"At Home" To-Morrow.

The Ladies of George Street congregation have been busy for some time planning for the "At Home" which is to take place on to-morrow on the grounds surrounding the residence of Mr. C. P. Ayre. Dainty refreshments will be served, also ice cream and candy. The proceeds are in aid of the new School and Hall, the building of which has been contemplated for some time past, and which is urgently needed to successfully carry forward the work of this Circuit. We would bespeak a liberal patronage from the public generally who would wish to spend a pleasant afternoon and at the same time contribute toward a worthy object.

Who Killed It?

Special to Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I have read the editorial of the Daily News of this morning—in fact I always read them—as from the pen of a cultured gentleman who comes from a land of culture—a land too which has given us our homes, and made us citizens of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen. The editorial refers to the decision of the Privy Council re the contract made by the Bond Government, and which said Council upholds! The editor speaks of it (the late Bond Gov't) as a "dying administration." I object to his statement! The Bond Government was not a "dying administration"! Mr. Robinson knows, as well as thousands of others, that the late Government was put out by money. That one word covers the situation! He knows, as we all do, that there was too much money and too much ruffianism pitted against the Bond Party to enable them to stem the torrent. Let Mr. Robinson place himself in Rt. Hon. Sir R. Bond's place if he can, and try to imagine the deceit, the ingratitude, the villainy of the pact who opposed him!

I am quite an impartial person, but I can't forget the horrors of "Black Monday" and its attendant miseries I say again, Mr. Robinson, put your self in Rt. Hon. Sir R. Bond's place. You are of the same culture of the same great land whose forbear brought to this and other offshoots of the Empire our characteristics of honour, integrity, justice and fair play which distinguish the old land. Look at Bond's career! Remember, am not saying there were no "spot on the scene" of his administration but I do say that he had more in his Cabinet to ill-advise than to support him—men who were sticklers of his policy but betrayers of his trust! I this not so, Mr. Robinson? And the he was kicked overboard in a November sea by the agents of the so-called "People's Party"! I say again, Mr. Robinson, put yourself in his place and you'll realise the truth of my statements. A man who had saved his country and been honoured by his King! And then you speak of "dead or dying administration." Who killed it? What killed it? We all know who and what, and time will tell for itself!

And now perhaps we come to the most serious part of the subject—your criticism on the English Privy Council's decision re the Commerce Cable Company's contract. Is it not written, "Let every soul be subject to the Higher Power"? Is not Mr. Robinson constituting himself within the power? And does he not think he is creating a dangerous precedent when he attempts to arrogate to himself the right to criticise the highest law of the world has ever seen! Sometime we hear lofty dictums from Edito Robinson on the justice, the impartiality, &c., &c. of the English courts now, however, because it has decided against his pet and for the late Head his tune is changed!

Mr. Robinson, too, writes very often loyalty to the Throne, love, country, respect and veneration for the Motherland, and pride on that Empire on whose limits "the sun never sets"! Here in his criticism, he launches, but in a contrary spirit, and breathes defiance on the judgment of "wise heads and sound minds"!

If such a course is not tending to weaken loyalty, I don't know what is! But his motives are as gossamer—easily seen through! He is on the side of the powers that be—he is booked for and will get a big job under if they are returned next year so there is no partiality in his judgment, even to jeopardising the loyalty of his readers in their allegiance to the law of the Empire.

Killed by a Buffalo.

Special to Evening Telegram.
PARIS, July 16.
Hubert Latham, the famous Anglo-French aeronaut, one of the pioneers of "heavier-than-air" aviation, was killed by a wild buffalo during a hunt in the French Congo.

Fine Fire Escape

When the finishing touches were being given the exterior of the King George Fishermen's Institute, Mr. Harold Baker, blacksmith, erected on the exterior of the building a fine substantial iron fire escape. It is 63 feet from the upper balcony to the ground, is 5 feet wide and contains two stairways connecting the lower balcony with the upper. A ladder also runs from this to the annex and another goes down between the main building and Harvey & Co's premises. This would be most serviceable should fire occur.

Brains.

BY H. L. RANN.

The brain is a neat mechanical contrivance with which people absorb information. With most people it is located in the head where it keeps up a loud buzzing and prevents the owner from hearing anything but his own voice. The brain is composed of small cells which secrete currents of air and undigested opinions, forming a pleasing melody which are ejected into a conversation at a high rate of speed. After a plain, crude brain has been run through the High School and a college curriculum, it becomes so muscular that it can tackle the dead languages without a can opener. Some brains are geared higher than others, and do not need to be primed with the comic supplement or lubricated with 49-cent fiction. The largest brain ever produced in this country was the one worn by the late Dan'l Webster, who always had to sit for his hats. When ever Dan'l wanted to use his brain for any purpose he would take off his hat and allow his thoughts to flow in a northwesterly direction in the form of a sixteen-hour discourse upon that sacred instrument, the constitution. The brain of T. Roosevelt is not as large as Dan'l Webster's, but it is more porous and exudes some of the shortest and most abrupt words in the English language. The college brain is an expensive variety which is sharpened to a high pitch of culture by coming in contact with the home plate and the 100-yard dash, after which it is turned loose on the business world at $5,000 per year. The egal brain is one which will guarantee to acquit anybody who has not confessed in the presence of a notary public, and is a very profitable style to cultivate. So many people are cultivating the legal headpiece that confessions are becoming fewer and farther between than strawberries in a hotel shortcake. A person is said to have a brain storm when his mind revolves rapidly on its axis and collides violently with the established order. Some brains are like an Arizona river, an inch deep and a mile wide at the mouth, but these are not effective except for political purposes.

A man who is deaf to other sounds can nearly always hear the rustle of a setticoat.

Would Fall in a Faint

This letter from Mrs. Martin very well describes the terrible condition in which many a sufferer finds herself. She also tells how she regained health and strength by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food after all other treatments had failed.
Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes:—"Before I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I was in a terrible condition from nervous exhaustion and prostration. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. The weakness was so great that I could not so much as sweep the floor without fainting, but the nerve food helped me after the doctors failed. It has done wonders in building up my nervous system. I can do my own housework now and washing, and feel that this great medicine has been a God-send to me. I think it is the best of medicines."
