Wiere is Joseph Boyd? Joseph Boyd, brother to ex-Ald. John Boyl, left his home on Mill street shortly after dinner on Wednesday afternoon and has not been seen since. The police were notfied yesterday, but as yet have found no trace of the missing man. When 17 years old he received a serious injury on thehead, and while he completely recovere physically, he has been of weak mind ever since. He was dressed, when last see, in a dark coat, brown pants, and striw hat. He is about 5 feet 6 inches in leight, well built, wears a mustache, and hishair is slightly gray. He is about 30 years old. The family, though anxious, have no fear of accident, and rather think hehas wandered off into the country, and is no doubt safe with some farmer. He was last seen by a couple of City Hall em- rain. pleyes going through the arcade towards the market on the afternoon in question. The recent death of his mother may have affected the young man somewhat, although hedid not appear to notice it at the time.

FENCER. - A and B verbally agreed five years ago to build the line fence between their farms. About three years ago fire broke out on A's property, which is swampy and full of long grass, and burned the line fence. A said hunters set out the fire. Bagain built his portion of the line fence, when last fall fire again broke out on A's farm and burned the part which B built and run into B's farm and destroyed a quantity of B's timber. A last fall when the fire ran off his farm was threshing, and with those assisting him tore down some of the rails on B's part of the fence and threw them on his own property and thinks he can keep them. 1. Is a liable to B to build his portion of the fence, as B built it twice now to be burned by A or fire that started on A's property? Ans .- Not unless the fire was csaued by the negligence of A. 2. How can B prevent A from burning the line fence if A is not liable for damage done by fire he starts, or orders to be started? ANS .- If caused by negligence of A, sue him for damages, but if the fire is accidental there is no remedy. 3. A rebuilt the temporary fence, as verbally agreed between A and B, but refuses to build B's portion, either what he tore down, or what was burned; how is B to proceed to have it rebuilt? Ans.-Consult a lawyer. 4. If A's cattle come on B's farm can B impound them for trespass? ANS.—Yes. 5. Is A liable for the der action of B's standing timber? Ans.—1 caused by his negligence he is. 6. If the fire runs through B's property and burns the line fence between B and C, from the fire started on A's property, who is liable to C for the damage, A or B? ANS .- A is liable if the fire is caused by his negligence, and B may also be liable if negligent in putting it out or allowing it to go onto C's property.
