BRONCHITIS

If Neglected, it soon reaches the Lungs and may Prove Fatal.

Mr. G. L. Carow of 116 Millmont St., Toronto, writes under date of September 13, 1908, "One year ago this spring I contracted a severe cold in the chest, which developed into Bronchitis. I took three kinds of medicine and found no improvement. A friend of mine advised me to try PSYCHINE, and in three days I felt like a new man again. I desire to let others know what a valuable cure you have in PSYCHINE for I could not find any other medicine that had failed. I am more than thankful to be well again, and for the sake of others who may be ill, you may publish this testimonial."

Stop that cold or the results will be serious. You can do this by toning up the system with PSYCHINE.

THE BEST SELLER

What is the best seller? Ten to one you would never guess. Well, it is the Bible, that's all. The total sales of the works of all the most popular writers of the day would not equal the yearly sale of the Scriptures, according to statistics gathered by a writer for the December Munsey's. Each year there are printed 17,008,000 Protestant Bibles, Testaments and "portions," such as the Psalms or the separate gospels, in more than five hundred languages and dialects. Of these Bibles 10,000,000 are published by Bible societies, are sold for less than cost, and return no financial profit to anybody. The remaining 7,000,000 are printed commercially and yield a handsome profit to the publishers.

Copyrights are granted for twenty-eight years, with renewal of four years additional, making in all forty-two years. To secure a copyright it is necessary to send to the librarian of Congress a printed copy of the title before publication, the fee being $1. Two copies of the article must be deposited in the Congressional library at Washington.

THE CITY OF POMPEII.

Profoundly Interesting to the Scientist, From Every Point of View.

Strangely, weirdly, fascinating is Pompeii. Its narrow streets, so many centuries ago gay with the life of a Roman plebeian resort, to-day echo to the sound of footsteps, so that one instinctively treads quietly, as in a place of mystery. But a little imagination is needed to picture this haunted city as it was when the aristocratic Rome, including the great Cicero, occupied villas in its suburbs; when it was famed as a place of trade, and a community of wealth and luxury. One thinks always of days of sunshine in Pompeii, when under the bluest of skies men and women danced and feasted and there were only the sounds of laughter and singing. An English artist, however, contrary to custom, has sought to show us that Pompeii was much like other cities—like cities of to-day for the matter, and that it was not unacquainted with the dreariness of rain and deserted streets.

The artist's conception, is described freely by Pierre Gusman, who says: "Beside the footways there ran a stream which collected the water from the kitchens and the latrines and fell into a gutter beneath the footways. A great deal of refuse must have fallen into the stream, but this difficulty was met by an abundant supply of water all along the footway from aqueducts now destroyed. It was carried by numerous leaden pipes (on many of which may still be read the name of the maker—'ex officina Claudii') into stone or marble fountains. From these fountains the water ran in all directions, flushing the street and falling at last into large openings beneath the footway or at the end of streets, ending in a 'cul-de-sac.' There was a very good water supply for domestic purposes, and every house had its own tap. It would seem, however, that the Pompeians must have been obliged to wade ankle-deep in mud, even on a fine day, when they crossed the road. But this was not the case. At once indolent and practical, the citizens avoided this discomfort by laying down one, two or three flat stepping stones at the same height as the footway at equal distances from one another. In many streets the heavy antique chariots, passing continually over the same track, have worn ruts in the flagstones deeper than those that cart loaded with hay would make in a plowed field."

Overwhelmed in one brief day over 1,800 years ago by a terrific eruption of Vesuvius, for centuries Pompeii's site was unknown and the very memory of the city forgotten. At length in 1760 some strange ruins were noticed, but not until 1756 were any excavations made. The difficulty in discovering the city's true position was greatly increased by the changes which were produced by the fearful convulsion. The River Sarno has in 1850 some strange forms, course and the sea beach raised to a considerable height, so that the town to which merchantmen resorted of old is now a mile from the coast and a considerable distance from the stream that in ancient times skirted its walls. People in general know how the task of excavation has progressed, until to-day one-third of the entire city is exposed. Valuable pieces of architecture and sculpture have been found and as a whole the work is of the profoundest interest to scientists and scholars the world over.

What Troubled Him. The impetuous poet had long worshipped the editor's daughter, and now—oh, joy!—his dream of bliss had come true, for she had said that she would be his, with a capital H. Still, he seemed strangely ill at ease. She was quick to notice it, and a shadow chased the sunshine from her fair face.

"Are you not happy?" she whispered. "Yes," he faltered. "But something troubles you," she insisted. "What is it, darling?" "Nothing, dearest," he stammered. "Tell me," she demanded. "There's secrets between us now that you have been accepted." "Does your—does your father pay on acceptance or—or publication?" faltered the impetuous poet. The glad light died from the eyes of the editor's daughter, and for the rest of the evening they talked about the weather.

Drumming of the Snipe. One of the most remarkable of bird sounds is the so-called drumming of the snipe. The noise is difficult to describe and is often compared to clattering. The snipe, in fact, has been called the beater. Tennyson used the word hum, speaking of "the snipe where hums the snipe." It is now generally agreed that the noise is made by the vibration of the tail feathers. A writer, however, carefully watching the snipe during the flights in which it makes this remarkable noise, is convinced that the wings assist in its production. "This seems exceedingly probable, since the wings are seen to be in actual vibration during its emission.—Country Life.

A Christmas Gift

Mrs. Wm. K. Vanderbilt knows that it is more blessed to give than to receive at Christmas time.

On Christmas morning, 1908 this woman opened an envelope which she found under her plate at the breakfast table. It contained a check for $1,000,000 signed by her husband—Vanderbilt is one of the richest men in the world, and giving a million is to him what giving a hundred is to the average salaried man.

He did not suggest what use his wife should make of the money. She immediately decided at the breakfast table, it is said, to turn her gift over to a number of less fortunate people. She got into communication with Dr. Henry M. Shively, tuberculosis expert, and during the year they have designed what is known as sanitary apartments for consumptives. These buildings are now being erected with the $1,000,000 Christmas money. The idea is to build in New York tenements provided with balconies and roof gardens where victims of the great plague may breathe in the fresh air.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh), that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Colchester Times:—"Growl about the weather, but Hicks, the great astronomer, says we are going to have it all through January, with a few variations, and that the real severe winter weather will come in February. We are inclined, in fact, anxious, to deglitter with the lumbermen, but if Hicks is right what chance, is there for them. Many of them, especially the mill men sawing for two dollars a thousand, are going behind at the rate of several dollars a week. Goodness help the mill men, the land owners can borrow on their property."
