

FOLK WHO ARE TOUCHY.

Supersensitive Persons, and How they Get Worked Up to the Pitch of Woe.

There was much kindly criticism in Sir Walter Scott's advice to his daughter to beware of procreancy to take, as well as to give offense. Touchy folk are trying companions, says the London Standard. Over-sensitiveness (this is the charitable description of a disposition to be offended at trifles) is, perhaps, rather a modern than an ancient weakness; though history presents a fair list of people who were so fallible in this respect, as may be seen from the following list of names.

There is a story of a Scotch minister, preaching against the evil of falsehood, being interrupted by the parish idiot, who exclaimed in an aggressive tone, "Mr. dinnis, why ye add to me hard on me, Mr. dinnis, I'm sure there's nae harm in the parish nae man."

Few people possess the kindly sense of the French also mentioned in the humorous Mme. Vigee de Brun, the celebrated portrait painter of the last century.

The Touching Story of Beryl and Bertie. From the Chicago News.

Regally beautiful was Beryl Clearwater as she stood beside Bertie Cecil in the brilliantly lighted parlour of her father's Prairie-avenue residence that October night when the gleaming harvest moon hung low in the western sky and the baseball championship lay buried in the dim vista of an unknown to-morrow.

When the cows come home. Most me, darling, the morning when the cows come home.

It was at the conclusion of the last stanza that Beryl had risen from the piano and moved towards the conservatory.

Speaking of cows, said Bertie in his rich, many tones, whose every tone thrilled Beryl's whole being, so madly did she love him, "reminds me of a conversation I had with you, and it seemed to me, sweetheart, that you, too, are in danger of catching cold, you seem."

West's Cough Syrup, pleasant to take and always gives satisfaction. Do not put off with any other but insist upon having West's Cough Syrup, genuine wrapped up in blue, three sizes. All druggists.

The latest novelties in lamp shades appear to be those made of the open flange spiral work, lined with white or colored silks and edged with a silk fringe of the same color.

Every wife and mother in the country should know the value of the Little Nipper as a blood purifier. It gives tone, health and strength to the vital organs, corrects all irregularities and expels impurities from the system. Young and old use it. Price $1.

West's Liver Pills are purely vegetable. Always reliable and effective. All liver diseases readily yield to this magic power. All druggists.

EYELESS FOALS.

Interesting Details of Cases of the Kind in Australia.

The Australian Sportsman contains the following interesting letter. In your issue of 28th ult, there is a description of a thoroughbred filly foaled without eyes. The following description of some cases within my own knowledge may be interesting to some of your readers: About the year 1888 my brother (Alex. Moodie), then living at Koorat Koorat, now Campdown, sent me a mare to a draught sire named Turner, then standing near Colac. The result was two foals, both foaled without eyes, perfectly formed and healthy in every other respect.

Supersensitive is not yet dead. From New York Times.

An observing Broadway street-conductor of the old way in which one passenger, a business man whom he brings down town every morning, deports himself. As soon as he gets his seat he grabs two pins from his coat lapel and sticks one into the conductor on each side of him.

There are many men who will not ride up or down Broadway street with a same conductor daily. Not that they love any special conductor, particularly, but for the blind reason they believe lack attached to regularity.

Terrible Projections. From the Post and Courier.

Gen. Bonlinger has been studying new projectiles of most destructive kind. They are each tipped with a powerful steel ram, and contain a strong explosive recently discovered, which, after the ram has pierced its way into a wall, acts like dynamite in blowing it up.

There is danger in neglecting a cold. Many who have died of consumption trace their troubles from exposure, followed by a cold which settled on their lungs, and in a short time they were beyond the skill of the best physician.

A DWARF'S DEEP

It was Sunday evening, and he had been looking forth from his study window, the village path, the garden, to the large melancholy church spire. The sun was ing the village with golden light was no fairer face illuminated by that of the young minister of St. Randolph's.
