SENATOR KATHRYN CLARKE

Sir R. Roblin on the Stand

Gives Evidence on His Letter of Resignation.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Winnipeg, July 5.—The commission investigating charges of a bargain between the Roblin and Morris Governments resumed this morning with Sir Rodmond Roblin on the stand for the conclusion of his evidence. He was further cross-examined by Isaac Pitblado, Liberal counsel.

Sir Rodmond said he dictated his letter of resignation himself in his own office to his own stenographer. He showed it to the members of his own cabinet, but not to any Liberal. If there were any changes from the wording Judge Phippen had suggested he made it himself. So nearly as he could recall he dictated the resignation from memory without the Phippen memorandum before him.

He thought when he stated Mr. Hudson's charges had been substantially proved that he was complying with the promise he had made. He now said what was intended was that the government should admit the correctness of the charges.

Mr. Pitblado read an extract from Sir Rodmond's letter of resignation to the lieutenant-governor that "in view of the information gathered during the last few weeks by the public works department and the statement made by ex-Judge Phippen before the royal commission, there is now no doubt that Hon. A. B. Hudson was substantially justified in his statement regarding over-payments, etc., in conjunction with the parliament buildings."

Sir Rodmond said that when Salt's "black book" containing records of the caissons which had been altered, was produced, the government felt they must have some outside information regarding the caissons. So they engaged Engineer Sweeney to measure the caissons and gather data. He found that yardage claimed was there. The engine wanted access to Kelly's books and when Sir Rodmond asked Kelly about this, Kelly informed him he was doing work on contract not yardage.

"Why did not you disclose this?" asked Mr. Pitblado. "When the commission first opened I was in hopes it would deal with at the proper time. The commission, however, did not enter into the business of inquiry at all, as I thought, in fact I don't hesitate to say I don't think so yet."

Witness said he wanted to avoid a law suit with Kelly, that was why he wanted to present the case to Kelly and persuade him to accept payment for the caissons on a yardage basis. When this was refused by the contractor and a law suit became inevitable, Sir Rodmond knew it must be fought by another government.

Mr. Pitblado recalled the fact that the Roblin Government resigned on Wednesday because the next day was the thirteenth day of the month and the following day Friday and it was felt not to be auspicious for the new government to take charge on either of these days. "That was all discussed," said Sir Rodmond. "The Lieutenant Governor was waiting for an opportunity to dismiss us. We had reason to believe that I preferred to resign rather than be dismissed," he said.

Sir Rodmond described the report of an interview with him published in Toronto, as a caricature, burlesque and misrepresentation. He studiously avoided saying anything, he said, and the reporter wrote a column. "This is that happened between the lieutenant-governor and myself that no other person on earth knew about things as appeared in a newspaper down town the same day," commented the ex-premier.

Mr. Pitblado read to the ex-premier the telegrams which passed between Sir Rodmond and Hon. Robt. Rogers regarding sending up ex-Judge Phippen, as produced before the parliament buildings commission last week. "I wanted," said the witness, "to make an adjustment, and felt Phippen was the man with most influence with Kelly, that's why I wanted Phippen, and I undertook to secure Mr. Rogers' influence to get Phippen here."

"Do you know anything about a 'Toronto plan'?" asked Mr. Pitblado. "Better not get into that; that's a serious measure and has no relation to the royal commission," intimated Sir Rodmond, and the subject dropped. The "Toronto plan" was mentioned in another series of wires between Sir Rodmond and Hon. Mr. Rogers. Judge Phippen, witness said, had no authority to enter into any negotiations with Hudson. After Phippen got here and told Kelly they were going to set up a contract for the caissons, no more use was made of him by the government, which dismissed its experts, and practically withdrew from the commission.

Convictions of arson in New York in 1914 were 37, against 54 the previous year.

To an interviewer State Senator Kathryn Clarke of Oregon said: "I was born at Gardiner, Douglas county, Ore. I usurp a woman's right of not telling the date—but I was the first white child ever baptized in the little town. There being no local minister one was imported for the occasion, so you see I really got a very good start in the right direction. I have lived in Douglas county practically all my life. My home is in Glendale, southern Oregon. "From the position I now occupy one would think me a politician. Such is not the case. I am just an ordinary home woman, and when one quiet Sunday afternoon I was called to the phone and received the news that Governor West had seen fit to appoint me to fill the vacancy in the state senate no one could have been more surprised than I. When asked if I would accept I most emphatically said 'No' but after consulting some friends and thinking it over could find no good reason why I shouldn't take this opportunity and break the ice for women to enter the senate even though I would perhaps not be able to do more than this. After accepting the appointment the senators, having the privilege of seating me or otherwise, chose otherwise, so it was necessary to hold a special election, and with three candidates in the field I was elected by a good majority. As this election took place on Jan. 20 and the legislature convened Jan. 11 I came into the august body just two weeks late. This fact made it rather difficult, as I had never even visited the legislature and knew absolutely nothing of the details or workings of the body in any respect, but after a busy few days I began to see the light, and after four weeks am free to say there is nothing in lawmaking that any woman of ordinary intellect cannot easily comprehend and be able to vote intelligently upon; also that women are not the only talkers and if the women as legislators talk more than our Oregon senators have at this session the future generation may not expect much lawmaking in our future legislatures."

By Special Wire to the Courier. Montreal, July 5.—A London cable to the Gazette says: "The Daily Mail warns the public that the situation is not even as satisfactory as it was a few months ago when Lloyd George said: 'I think the situation is still grave, much too grave, very much too grave.' And Lord Curzon stated: 'The situation is one of grave anxiety and it is not unfair to speak of this country as being in grave peril.' They were gently hinting at facts not known to the majority of the members of the House of Lords or House of Commons."

"The story of the Dardanelles expedition, which is only one phase of a grave situation, is completely misunderstood and its importance underestimated. Members of Parliament should press for information as to certain circumstances. In connection with this vast undertaking the public ought to know, and they should not be further chloroformed."

Referring to "certain preparations against invasion" which are being carried out, the Mail asks if these preparations are sufficient. It says: "We wonder because now that the war is in its twelfth month we find that, according to statements made in the House of Commons, all sorts of things are very insufficient—the supply of rifles and machine guns, for example."

"The Daily Mail frankly distrusts authorities who have not yet provided soldiers with rifles. Rifles could have been obtained over and over again from the United States had they been ordered. Orders of machine guns were made last autumn and were refused. The people who muddled the equipment of men who are marching about without weapons may be muddling in the invasion question."

Comfort For the Tourist. For the tourist planning to go to the California exposition a very suitable parting gift is a utility case. These come in all sorts of practical designs. One of the most unusual is of Roman stripe ribbon outside. It folds over in half to be carried by a leather handle, so that it closely resembles a hand bag, as the silk is also bound around the edge with leather. Inside the case is lined and fitted with this black rubber and contains pockets for every conceivable toilet utensil.

Of course shapes and covers vary with the price, but all are attractive. One case folds up quite small and contains only two pockets, one for a face cloth, the other for comb and tooth-brush.

LANCE-CORPORAL PAT LEE NOW IN HOSPITAL

At Third Western Hospital, Cardiff, After a Severe Experience in the Trenches.

Mr. S. H. Lee of the firm of Jackson and Company, Temple Building, received the following brief communication from his brother, who was wounded during the fighting following the terrific engagements of Langemarck and St. Julien. He writes from the Third Western Hospital at Splott Road, Cardiff, where he is at present lying. Lance Corp. Lee is an Anglo-Indian being born in that country and coming to Canada about three years ago. He had previously served in the Natal Volunteer Force for four years in India and is 22 years of age at this time. When the call came for men he was a member of A company, Dufferin Rifles and the two brothers immediately endeavored to enlist. He passed but for some reason Mr. S. H. Lee was rejected. This constituted the first separation the brothers had experienced, as together they had worked their way through Canada being for some time in Nova Scotia and the Maritime Provinces. Lee, whose people are resident at Navi Tal in India, was not notified to Brantford as a casualty and today's postcard is the first intimation of the serious nature of his wounds. He received several minor injuries in addition to the thigh wounds mentioned; his shoulder and arm also suffered bad contusions.

The Courier is in receipt of a picture of the lad in hospital which will be reproduced in a few days.

The postcard reads as follows: Third Western Hospital, Splott Road, Cardiff. "How are you getting along now? Hope things are going on right for you. I got wounded with a trench mortar and got a nasty jar to my thigh. A couple of dandy holes. You could put a match box into one of them. Send me a Brantford Courier. "Pat."

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK. By Special Wire to the Courier. London, July 5.—The Norwegian bark Fiery Cross has been sunk by a German submarine, 70 miles southwest of the Scilly Islands. Her crew of 18 men, after spending 20 hours in open boats, landed at Swansea.

The Fiery Cross was a vessel of 1,448 tons gross, built in 1878 at Glasgow and owned by Hansen & Anderson of Larvik, Norway. The latest marine record contained nothing more recent regarding the movements than that she had passed Gibraltar on June 6 after having sailed from Tyne off 29th for Genoa.

WOMAN THE CAUSE OF DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Hamilton Police Have This Idea on the Murder of Doc. Williams.

That Dr. Harry Williams knew that Hepworth Holmes, yesterday reported as Hopwood Holmes, had homicidal tendencies and was a dangerous man, was the statement made by a member of the doctor's family to a reporter. The informant stated that the doctor knew his slayer intimately, and knew his case was hopeless, but was endeavoring to soothe the man and get him to take the train back to the sanitarium to spend his last days at Gravenhurst. The police think that there was a woman in the case.

POLICE THEORY. The theory given credence by the police is entirely different from the family theory. It is believed that the two men had a secret that went down with them to their graves. The police believe that there is a woman in the case, and that the double tragedy occurred because of her. The police will not discuss this theory at length.

Dr. Fred Harper, who was the first physician to arrive on the scene, ordered the removal of Hepworth Holmes to the hospital as soon as he arrived at the house, and he attended the man constantly until he died at 8.15 o'clock last night.

Constable Alex. English has two of the bullets that were fired by Holmes. They are of .38 caliber and are brass jacketed. The bullet that killed Dr. Williams entered his head just above the left eye, and went through that eye. It did not blow his head off as first reported.

WILL CALL NURSE. It is the intention of the police to call Miss Edna Fowler, a nurse at the Cottage Sanitarium at Gravenhurst, who nursed Hepworth Holmes constantly while he was there. She is expected to give some important evidence.

A mistake was made in stating that Williams was 45 years of age. He was 35 years of age, and a grandson of Bishop Williams. His brother, who died in the sanitarium at Gravenhurst, was a young doctor. Two brothers Dr. George Williams and Edwin Williams, a barrister at Regina, survive.

The date of the inquest has not yet been decided by Coroner Dr. Simpson but will be on either Tuesday or Wednesday evening. An autopsy was performed on the body of Dr. Williams last evening and an autopsy on the body of Mr. Holmes will likely be performed this afternoon. Dr. Williams will be buried at Allentown, while word has been received from the father of Hepworth Holmes, who resides at Truro, Nova Scotia.
