Patriotic Concert.

PICTURES OF THE REGIMENT SHOWN—OUR POSITION IN THIS WAR MADE CLEAR TO CROWDED AUDIENCE.

There was barely standing room at the Patriotic Concert held in the British Hall last night when the pictures of the Regiment were shown and patriotic addresses delivered by Hon. R. A. Squires, Hon. W. F. Coaker and Mr. W. J. Higgins. Included in those present were His Excellency the Administrator, Sir W. H. Horwood, accompanied by Hon. R. Watson, Hon. J. R. Bennett, Minister of Militia, Majors Rendell, Montgomerie and Carry, and others prominent in military and civil life. There was also quite a number of returned heroes, many of whom had the privilege of seeing themselves shown on the screen.

The Volunteers and Foresters headed by the C. L. B. and C. C. C. bands held a parade through the city and afterwards assembled at the hall where the Minister of Militia in a brief address explained the object of the gathering, which was to give the outport citizens an opportunity to see the pictures of "Ours" and to hear expert addresses on the war.

Hon. Dr. Lloyd, Acting Prime Minister, presided and in opening the meeting gave a brief sketch of the history of the Regiment. Perhaps no Regiment had won so many distinctions as "Ours" and it was a pleasure to all to see pictures of those who had achieved so much for themselves and their country.

The performance opened with a selection by the C. L. B. Band, following which the pictures were shown. Hon. R. A. Squires was the first speaker and after expressing his pleasure at being associated with the Minister of Militia in his efforts to help on voluntary enlistment he said it was the duty of every eligible man to offer his services, so that he may relieve those who deserve a rest from duty on the firing line and to fill up the gaps made vacant by the men who had paid the supreme sacrifice. He pointed out where the voluntary system failed in England and conscription had to be put in force. The same had to be done in Canada where all were placed on an equality and called to serve through legislation embodying considerable force in certain sections. Here, however, no section should need pressure to bring them to a realization of their duty, as all are the same English, Irish, Scotch and Welsh blood which made Britain mistress of the seas. Our ancestors were men of great courage and fought and conquered wherever they went, as is shown by the fact of their settling in this country, and the response to the call of the blood alone should be able to account for more than the number of recruits required. Three years ago Newfoundland was a little red triangle on the map, a land enshrouded with fog, whose people lived on fish, but to-day through the noble deeds of our soldiers and sailors it is a shining light of patriotism stained with the blood of our best manhood. The message that our Regiment must be kept at full force should be carried to the homes of all present. Britain is in the struggle for freedom and fair play and if all would realize this they would at once come forward and put a stop to the evil doings of German nationalism. Sacrifice is the essence of victory and the honor of the future will be measured by what we do for the Empire to-day. In conclusion Mr. Squires said "Let us show the blood of our ancestors and help the God of Peace conquer the despotism of harm and might."

Hon. W. F. Coaker followed in a stirring speech, pointing out that the call to arms was more serious to-day than it was three years ago. He emphasized the fact that at least 400 recruits were wanted before January 1918 was ushered in. He hoped the voluntary response would be liberal. He did not want to see conscription enforced, but more men were needed. Some 5,700 had gone already forward to fight in the Army and Navy but more than that number had not done so and had a duty to do so. He appealed to the outport visitors to come forward and enlist. He then referred to our different conditions in Newfoundland from those of any other part of the Empire, as he said women, who elsewhere did the work of volunteers, could not replace fishermen. He then spoke of the liberty and the freedom enjoyed under the Union Jack and compared it with that of Hun rule. In conclusion he asked every young man present, who had not already done so, to come forward.

The cheapest way to buy apples is by basket, and those that show signs of spoiling can be canned. When stamps are stuck together put a thin piece of paper over the stamps and press with a warm iron. The most important point to remember if you would be well dressed is to maintain the most spotless freshness.

GETTING UNDER COVER.—It is again reported in political circles that Mr. W. Jennings, M.H.A., is to be appointed to the position of Inspector of Lighthouses made vacant by the death of Mr. R. White. This hardly seems fair to Mr. T. Cornick, mechanic, who has been assistant to the late Mr. White for 25 years and over 30 years in the service.

After a selection was given by the C.C.C. band, Mr. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., rose and made a most convincing appeal. He said it was very difficult for some to make a recruiting speech, as although eligible they were unable to enlist, but through no fault of theirs. Spitting of his brother and others who had made the supreme sacrifice, he said they had left a lesson of citizenship which in effect was "What have you done?" Continuing he said, that the time was when the Reg was much honoured and revered. The very existence of the Empire was at stake and it behoved Newfoundland as part of that Great Empire to do her share in the struggle. Every young man, who can, should go and do his bit if our homes and liberties were to be preserved. It was his duty he owed to God as well as to the King. He spoke optimistically of the triumphant conclusion of the war for the Allies, Italian and Russian reverses notwithstanding. It was an opportunity now for young men who could say they took part in that victory. He dealt with the honour and fame won by the Newfoundland Regiment and exhorted all eligible young men to help and keep the regiment from disbanding, so that it may be said after the war is over that there were no conscripts amongst the Newfoundland Regiment. Patriotic solos were rendered during the evening by Messrs. C. Hutson and C. Trappell, Mr. G. Christian presiding at the piano. The concert closed with the rendition of the Newfoundland and National Anthems by the C. C. C. and C. L. B. bands.
