects an ineradicable stain. Therefore the thought of this girl's ignoble parentage was so repugnant to him that the more he pondered it the more pitiful it seemed, the more monstrous. Lying awake and thinking of her in the still-ness of his quarters, it had seemed a very unfortunate and a very terrible thing. During his morning duties the vision of her had been fresh before him again, and his constant contemplation of the matter had wrought a change in his attitude toward the girl, of which he was uncomfortably con-scious and which he was glad to see she did not perceive. The men were pouring off the boat now, and through the crowd came the tall Frenchman, bearing in the hollow of each arm a child who clasped a bundle to its breast. His eves grew bright er at sight of Necia, and he broke into a flood of patois. They fairly bombard ed each other with quick questions and fragmentary answers till she remem ant Burrell, this is Napoleon Doret-our Poleon!" she added, with proud

Doret checked his volubility and stared at the soldier, whom he appeared to see for the first time. The little brown people in his arms stared like wise, and it seemed to Burrell that a certain distrust was in each of the three pairs of eyes, only in those of the man there was no shypess. In-stead, the Canadian looked him over gravely from head to beel, seeming to note each point of the unfamiliar at-tire; then he inquired without removing his glance: "W'ere'bouts you live, ch?" "I live at the post yonder," said the ieutenant.

"W'at bizness you work at?"
"The lieutenant has been stationed here, foolish," said Necia. "Come up to the store quick and tell me what it's like at Dawson." In spite of the man's unfriendliness. Burrell watched him with admiration There were no heels to his tufted fur boots, and yet he stood a good six feet two, as straight as a pine sapling, and it needed no second glance to tell of what metal he was made. His spirit showed in his whole body, in the set of his head and, above all, in his dark, warm face, which glowed with eagerness when he talked, and that was ever—when he was not sing-

One of the new arrivals, who had separated from the others at the front, now called to Gale:

now called to Gale:

"Are those Coits for sale? Mine was stolen the other day." Evidently he was accustomed to Yukon prices, for he showed no surprise at the figure the trader named, but took the guns and tested each of them, whereupon the old man knew that here was no "Cheeristan" as tradections as here. "Cheechako," as tenderfeet are known in the north, although the man's garb had deceived him at first glance. The cuted a move that Gele had not wit-bessel for many years. He extended one of the guns, but foremest, as if surrendering it, the action being free and open, seve for the fact that his foreinger was crooked and thrust through the trigger guard; then, with the slightest jerk of the wrist, the gun spin about, the handle jumped into his nalm and besternit there were a click palm, and instantly there was a click as his thursh flipped the hammer. It was the old "road agent spin," which Gale as a boy had practiced hours at a time. But that this man was in earnest he showed by glancing upward sharply when the trader laughed.
