FIGHT TO BRING UNITED STATES TO THEIR SENSES

Statements Across Atlantic Still Hope America Will Take Its Part in Affairs.

London, April 15.—That school of European statesmen which regards American participation in some sort of an entente to promote and maintain stability in trade and government has begun here its greatest fight to bring the United States back into the European system.

From the Washington viewpoint this conference has become the main international commercial treaty between the United States and Europe.

On the measure of success attending this attempt by Europe to set the United States on a new basis of opinion, the success or failure of the European system will depend.

That consciousness is the chief ally of those who believe that the world will be saved not by a cordial working partnership and concert of policy among the United States, Great Britain and France.

The British hope to erase the memory of the emergency accord with France and Washington, and an alliance with France and America a political process which would almost inevitably force Europe into a working understanding.

There is no effort to conceal the fact that the United States is the chief ally of those who believe that the world will be saved not by a cordial working partnership and concert of policy among the United States, Great Britain and France.
