Among the trish newspapers many contain kindly acticles upon the event. The National Press, the organ of the Metarthynies, touching ty refers to the relyl of love which has been so painfully ended. It says: "All idea of royalty disappears before the malacy in human life, which forces every man's heart."

The Freeman's Journal, McCarthynte, says: "The Preeman's Journal, McCarthynte, says: "The Preeman's Journal, McCarthynte, says: "The Prince of Charence and Avondale made no enemies. He will be mourned by att kindly and generous me a with deep sympathy for his parents. The Prince of Wales has hailts. He has sometimes torgotten that royally has different as well as rights, but the Prince has a certain royal generously and kindness of heart which are liked by the people. The Princes of Wales has won the love and esteem of all. We believe she has sympathy for the suffering and wrongs of the people of Ireland."

The Independent, Parnellite, says: "The utmost sympathy goes out from the hearts of the Irish people for the namely in their deep attitiction. The Duke of Charene and Avondale was popular in Dublin. When he was here for a few days recently with his brother, Prince George, he visited Mr., Parnell's grave, in Glasaevia Cemetery.

The St. James Gazette says: "It would be sycophancy to say that the hapless Prince was regarded with eathusiastic devotion and intense personal regard by a majority of those whom he might have ruled. We have the best reason to believe that in the death of the Duke of Charene and Avondale we have lost a promising young Prince, whose untimely taking off would claim our sorrow even without the exceptional circumstances of the approaching marriage wherein a special pathos lies. The death of the Duke can hardly make a serious difference in the political or dynastic situation. Prince George of Wales, steps into the place of heir. If the tragic event has any lesson in it, it is that it is a duty that Princes owe to their subjects, from their position, to take due and reasonab

In Dablia the newspapers appeared in mourning. Many of the leading stores put up their shutters. The lord mayor presided at a meeting of 59 members of the Municipal Council, who passed a vote of condolence with the Queen and with the Prince and Princess of Wales.
Deceased was an officer in the army, captain 10th Hussars, and for some time sailed as naval carlet.

The corporation of the city of Dublin has already adopted a vote of condolence with the Prince and Princess of Wales in the loss they have sustained in the death of their son. On Monday the corporation held a special meeting at which resolutions were adopted condoling with the Queen and other members of the Royal family.

The Prince of Wales has sent to the Lord Mayor of Dublin a telegram in reply to the resolutions adopted by the Dublin Corporation comioding with him and his family on the death of the Duke of Charence. His Royal Highness says: "I and the Princess of Wales are deeply touched by the resolutions of condolince adopted by the resolutions of conducted adopted by the Corporation of Dublin; your words of sympathy have gone to our hearts. Our dear son was very happy in Ireland, and he would have shortly returned there if he had not been stricken by his fatal illness."

CARDINAL NEWMAN.

The Poet, the Philosophor, and the Preacher-Lecture by Dr. Quigley. of St. John, N. B.

An eloquent fecture on the late illustrious Cardinal Newman, was delivered in the Victoria Rifles Armory Hall, on Thursday evening. by Dr. R. F. Quigley, barrister-at-law, of St. John, N.B., under the auspices of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence Society. The Rev. Father McCallen presided, and amongst those present were the Ren. James Callaghan, Rev Martin Callaghan, Rev. Father Gotz, Connolly, Devine and Casey; Dr. and Mrs. Hingston, Mr.

The courts were for the most part adjourned. The Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, Montrol of the Crown of England. We joon with all our Gracious Sovereign, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Boyal Lamily and the fonce of the noble deal prince, and we most humbly tender them our sympathies and our conditions of the noble deal prince, and we most humbly the deet them our sympathies and our conditions of the noble deal prince, and we most humbly the deet them our sympathies and our conditions of the noble deal prince, and we most humbly the deet them our sympathies and our conditions of the noble deal prince, and we most humbly the deet them our sympathies and our conditions in the working beginning for the appearances of the characteristic was a conditional position, after huxing gone through the prince has been called and price of the appearances of family life. It must have been a read struggle for thin to give him and the construction of the Characteristic which have been a read struggle for thin to give him and the construction of the Characteristic which have been a great struggle for thin to give him and the construction of the conditions of the cond of Newman's early life. Born in 1801, in London, the great cardinal was educated at Haling factor in the religious movement of the age, and men of all creeds testified to his worth. He was a man in the workings of whose mind the intelligent portion of the whole English people was interested. Whatever they thought of his creed, they had but one opinion of his astanments. He was at once poot, philosopher and preacher; skillud in controversy and steadast in matters of belief. One need not be a member of the Church of Rome to cherish an admiration hordering upon reverence for John Henry Newman. Few menever handled the weapons of controvers tal warrare with such consummate skill. One special point about his writings, which had lately been collected and published in forty volumes, was their strongly marked individuality. They were exidently suggested by medents which happened in the course of a long and eventful life. There was perhaps not one of his Oxford scrinous which was not written with a secret reference to himself, and the same remark applied to his poetry, and other works: "They entitle," said the speaker, "the author to the first place among the classic writers of our tongue No living writer even attained the same mining the classe writers we can always. No living writer ever attained the same was first over the end only the greatest living master of language, but perhaps the greatest that ever byed. His command of all kinds of language was wonderful. Not in the whole range of English literature have we anything equal to his sermons, nor such verses as 'Lead Kindiy light.' He has made Ancient Athens live before us in another of his works. He was unrivalled as a controversalist; but never, in a life inflorstrite, did he take in unfair advantage or win a dishonest victory." After terring to the dominant tone at the time of Nowman's birth when theology and noradity were sneered at, Dr. Quigley went on to say that another school also every used a certain influence. No figure, terlaps, was so worthy of careful study as John Wesley. After making every allowance, it still remained true that no Protestant teacher came nearer the heroes of spiritualism than he did. The Methodist sed was not the only one which was affected by his influence. To him was undoubtedly due the Evangelical or Low Church party of the present day. His message was substantially that of the great preachers of the Mudile Ages. He insisted upon chasity, and belief in the judgment of God. Newman in his early days was a strong adminer of the Evangelical methods. He was also greatly opposed to Catholicism, and actually believed at one time that "no Roman could expect to be saved." Yet these men were working for Catholicism unconsciously. The Evangelical school was made up of men who had tell the Idea of a world to come. In this army John Henry Sewman enrolled himself in early youth. In the "Apolociae" he relates how that at the age of fifteen he tessiv at timpressons of dogma which were nevel in the intelligence camerinas early into piny. He was a theologism, and a domain and his secondar has period also bear in the secondar of the intelligence camerinas early into piny. WHAT AN ENGLISHMAN OF GHT TO BE.

He took the correct view on the fitsh question. He know that Englishmen as a rule appeared not to think that is was useasy to forget infleting an injury as it was difficult to longer being injured, that they also forget that freiand was a mation, and her first grievance was that she was not understood. Newman understood her, He did not favor insulling parromage towards the Irish. He was conclosed the dold of hatrical relamitowed to England. A debt which has been accumulating for three fundred years. Newman unlifesympathized with the Firsh people. Ireland was to hou a land old and young lod in its Christianity, young in its promise for the inture. One grievener which he succeeded to some extent in remedying was the lack of proper citicalitonal facilities for Catholies in tredand. Here was a country where a Catholie come not obtain a degree and where four-diffus or the lay-payers were Catholies, His efforts resulted in the foundation of WHAT AN ENGLISHMAN OFGHT TO BE.
