Sunday Mass Meeting in Queen's Park. Fifteen hundred to 2,000 gathered around the band stand Sunday afternoon in the band stand Sunday afternoon in Queen's Park to a gospel temperance mass meeting, arranged by the temperance committees of the city. The Sons of England Brass Band rendered some appropriate music, and led the large audience in several hymns. As announced, J. B. Watson, of Stratford, gave his famous address, "Warming at the Wrong Fire." Mr. Watson is powerfully eloquent, and rendered his temperance friends mostvaluable service. His voice is clear and strong, his presence is commanding and magnetic, leading his hearers along with him, inspiring them to noble thought and manly effort. As a man was heard to say after the speaker had say was heard to say after the speaker had sat down, "You feel while listening to him that you would be ashamed ever to do a mean act again." That he possesses more than ordinary power as a speaker is attested by the fact that the whole audience many of them standing) required in a pro-(many of them standing) remained in rap attention till the close, and then seemed loth to break the spell.

A Sacred Historical Relic.

A subscriber to the ADVERTISER who has been "looking up" the subject furnishes the following, which is copied from an ancient manuscript now in the British Museum, and which will doubtless be read ancient manuscript now in the British Museum, and which will doubtless be read with no small interest:

"Publius Lentius' Episile to the Senate of Rome, in the reign of Tiberius Cæsar; Conscript Fathers.

"There appeared in these, our days, a men of great virtues, called Jesus Christ, who by people is called a prophet, but his disciples call him the son of God. He raises the dead and cures all manner of diseases. A man of stature somewhat tall and comely—with loverential countenance such as the beholders both feared and loved. His hair is the color of a filbert fully ripe, and is plain almost down to the ears, but from thence downward is somewhat curled, but more of the Oriental color, waving about his shoulders. In the middle of his head a parting like the Nazarites. His forehead is very plain and smooth. His face is without a wrinkle or spot, beautified with comely red. His nose and mouth are so formed that nothing can be apprehended. His beard thick, the color of his hair on his head. His eyes gray, clear and quick. In reproving he is severe; in counselling he is courteous. He is of a fair spoken, pleasant, and grave speech. Never seen by anyone to laugh, but often seen by many to weep. In proportion to his body, he is well-shaped and straight, and both hands and arms are very delectable. In speaking he is very temperate, modest and wise. A man for his singular beauty exspeaking he is very temperate, modest and wise. A man for his singular beauty ex-ceeding all men."
