

whether we were on or off the road, when we began to see lights at a distance. These were the fires of a few Indians that were hunting. We were happy to stay with them over night. There were four tents, touching each other, around a square which served as a common fire place. It was not very cold, so that we could sleep without much difficulty.
 In the morning, the Indians set up an altar with boxes and mass was celebrated in