

Apple-picking retreat

Again this year a group of students will organize an "Apple Picking Retreat" hosted by families and orchards in the Annapolis Valley. For the weekend of October 8th, 9th and 10th, the students will spend time together - time picking the fruits of Fall - time contemplating the meaning of the season and their actions. Eating together, praying together, climbing and picking together, will form the common experience and basis of the retreat.

The money gathered from last year's venture, was used to support three poor families in India - for one year. "The fruit of our labour was felt by those who don't have things as plentiful as we have" said one student. The farmers themselves became enthusiastic about the venture and added their support not only by waving the price of room and board, but by joining in on the group discussion and liturgical celebrations. This year we want to continue supporting poor families in India - sending a few dollars a month - sending a bit of ourselves. "What can we do?" is often asked. Pick a few apples and become conscious of the needs of others. Pick a few apples and become conscious of how much we have in our own land. Pick a few apples and see generosity in all who pick. Pick a few apples and see the hand of God, generous in nature and people.
