Well by this time we did not care what happened to us. Some of the rgeants were put up again the next day. They were mostly the Quarter aster Sgts. and Co. Sgt-Majors. Col. Pratt went to London right away nd has been there most of the time

About 150 of our men went to France presently. We were then moved to the 12th for a short time, and finally to the 3rd reserve battal ion, formerly the 36th Battalio from Hamilton. As you know, Capt Winter, of Simcoe, is the Quarter-master. Things began to change. Lt. Gibson was made Asst. Adjt.; the late Capt. Paulin was put in command of a company. Q.M. Sgts. Moon and Reed were given back their former positions as Q.M. Sgts. and some more of the boys were given back their "soft jobs" as they are called, but they have delivered the goods. And who made the appointments? Capt. Winter, and he is not writing, home letters such as I am, in the Simcoe papers, telling of how he has looked after the boys either.

Capt. Winter is leaving here, hav ing received a promotion, and will soon cross to France with the 5th Division. I hope to go with him, but am not sure whether I can make it. He sees that the Simcoe boys get their share of all that is going. Most of them, now, however, are over in

Yours,

The New Preacher at St. Paul's Rev. M. Scott-Fulton, M.A., Ph.D. reached at St Paul's yesterday and by arrangement will continue to fill the pulpit and get in touch with his work prior to the formal induction later on. His countenance is an outstanding expression of the poet's couplet.

'God's in His heaven, All's right with the world." Not that the young divine thinks there are no evils lurking about St. Paul's, for he intimated his expectation to detect these and to deal with them in a manner in no wise akin the method of using sweet perume to hide unpleasant odors.

There was a capacity audience, for the most part, of his own people, at both morning and evening services. His manner is common place and unaffected, his language simple and clear. He shows distinctive opposition to higher critic ogy in favour of a practical every day Christian living and he comes to St. Paul's with a united congregation pleased with the man.

Tribute to Br. Dey Yesterday morning he paid high tribute to Dr. Dey when he remark ed that many preachers attracted great congregations which dispersed when the preacher departed, and though he made no personal reference to the work of his predecessor, the congregation present made the application plain.

Must Expand

It is already clear to the leaders of St. Paul's that there is urgen necessity for building expansion as both congregation and Sunday School are already cramped for
