

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., NOV. 19, 1915.

Editorial Brevities.

For the current year, 1915, the total production of butter in Nova Scotia creameries is estimated at 1,250,000 pounds.

Through an inadvertence last week no mention was made of the important part taken in the recognition service in the Baptist church by Rev. Dr. Manning, who gave an excellent address to the new pastor on behalf of the church.

Booker T. Washington, foremost teacher and leader of the negro race, died at his home in Turkege, Alabama, on Sunday last. Dr. Washington was the founder and president of the Turkege Institute. He visited Halifax a few months ago.

On another page of this issue will be found the program of the fifth annual entertainment of the Wolfville Boy Scouts, to be held in the Opera House on Friday, Nov. 26th. The boys will be selling tickets early next week and we bespeak a liberal patronage for them. Let every one buy at least one ticket. If they can go they are assured of a good time, and if they cannot go they will have the satisfaction of helping a good cause.

Opera House Announcement Extraordinary.

Owing to urgent requests of a large number of our patrons we have succeeded in securing for one night per week a "Pathe News Sheet."

Absolutely nothing pro-German will appear in this film and many of the views are taken direct at the front in France, Belgium and other war zones.

In order to secure this weekly news we have been obliged to take on another film service, and the entire program for this one night per week is one of the most expensive we have yet booked, but notwithstanding this fact the price of admission will be kept the same as on our regular Monday night feature, viz., 15c.

This service will commence early in December, probably on the first Friday and will consist of a "Pathe Weekly," a two reel installment of "The New Adventures of Get Rich Quick Wallingford" and a "Pathe Split Reel,"—one hall an "Animated Cartoon," the other hall a colored "Scene or Educational."

Next week, on Thursday evening, Mons. G. Marcel Andre, of Paris, France, will give his illustrated war lecture on "The Firing Line," which will be held at the front in France, Belgium and other war zones. The lecture will be given in the evening, and will be held at the front in France, Belgium and other war zones.

On Monday next (regular feature night) "Hazel Dawn" who made such a success here in "Niobe" will appear in a Paramount Feature entitled "Clarissa" adapted from the well known story or novel "Cambria Advocate."

Don't take chances in the matter of Christmas presents. You don't want yours, like so many others, to be received with indifference or worse, and ten days after Christmas to be cast aside and forgotten.

You take no such chance in giving The Youth's Companion for a year. Did you ever know of a home in which it was not conspicuous on the library table or in some one's hands all through the year?

It is worth while to make a gift of that sort, and it is worth while to receive it too, for The Companion illustrates the best traits in American and Canadian life in its stories and sketches, upholds the best standards in its articles and other contributions, and combines the practical and informing with the entertaining and blood stirring.

If you do not know The Companion as it is to-day, let us send you one or two current issues free, that you may thoroughly test the paper's quality. We will send also the Forecast for 1916.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.25 for the fifty two weekly issues of 1916 will receive free all the issues for the rest of 1915 and The Companion Home Calendar for 1916.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION. Boston, Mass. Messrs. Aubrey Spencer and Wilbert Rogers, of Wolfville, went into the woods near Long Lake, Dalhousie, on Tuesday morning, November 9th, for a few days' hunting, with Mr. Samuel Switt as guide. They did not have to hunt long for game, for on the afternoon of the same day they were successful in capturing a fine three-year-old moose. Messrs. Spencer and Rogers returned to Wolfville on Friday, delighted with their short hunting trip.—Bridgetown Monitor.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system. To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength. Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

With the 40th Battalion.

Sunday, Oct. 31 '15. Bramshott Camp, England.

After waiting in Valcartier for over six weeks for word to prepare for embarkment orders were received at noon on Sunday, Oct. 17th, for tents to be struck and preparations made at once for an immediate start. We had all been anxiously waiting for this order for some time and it wasn't long before everything was done. We had had so many disappointments that we were not surprised to be told shortly after that we could not leave till morning. As the tents were all struck but a couple of marines we all set out after supper to find dry wood for fire. In that one night at Valcartier we made ourselves better known than in all the previous months. We carried away all the cook house tables, shower baths and loose wood about camp and made a number of roaring big fires. About 9:30, becoming hungry we raided the restaurant and had a feed. Revaille found us all peacefully huddled up around our fires cracking jokes and smoking. At 6:30 we ate a hearty breakfast of bully beef and hard tack and got into our harness ready for the start.

Left camp about seven for the railway by way of our parade ground upon which the other regiments in camp, those with whom we had spent many a happy day, had lined up and gave us a hearty send off. Opinions were divided as to whether we should sail from Quebec or from Halifax and the majority were a little disappointed when the cars were shunted into the dock at Quebec and we embarked in H. M. T. "Saxonia." There were about 3,000 of us aboard altogether; beside the 40th were the 1st (French) Regiment from Quebec, which has also been in camp at Valcartier; No. 2 Army Medical Corps, a detachment of the 34th Fort Garry Horse (Winnipeg); and a detachment of Royal Canadian Rifles (Halifax) both going over as reinforcements; also a large cargo of ammunition and rifles. Perhaps we were not packed in! Saxonia had nothing on us. Our leaving had been kept so quiet that we had very few to bid us farewell but those that were on the dock showed their appreciation of what we are giving up. The ship pulled away from the dock amidst the strains of "Oh Canada" by the band and a shower of tobacco and papers from the wharf returned by a shower of hat and shoulder badges from us. We steamed down the St. Lawrence till about dark when we anchored till some time during the night, and then proceeded on our way. We were all on deck a daylight to see the fast retreating shores of old Canada in the distance.

Our departure from the dock was a very slow one, the ship being very heavily laden. We were all on deck a daylight to see the fast retreating shores of old Canada in the distance. We met fog almost all the way, after being compelled to travel very slowly all the day and night preceding on account of our escort not being in sight, we laid to altogether and waited. At about one o'clock the next morning, as I was coming out of the hold where I had been on guard, I had my first introduction to a member of the English navy. She was just coming alongside, a little bit of a long, low, grey torpedo boat destroyer. It looked like a little toy beside the big transport, but when it began circling around us at top speed with the water flying all over her she had a look that made us take notice. I don't wonder the German submarines would rather stay at a distance.

At 5:30 when the boys turned out we were in a heavy sea with our propellers out of the water every time she pitched and Plymouth Sound coming into view over our bows. It wasn't long before we were in the smoother water of the Sound and had a flotilla of destroyers around us. We steamed on up a ways and anchored; meeting on the way a minesweeper, torpedo boat and submarine. No, it wasn't a German.

The fog came down upon us as thick as a mat as we anchored; and as there was nothing to see, we breakfasted. Am afraid we said farewell to the mess-room aboard the "Saxonia" in a somewhat similar manner to our leaving of Valcartier. One of our fellows had a front tooth extracted by a flying tin mug; that was only the start. About ten o'clock three ferry boats came alongside and we proceeded to transfer ourselves aboard them, amidst the pouring rain which started to fall. I might say here that it rained part of every day but two of the trip. Nevertheless it takes more than rain water to dampen the spirits of the 40th. We landed at Plymouth dock at about 11:30 and were at once loaded into trains. English trains are certainly a joke in a sea and appearance, but they certainly buzz along. The scenery along the route was very pretty; the little stone, tile or thatched houses placed in amongst the green fields, divided by neatly trimmed hedges and narrow lanes, looked like a fairy land to us. Every little bit of land is cultivated and everything is neat and orderly and we didn't notice a scrap of paper or misplaced stone in the whole trip. Nova Scotian farmers can certainly learn a great deal about keeping their places neat from our English cousins. Another notable fact was the lack of the large, well repaired barn beside the little, tumbled down house. They do not appear to have any barns over here; perhaps that is why they keep their houses so well repaired. We stopped at only a few of the larger towns, and we were all out on the platform advertising our native land.

The people were very good to us, and everything in the line of papers, fruits, sweets or smokes which they happened to have about them at the time was ours. We arrived at a large town called Exeter at about three in the afternoon and were met at the station by a number of ladies who filled our water-bottles with piping hot tea, and gave us each a paper bag containing a ham sandwich and a pipe. Also a card bearing the following:—"From the Mayors of Exeter and committee, wishing you good luck." Perhaps we didn't appreciate it!—was the first we had had to eat since an early breakfast. After a roundabout trip, during which we passed through Salisbury and Portsmouth, we arrived at a small village called Lyphoap at 9:30 in the evening.

What was our surprise to be met on leaving the train by our draft company which left Valcartier about two weeks ahead of us, and which we thought was at Shorefield. We marched about two miles through the country and were at the end of our journey—Bramshott Camp. We are now situated in our new quarters, large wooden huts lined with asbestos and holding about forty men and a small stove and are very comfortable. We have nice wash houses fitted with hot water showers and convenient quarters for washing clothes. Bramshott is about eight miles from Aldershot and forty-two miles from London, and we can get there and back for three and six, the equivalent of eight-hundred cents in Canadian money. It is my hope to see all plan to see the big city. Here is quarters for about 25,000 men and that many freshmen left for France just before our arrival. There are now about 10,000 Canadians here, including ourselves and draft company, the 41st, 44th and 46th battalions, the 8th and 12th Mounted Rifles, also some other

ODES AND ENDS ABOUT THE WAR.

This brief biographical sketch of the late Miss Cavell, taken from an English paper, is interesting:

Miss Edith Louisa Cavell, Directrice d'Ecole des Infermieres, Rue de la Culture, Bruxelles, who was executed by order of a German Court-martial at Brussels on Oct. 12, on a charge of aiding her countrymen and French and Belgian soldiers to escape across the frontier, was the daughter of the late Rev. Frederick Cavell, for forty years vicar of Swardeston, Norfolk. Miss Cavell was trained as a nurse at the London Hospital, and on the opening of the Ecole Belge d'Infermieres Diplomes, Brussels, in 1912, was appointed matron of the school. She was a woman of great force of character and devotion to duty, and was held in high regard in the nursing profession. She went to Brussels with the purpose of introducing to Belgium British methods of nursing, and succeeded in such degree that the number of her pupils increased from thirteen in 1910 to thirty-two in 1912. She had the opportunity of returning to England in September, 1914, when many English nurses were enabled to return by the good offices of the United States Ambassador, but she decided that it was her duty to remain at her post. As one of her friends has said, no fear of personal consequences would turn her from a course of action she felt to be right.

Despite the losses to the Merchant Marine due to the war, the tonnage of the vessels in Lloyd's Register for the year closing June 30th, 1915, was 8,300,000 tons in excess of the tonnage at the same time last year.

Jack McCorry, of this town, deserves a medal. He has made three attempts to enlist but has been finally turned down for defective eyesight. He is one of the true bulldog breed. Fred Rand has made two unsuccessful attempts and three are others. There should be badges for these young men.

A new Nova Scotia regiment is to be raised at once. Recruiting is under way, and begins this week. It is to be called the "Nova Scotia Rifles." Now is your chance, boys. The apples are all picked, the potatoes are dug. Lift up like little men and take a blow for your King and country.

ONE OF THE 4TH.

Thousands of mothers throughout Canada have written of their thankfulness for what Baby's Own Tablets have done for their little ones. Among them is Mrs. Frank Wright, Clifford, Ont., who says: "I would not be without Baby's Own Tablets as they were of great help to me when my little boy was troubled with constipation and sour stomach. The Tablets cure indigestion; colds and simple fevers; colic; expel worms and promote healthy sleep. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

Would Not Be Without Baby's Own Tablets.

Here are a couple of items from an English paper:

This story (says the Daily Mirror) is "going the rounds" of the camps just now. A soldier brought before the newest-fledged subaltern was charged with being absent for two days without leave. "Twenty-eight days' cells," said the young officer. Plucking the officer's sleeve, the sergeant-major whispered in an anxious undertone: "You can't give him that, sir!" "Ah," corrected the sub. "fourteen days' cells." "You can't give him that, sir!" "Well," demanded the officer, "what the dickens can't give him?" "Two days' pay, sir," suggested the sergeant major, meaning, of course, a fine to be imposed. "Huh!" grunted the sub, fishing the amount from his pocket. "Here's two days' pay for you—but it it occurs again I shall give you nothing at all!"
