It is believed there is in Canada a vacancy for such Publication; and that a compilation affording a collection of the literary beauties and discussions of many subjects, which now appart in the old World in the French tongue, would be acceptable as well to the English as French speaking portions of our population. Certainly to all that part of the English speaking population to whom it is an object to cultivate ac quaintance with the French language, or the polite iterature of France, the projected publication will be in an especial manner valuable. We purpose to give to our Review as wide a lati
