Don't Say Paper, Say The Evening Telegram

Burin Notes.

The writer has been very much amused at what has been written by your esteemed Correspondent of Trinity, and the story of the famous "Burin Coal Mine" that Sergt. White told him about. I remember the occasion on which the mysterious expedition on which the Sergeant used to embark, and when visions of wealth from the "Mine" floated before his view; also dark hints that a lot of money was coming his way, and that he would soon be retiring from the Force to take up the occupation of a "Gentleman of Leisure." Looking backward over the twenty-two years that have passed since then, it calls to memory the famous William W., locally known as "Uncle Billy" and the different things he used to do, to keep the larder filled and his "baccy pipe" going.

I well remember one occasion when Uncle Billy worked on the other side of Burin Harbor, and every Saturday evening would come across in boat to the public wharf, to walk to Salt Pond and to spend his Sunday at home; getting on late in the year, he would sometimes overtake him. The writer met him one evening on his way home and as it was getting late asked him would he like a lantern to light him on his way. Uncle Billy's reply was, that "Begob" he would, and he very thankfully you. I went into a store near by and took down a new lantern, filled it with oil, and gave it to Uncle Billy, who called down the blessing of Heaven on my head, and that he would be sure to return it the very next opportunity. Time went on, but no sign of Uncle Billy or the lantern, and it was about six months after, I met him on the street—it came in my mind to ask him about the lantern I had lent him. Uncle Billy gazed at me with a look of surprise, and replied, "Lanthern? Lanthern? What do I know about a Lanthern, young man?" I was dumfounded, but reminded him of what I had loaned him. He again replied, "Lanthern, it's drammin' ye are young man, and the best place for ye is in the Looatic; to stop an honest man on the strate and ask him about a thing he never had, or never seed," and he went on his way, muttering "Lanthern, Lanthern." I was so amused at the air of injured innocence that Uncle Billy assumed that I did not bother him again.

Another story is told of Uncle Billy, that on the occasion of his marriage, when the clergyman put the question: Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife? he replied, "Certainly Sorr, certainly Sorr, them's my intentions, that is what I brought her to this blessed and holy place for; what else do ye think it was, do ye think I am fooling the woman?" Needless to say that Uncle Billy's reply was sufficient. There is also another story of him that will bear telling. He was shipped as stowman to an old-established firm at Burin for several years, but disaster had overtaken the business and it had to go into insolvency. When the business was finally wound up, it was found that the children of the principal of the firm were left unprovided for. One of the daughters decided to emigrate to the U.S.A., and when the final parting came, the daughter of his old employer was on the public wharf wishing all her friends good-bye. The last to wish her farewell was Uncle Billy; with a profuse use of his handkerchief to his eyes, he extended his hand to her and said, "Well, Miss, I hear you are going to the U.S.A.; take care of yourself, and may God have mercy on yer soul."

Uncle Billy was cook of a banker that was run down on the banks by the White Star Liner Majestic, and taken on board that ship and carried to New York. He was presented with a blue sweater with "White Star Line" across the breast. Uncle Billy was very proud of this uniform and sported it on every occasion; the boys nick-named him "White Star Liner." The stories he used to tell of his adventures in New York and what he told the captain of the Majestic were very amusing.

Uncle Billy is now gathered to his fathers, and sleeps in the little churchyard at Salt Pond, but his memory and doings will ever remain with the older generation. The "coal" is still awaiting another expedition to discover it. The only thing that will be lacking, is the bottle of St. Pierre Rum that the Sergeant took with him on that memorable occasion.

A very sad occurrence took place here, which has cast a gloom over Burin, when Thomas Moulton, of Burin, went up to the Arm to cut wood, and never returned. Several search parties have been in on different occasions but failed to find him, and at one time there were as high as 300 men searching for him, but without success. Mr. Moulton was well respected in this community and great sympathy is felt for his wife and family.

Most of our foreign fleet are arriving, and as there is not much work for them to do at present, they are being moored as they arrive.

Mrs. Avery, the wife of our esteemed magistrate, died suddenly a short time ago. She was buried at Collins' Cove Cemetery. Mrs. Avery was President of the W.M.S. of the Methodist Church, which body attended her funeral.

Mrs. Vigus, wife of the late Mr. James Vigus, died at Toronto. Her body was brought to Burin on the s.s. Sagona, and was laid to rest at Collins' Cove.

The Society of the United Fishermen held their annual parade and attended Holy Trinity Church, Ship Cove, where the Rev. J. A. Meaden preached. After the parade the brethren sat down to a bounteous repast provided by the ladies, and the usual dance followed.

Our new marine railway is now closed down for the winter; I understand this company has had a fairly successful season, and there have been quite a number of vessels docked during the past summer.

We had a very heavy snowfall last week, but our local Council have the roads shovelled, and it is a great boon to the public as it was impossible to go around the town. The Council is to be commended for their promptitude in clearing the roads.—COR. Burin, Feb. 15, 1922.

QUEEN OF SONG WORTH £120,000. Stockholm. (Associated Press.)—The late Christine Nilsson, or Countess Casa de Miranda, famous Swedish opera singer, called by many the "second Swedish nightingale," left an estate in England valued at £120,000. This is disclosed by her will which, according to Stockholm papers, has just been opened in London. The value of her Swedish estate, said to be of considerable size, is not yet known. The Swedish press, however, asserts that estimates of her wealth published in many foreign papers placing her fortune at $15,000,000, were grossly exaggerated. They add that she was noted in life for her great-hearted generosity and that the total of her gifts are known to have amounted to a large fortune.

NILSSON'S BEQUESTS. Of her English estate, the Countess bequeathed £3,000 to the Royal Musical Academy of Stockholm and £2,000 to the Conservatory of Music of Paris, both to be used as funds for scholarships. The will includes legacies of various amounts totalling £17,000 to various friends. The remainder of the English estate is left to the singer's step-daughter, Countess Rose Casa de Miranda. Her objects of art, paintings, etc., the singer left to four Swedish museums. The delay in opening the singer's will is said to have been occasioned by the fact that Christine Nilsson was a French citizen. It was reported at the time of Miss Nilsson's death that Mrs. George F. Murray, of Lynn, Mass., wife of an employee of the General Electric Co. there, claimed to be the daughter of the Swedish singer and that she might contest Miss Nilsson's will.

Household Notes.

A few grapefruit seeds put in a flower pot will make a beautiful plant for the table. Chilled fruit mixed with powdered sugar is nice served in grapefruit baskets. If a cold wet cloth is placed on the bottom of an inverted cake pan when the cake is removed from the oven,

It's Flavor that Makes the Meal!

And the sauces that the Libby chefs have adapted for you give flavor to the simplest dishes.

It may be eggs, or macaroni, or a cheap cut of meat—an unusual and delicious sauce will make it something you eat with delight and remember with pleasure—because of its flavor.

LIBBY'S CATCHUP and CHILI SAUCE are made from red, ripe tomatoes, grown in the fertile soil of Kent County, Ontario, picked when they are mellowed by the sunshine of long summer days, then rushed to the nearby Libby kitchen.

Here in sunny rooms the tomatoes are cooked with fragrant spices, onions, sugar and the best vinegar—cooked for hours until all the flavors are blended through and through.

Now the sauce is ready to give an appetizing relish to your steaks, and chops, or a new piquancy to the meat gravy you serve with your roasts.

Your grocer has, or can get you, Libby's Catchup or Chili Sauce. Use it with your cold meat teas and note how quickly the second helping is necessary.

The delightful flavor of Libby's Beans is due largely to the wonderful Sauce prepared by the skilled chefs. Have you tried them?

Libby, McNeill & Libby

the cake will come out without sticking. For stuffed breast of veal a cream sauce seasoned with horseradish is nice. After a meringue is taken from the oven it should stand in a warm dry place until cold. Serve molds of cranberry jelly on slices of pineapple and garnish with the cake.
