

WINTER JUMPS IN.
HEAVY SNOW, RAIN AND WIND STORM SATURDAY NIGHT AND SUNDAY.
 Nearly Eight Inches Fall at the First Storm of the Season—A Record Breaker for the Time of Year—How the Vessels Were Effect.

The citizens who retired Saturday night were not unduly surprised when they awoke Sunday morning to find the streets covered with high banks of snow. The storm commenced about 11 o'clock Saturday night and up to Sunday afternoon 7.70 inches of snow had fallen.

The high wind, that increased at times to a gale, blew the first snow of the season up in heavy drifts, and the wind which brought rain at intervals, made the walking and driving exceptionally heavy. A rain storm set in for a time yesterday afternoon, and in the evening a blinding snow storm again took its place.

At midnight the weather became more serene, and the snow was blown about by a gale of wind. This is the earliest storm in years, there being nothing like it since 1894, when in the month of November there was a similar heavy snow storm.

CHATHAM, Mass., Nov. 12.—A rather considerable strength prevails tonight, with falling temperature. Small vessels are seeking shelter by anchoring close in under Chatham Beach, also northwest of Chatham Head. One schooner, deeply laden with coal, passed north, but returned and anchored close under the beach at 2 p.m. She began to drag, and the anchor was hauled down. The schooner, still dragging, was closely watched by the crew of Chatham, Old Harbor and Mahogany life-saving stations, but she made no signal for assistance and may be able to make sail and work back under the land tomorrow.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The schooner Mary C. Stewart, Capt. Alford Powell, from Philadelphia for Portland, Me., with a cargo of coal, stranded about 6 o'clock this morning on the rocks near Point Lookout, Life Saving Station. The crew and captain, numbering five men, were rescued and taken ashore in a surf boat.

Japan and Russia.
 PORT TOWNSEND, Washington, Nov. 12.—Advice received by the Orient-Express steamship St. Irene indicates that the Japanese government is taking a great interest in the South African war. Up on the recommendation of the Japanese army an officer will be sent to the scene of hostilities for the purpose of studying a practical knowledge of the strength and tactics of the Boer army.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "An uneasy feeling is prevailing in the relations of Russia and Japan is spreading here. There is no doubt that Japan is practically preparing to move, with a view of appeasing Russia. A large Russian fleet is wintering in Nagasaki harbor, and some reports are being given by the Japanese representative. Japan strongly opposes the movement, and it is claimed in official circles that Russia has evaded a plan to contract Japan's influence in Korea."

HOLLAND AGAINST BRITAIN.
THE DUTCH WOULD BE PLEASED TO SEE THE BOERS WIN.

Hostility to Great Britain rather than friendship or sympathy for the Boers is the secret of the very great demonstrations lately.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 7.—Here, as elsewhere in Holland, the Boer party is largely in a majority. Not a dissentient voice is heard to disagree publicly with the general condemnation of England's policy in the Transvaal.

It is not because there are no supporters of England in Rotterdam. On the contrary, I have conversed with several whose constant business and social relations keep them in close communication with England, and even the war in South Africa has not altogether destroyed the sympathetic friendship for the British that has existed for generations among the wealthy and educated classes here.

Still, in the existing crisis they keep very quiet, as the body and bulk of the population of the port is rather rough to put it mildly—and it has been entirely over to the side of the Transvaal.

It is difficult to explain this sudden change of heart for the Boers. The working Dutchman is not one to be easily won over to a cause of abstract right or wrong. Yet he watches the course of the war intently. He reads the newspapers, and reads the despatches with a zeal of delight when they relate some Boer success, and with violent outbreaks of anger when the British are said to have gained any advantage.

Some reasons given. Some people with whom I have discussed the question claim that big sums of money are spent in the interests of the Boer propaganda among the lower classes. This, however, seems a useless and unpractical step cannot have much practical result.

Others attribute the sentiment for the Boers to racial sympathy, but this, also, is rather a doubtful explanation. The European born Hollander is detested, or at least despised, by the "Irish" and "English" who are the English in the Transvaal, and he has been made to feel it upon more than one occasion.

As a result of the Boer war, the heart of the burghers toward Holland's immigrants to the Transvaal, is not only large, but is enthusiastic and appreciative, and applauded every patriotic sentiment as the program proceeded. The amount of private subscriptions already received for the Boer cause is a very handsome sum and will be added to the amount of the Boer cause.

The University Difficulty.
 To the Editor of THE TELEGRAPH.
 Sir: The truly lamentable crisis which has been reached in connection with the N. B. University situation, and as described in a despatch to last evening's Globe, marks but another step onwards towards the abolition of the so called university, the end of which, judging from present indications, is not far distant.

The policy pursued by the senate has been weak and vacillating throughout, and a house divided against itself cannot stand. A minority is in support of the action of the faculty, while the remainder carried a resolution, condemning the offence, and practically requiring the faculty to recede from the firm position taken by them at the commencement of the difficulty.

Had the senate been non-committal, declined to interfere in the matter, and allowed the faculty to deal with the case as to them seemed best, irrespective of consequences, even were it a complete withdrawal of the students from the university would have stood in a much better position in the eyes of the public than the course now pursued.

It is true that the expulsion of a student would have been detrimental to a future prospect, but if any student commits a brutal or disgraceful act, he should clearly understand that he must abide by the consequences. If an ordinary citizen assaults a fellow townsman the law has to take its course, and he must accept the result, irrespective of any maximum sectionalism in the matter. But the prospect of a law for college students and another for the rest of mankind, if a man not a college student, steals his neighbor's property, and college students are allowed even to commit murder, as was recently threatened in the present, and forthwith and effort is made to postpone the offence.
