"The House of Silence," Etc.

BY GORDON HOLMES. Author of "A Mysterious Disappearance,"

"Where are you?" he whispered, halt-ing in front of the black wall of foliage, and a hand was stretched forth to guide

They managed to reach the boat shed without arousing any other inhabitants of the trees, and the pollceman, who was skilled in the management of a boat, used the leverage of an oar to push off into deep water, for the craft was not quite effoat, owing to the fall of the tide.

"Well," said the man, when they had propped a good way down the channel, that was a quare go, Mr. Clancy, wasn't it?"

"Well," said the man, when they had is a misanthropist (which I have become) is apt to be. If I am in error, I have atomed for my blunder by making a will that leaves her in full possession of all my property.

"There is no customs port betwen these two places, which are about 100 my property."

Clancy.

"An' just because that blessed owl flew at her, she said she wasn't fit to die," went on the other in awed tones.

"People often say that when they really mean that they are not fit to live," said Clancy, and the policeman, glancing over his shoulder to ascertain his direction, remarked that some folk were quare. ton, remarked that some folk were quare they were.

Then he went to the comfortable bed-room kindly placed at his disposal, and room kindly placed at his disposal, and was sound asleep in five minutes.

Next morning came a registered package addressed in Steingall's handwriting. Within was a book, bound in vellum, and fitted with a lock and key; a note from the chief accompanied it. This ran:

"My Dear Clancy,—Inside the cover of the inclosed diary you will find two letsors—one dated the first inst., from Kyrle to his friend, Leon Anthony, M.A., professor of Hebrew at Harvard University; the other, of yesterday's date, from Professor. to his friend, Leon Anthony, M.A., professor of Hebrew at Harvard University; the other, of yesterday's date, from Professor Anthony to the Commissioner of Police, New York. I have skimmed through the diary, and have jotted down on a separate slip some of the pages in which occur passages bearing on your present inquiry. If, after weighing the facts carefully, you think fit to turn over the whole affair to the New Jersey authorities (who will, of course, arrest 'Mrs. Delamar' forthwith on the capital charge), you have my sanction for adopting this course. You may, however, have some reason for holding your hand at the moment; so I leave you full liberty of action. Naturally, the statements in the diary are not evidence, save in regard to proof of motive, and perhaps of intent. Other items, of which I am ignorant, may have come to light locally, and it may be necessary to affect an arrest at once. Fut the actual decision I leave to you. Ring me up later in the day. I am interested in this case. It has features out of the common, Yours. "J. L. S." "Name of a good little gray man!" murnured Clancy, who swore in French.

With devouring eyes he extracted some tense of its purport. It described the rescue of the child, and one sentence bit into Clancy's brain, "You may be quite certain that if this extraordinary incident had brought them together again, it would have spoiled everything."

Many times did the writer harp on "the narrow escape," the "luck," of Waverton's early adventure, and the "singular change in the man—he seemed to be quite usually large, and with "spectacles" re-maryow escape." the "witch," of water-horns early adventure, and the "singular change in the man-he seemed to be quite maryow escape." the "water-horns early adventure, and the "singular change in the man-he seemed to be quite maryow experience. The properties of the properties of Clancy, an impressionist if ever there was one, had glanced once at the dead bird when he read. When he had made an end he gazed at the heap of rumpled. an end he gazed at the heap of rumpled feathers for some seconds.

Della: I use a lotion instead of face powder. This home made spurmax point will tone and clear the skin, overcome coarseness and wrinkles and act as a protection against sun and wind. It is cheap and in every way equal to the expensive liquid face powders. Get four ounces of spurmax from your druggist and dissolve in a half-pint of hot water. To this add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, and your lotion is complete. Apply freely after washing and thoroughly drying the face, neck and arms. The result will please you, for the skin, and gives a velvety texture to the face.

Constance: You are very foolish to take chances by using belladonna in your eyes. Its effects is only temporary. You can both beautify and strengthen them with this simple tonic, which costs almost nothing and can be made up at home. Put one ounce crystos in one pint cold, clear water and drop two or three drops in each eye a few times daily. This simple tonic is very soothing and strengthening to smarting, weak eyes, and its use frequently overcomes the need for glasses. Della: I use a lotion instead of face
