

Chinese Customs

Bishop Mowell on Chinese Customs

Bishop Mowell, writing from the diocese of St. John's, has recently returned from a tour of the Chinese missions in the north-western provinces of China. He writes that the Chinese people are very different from the Westerners, and that their customs are very different from ours. He says that the Chinese people are very poor, and that they live in very poor conditions. He also says that the Chinese people are very superstitious, and that they believe in many different gods and spirits. He concludes by saying that the Chinese people are very different from the Westerners, and that their customs are very different from ours.

Order of Two Missionaries in China

The Bulletin of the Diocese of St. John's, which Bishop Mowell was on his way when he visited China, is an account of the mission of two C. M. S. Missionaries, Rev. A. Whitehead and Rev. T. J. Watt, who are supposed to have been shot in the hills near Anshien in the church stations. Mr. Whitehead had been working in China since 1909, and Mr. Watt since 1909. They were a serious loss to the Diocese, not only on account of their personal qualifications, but because they were the only missionaries in the Diocese who were able to speak the Chinese language.
